THE SMARTEST FASHIONS OF WELL-DRESSED FOLK

An Open-Air Lunch

THE setting of a green lawn and a canopy of trees, with the blue sky peeping through, forms a summer idea for an outdoor luncheon which should be grasped by the hostess eager for "something different" and at the same time enjoyable. Luncheon can be served in individual boxes, and easy chairs and cushions will protect the afternoon dresses worn.

At a successful al fresco luncheon given recently some stunning styles were launched. Flowered frocks vied with dresses of voile, eponge and ratine. Styles in infinite variety, promising becomingness to all types, were the feature of the entertainment. Some of them are shown here.

The flowered voile is shown in a quaint style. It has a deep yoke of shirred net, with net ruffles outlining the sides. A bunch of pink roses holds the green crepe sash in a high point in front.

Cuffs of shirred net edge the kimono sleeves, and an underskirt of net shows a pleated ruffle with a row of pink rosebuds. The black hat with a pink facing has curled aigrettes at the back and a chinband of velvet that is particularly becoming to a youthful face.

Blue ratine in a coat dress shows a bolero effect, the sides caught together by a broad blue band over a white lace underblouse. Black satin collar and cuffs give contrast. The skirt has three tucks in front, catching up the folds in a curved line in the center.

Green voile in a new pegtop dress is shown with a square yoke of mull. Bands of green-and-white embroidery outline the yoke and sleeves and form the shaped edge of the pegtop pannier. Below this the skirt falls in scant lines.

The use of color on white eponge suits is shown in the figure on the steps. The collar and cuffs of lavender are of eponge. Long sleeves are shown.

Contrasts in coatees are very popular. The colored coat on the white skirt is an excellent expression of this style. Extended yokes are noticeable. In the lowered organdie dress of the black-haired guest this style is shown. Especially good, by the way, is the extended yoke for blouses of silk.

Graceful lines, soft fabrics and youthful silhouettes are the keynotes of successful summer styles. Choose the one most suited to your needs and fashion a frock after one of these models on the PRESERVE the GRACE of YOUR BODY.

By Lillian Russell.

"After You Have Reached Adult Life You Cannot Add to Your Stature. But the Fat and Muscle Which Give Form and Grace to the Human Frame Can Be Increased and Reduced by Diet, Massage, and Exercise and the Different Parts of the Body Brought Into Pleasing Symmetry."

Avoid standing on one foot. It throws the whole body out of proportion and causes uneven hips and shoulders.

(Copyright, 1913, By Lillian Russell.)
During a convention of dressmakers recently a paper was read which aroused considerable interest. The contention was advanced that during the last few years the form of woman had undergone an astonishing change.

The discussion which followed brought out the fact that dressmakers in various parts of the country had made a similar discovery—woman was losing her symmetry; one hip, the right, was higher than the other.

Then followed, of course, the usual explanations. The hobble skirt of the last few years, and the constrictions necessary to locomotion under certain circumstances, was one of the popular theories advanced, and it received many supporters.

One of those pointing the discussion remarked that high tops of street cars had more to do with the abnormal condition than anything else—that women boarded cars, holding with the right hand to a support, and stepping with the right foot. This exertion, or lurching upward, was necessary to keep the position of the hip bones, causing about a lesion destructive to figure and often dangerous to health.

About both reasons were with considerable foundation. The demands upon the human body today are what they were a few decades ago. And as we know the body changes its form it is all the more necessary that the greater the demands by the change of things, the greater the amount of thought and action is required to prevent general but certain in-

Be careful of how you hold your body while you are reading. There is no reason why you should make a half moon of yourself.

There is much in the present era that is new to the world, consequently there must be new thought in accepting new conditions.

The woman of today does not walk with the free and graceful stride of those Italian water bearers who were sculptured in stone, as personifying grace itself. High heels, restrictive corsage, streets of stone, and ready conveyance have greatly changed the walk.

It is true that development of the body today is "one-sided," and if the cause is traced it will be found not leading to one source, but to many. The high steps of street cars is but one of the demands upon contortion in order that they may be negotiated.

"But what must I observe so that I will not be injured by the pitfalls of modernity?" asks one woman. A thousand things is the answer; but do not set out to meet them. Set a sentinel to watch that injurious practices do not come into your habit of life.

Your common sense, kept in the habit of alertness, will be that sentinel, and you do not have to combat the thousand things at once.

To be symmetrically formed the height of your head should be just four times the length of your nose. This is a little hard on pug and turned up noses. But if you do not possess the Venus proportions you should consider yourself fortunate in living at a time when defects of physique are remedied by natural and wholesome methods.

Your height should be eight times the length of your head, the head measurement being reckoned from the point of the chin to the top of the head.

Also, to be in perfect proportion, the height of your body should be exactly the same as the distance from right finger tip to left finger tip of the widely extended arms.

A few of the bad points that destroy symmetrical proportions are heavy, thick bones, flat chests, angular limbs, round and bony shoulders, curved thick collar-bones, poor muscles, sharp or double chin, protruding stomach, large hips, flat backs, and pointed elbows.

Few of us are without one or more of the many bad points. On the other hand there is no one of us who cannot justly lay claim to a few good points. There may be a few particulars in our makeup that we cannot mend, such as thick bones, an angular skull, or small eye sockets. But there are so many important particulars, such as the complexion, figure, hair, teeth, etc. in which we may improve ourselves that there is no reason for discouragement. A woman may be remarkably beautiful and attractive without conforming to every demand of the artist's beauty standard.

If you are flat chested a useful exercise for filling the tops of the lungs with air is shoulder raising. If the shoulders are even they should be raised together with energy as high as possible, then lowered gently in order not to jar the head. If the shoulders are uneven practice raising the lower one till both are on a level.

Dressmakers complain that most girls have uneven shoulders, especially those who sit at a desk many hours of the day. When you discover that one of your shoulders is higher than the other change your way of sitting at your desk. This simple exercise will help:

Extend the arm of the lower shoulder upward, the hand grasping the dumbbell. Lower the arm on the right side and with this hand support a heavy weight.

Another simple exercise for this defect is to forcibly depress the higher shoulder many times a day. You can do this as you are sitting at your work.

The following exercise is most beneficial to develop the bust: Double your fists as tightly as you can, bringing them together in front with the arms raised so as to be horizontal. While keeping your arms on a level with your shoulders slowly separate your fists as widely as possible. Do this 100 times every night. Any hard pressure tends to flatten the breast, so if you wear forms of any kind they should be made as light as possible. A framework of whalebone or wire that will not press is best.

Deep breathing will also help to enlarge the bust, and singing is a splendid exercise. You never knew a great singer who did not have a large bust.

Here is a deep breathing exercise that will help wonderfully in developing bodily symmetry: First thing in the morning and last thing at night when you are clad only in your night dress, open your window and standing straight, with your back against the wall, fill your lungs, breathing through nostrils, with the mouth closed, until your lungs are able to hold no more. Retain breath while you count four. Expel it through the nose, counting seven. Do this five times.

Next stand upright and turn out the toes so that the heels touch. Place your hands on your hips, the thumbs back in the soft part of the back on either side of the spinal column. Now, draw in a deep breath and force the air down so that you feel the air pressed out through the expansion of the lower part of the lungs. Hold the breath while counting four, expel while you count seven. Practice this movement six times.

Next stand upright, head up, shoulders thrown back, arms hanging at the sides. Now gradually raise the arms until they are high above the head. While you are performing this movement take in a deep breath through the nostrils until the lungs can hold no more. Retain the breath while counting four, then gradually lower the arms and at the same time expel the breath and count seven. Repeat this six times.

Practice deep breathing constantly. Take deep inhalations with the mouth closed; retain the breath a few seconds and exhale through the nostrils. Lay your hand on the abdomen when you take one of these deep breaths and see the flattening effects upon the stomach. To straighten bent shoulders sleep a wand across the back, letting it run out through the bent elbows. Keep the arms and shoulders pressed back and down, and walk about the room for five or ten minutes. This will have a fine effect upon your carriage, in the meantime strengthening the muscles of the feet, back, and shoulders.

Too much flesh is anything but symmetrical. It is very hard to reduce one's flesh. Few women are willing to deny themselves the rich foods and keep up the exercise necessary to do it. For breakfast eat fruit except peaches or bananas may be eaten without sugar. Weak tea with half a lump of sugar and a dash of lemon juice should be taken. Rye or whole wheat bread toasted, eaten with salt instead of butter, and one soft boiled egg with salt is all that should be eaten.

For luncheon, any vegetable that grows on top of the ground, except peas and corn, weak tea with lemon and a lean chop or bit of steak.

For dinner, lean beef, lamb, or the white meat of chicken; any vegetable that grows above ground except peas and corn. No sweets, no pastry, no malt liquor; a little sour wine can be drunk at dinner if preferred to tea. Milk, butter, oil, nuts, potatoes, chocolate are taboo.

Sleep only seven hours at night. Take no naps during the day, and walk at least three miles every twenty-four hours. Every morning take at least five minutes of deep breathing.

It is well to have one skilled in physical culture to look you over and tell you exactly what you need. Well directed exercise is the best means for promoting bodily symmetry.

A very good exercise for giving poise and symmetry to the whole body is that of standing erect with the chest thrown out, extending the arms horizontally to their full extent, and, while holding the arms thus firmly in position, twisting the hands upon the wrists.

Here is an exercise for reducing abdomen and hips: Lie extended upon the floor, supporting yourself by one hand while the other is placed upon the hip. While holding this position raise the body gradually from the floor until the whole weight is supported by the hand and feet.

Remember: The still voice of the mind offers you solution of nearly every difficulty confronting you, so heed its advice.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

K. A. T.: Peroxide and ammonia will destroy a growth of hair if it is not too heavy. Peroxide and ammonia are two different articles. Use the common ammonia such as is used for household uses, and peroxide of hydrogen can be bought at any drug store. It will not remove the growth of hair with one application, but if used daily for a couple of months it will remove it. The peroxide will bleach it so that it will be less noticeable. If you care for the instructions for using it, send me a stamped, addressed envelope, and I shall gladly send it to you.

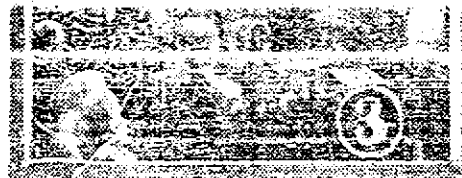

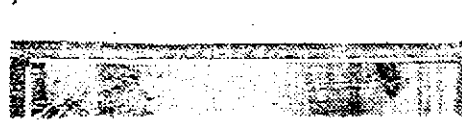

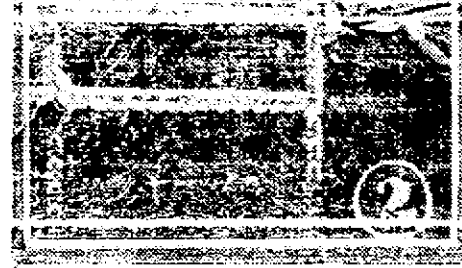

J. D. B.: I cannot give you a permanent eyebrow darkener. Vaseline applied to the eyebrows for a time will make them darker. There are several good eyebrow pencils on the market. Mascara is also good. This is a sort of watercolor. It can be bought at any drug store.

MISS E. M. L.: Any beauty shop will give scalp treatments. If your hair falls so heavily I would advise you by all means to take a course of scalp treatments.

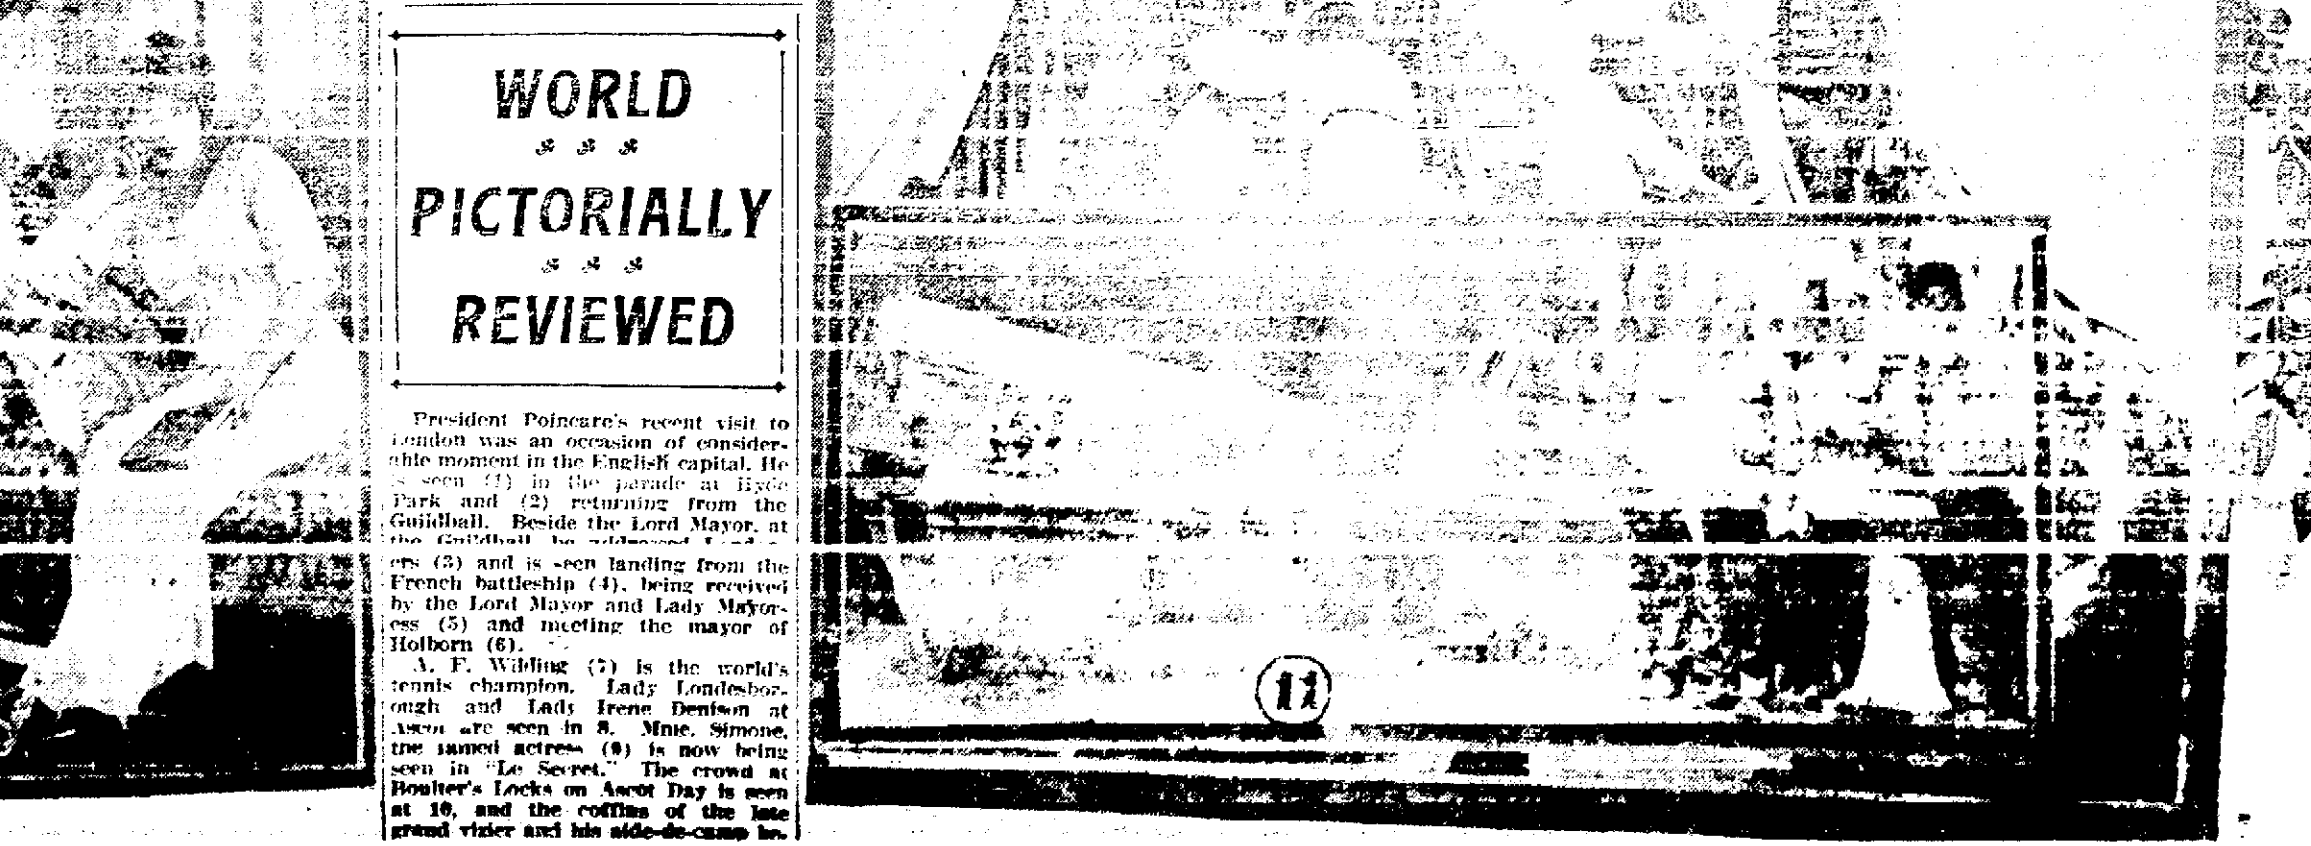

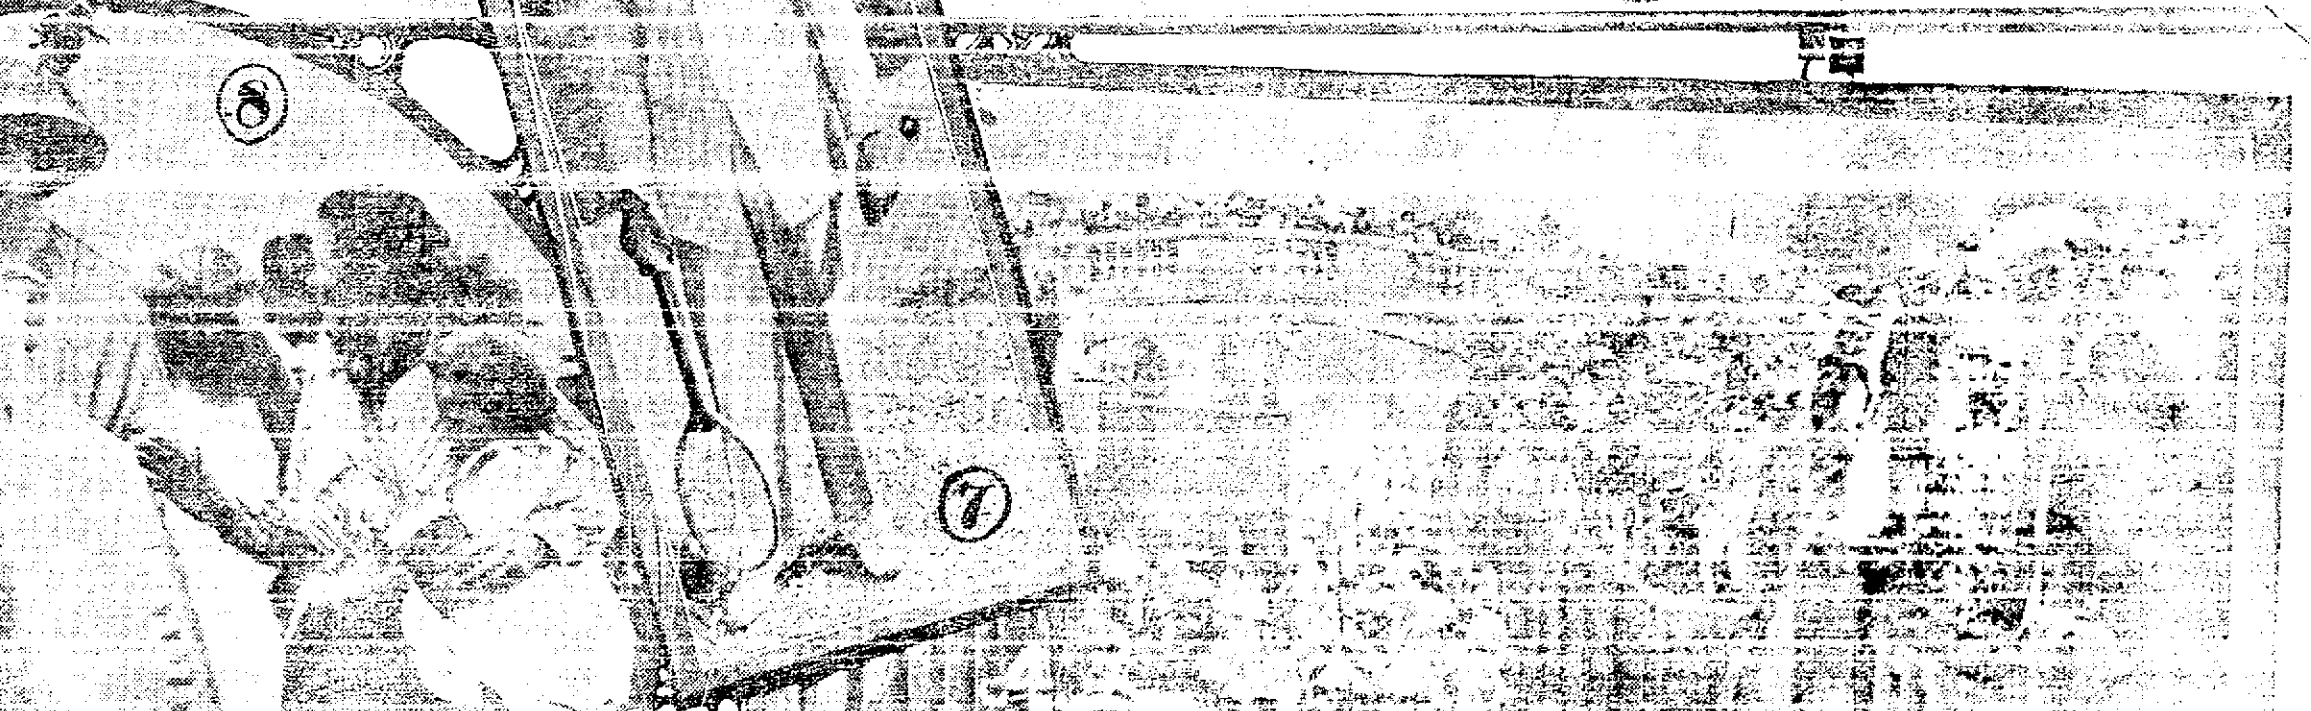

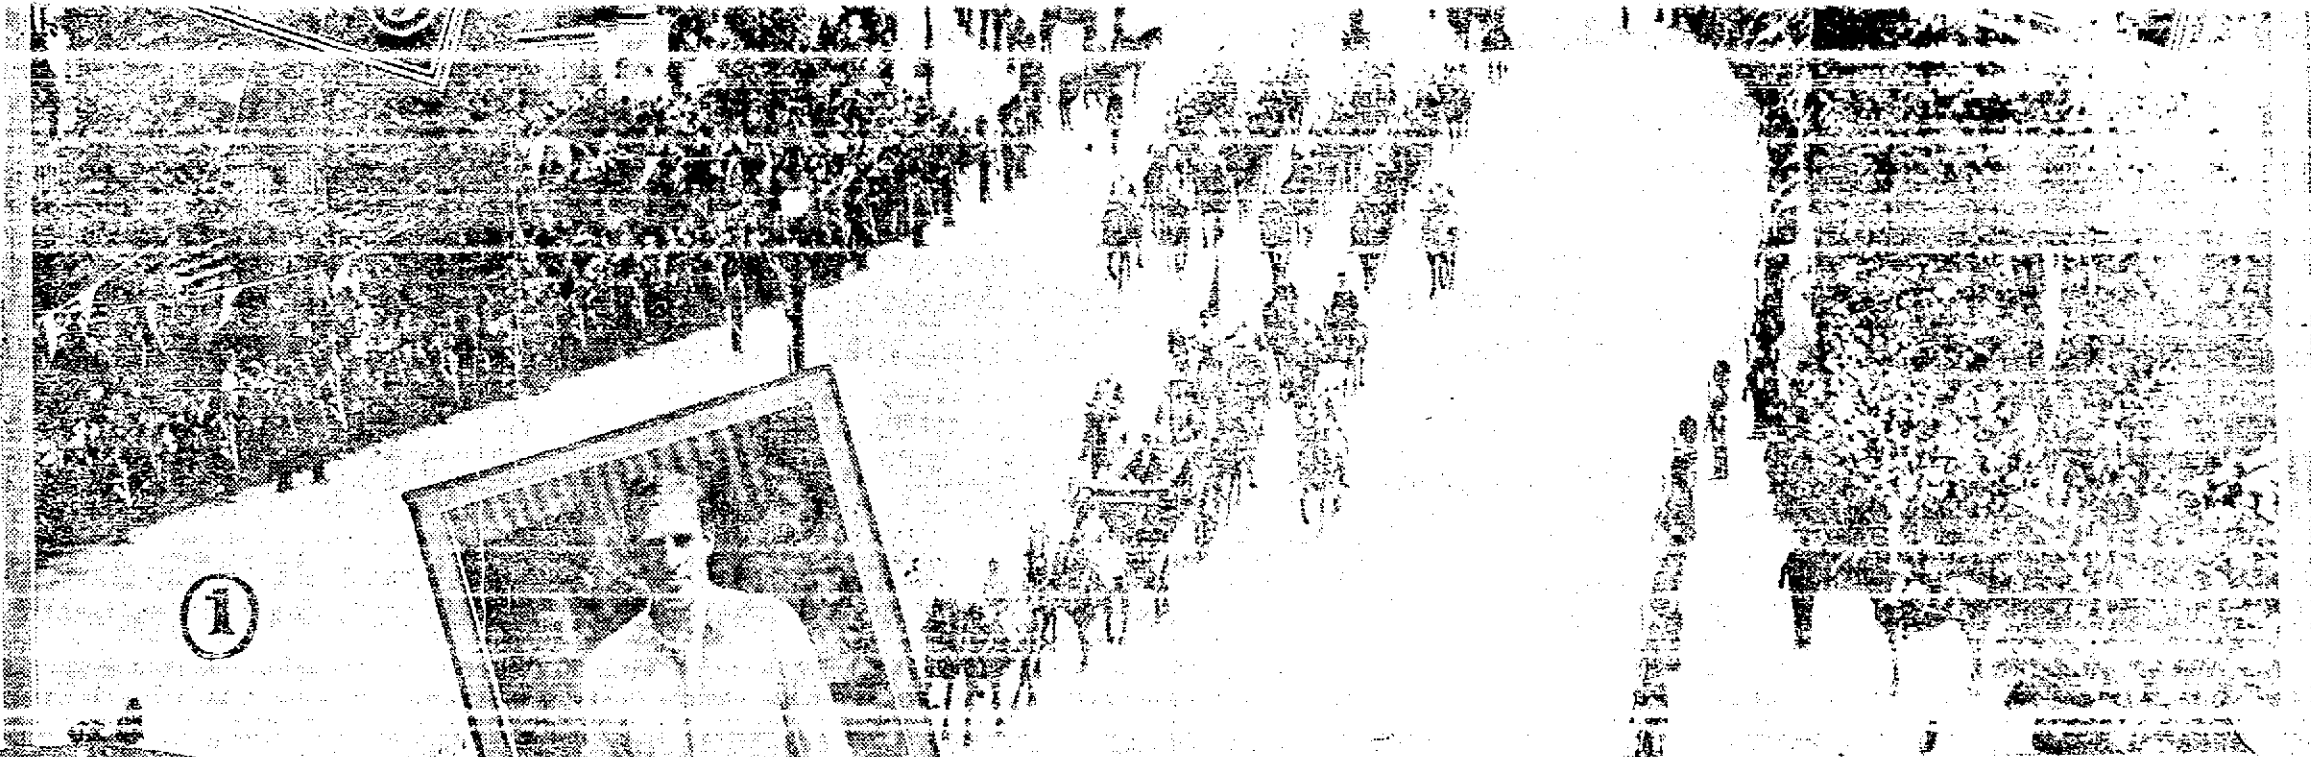

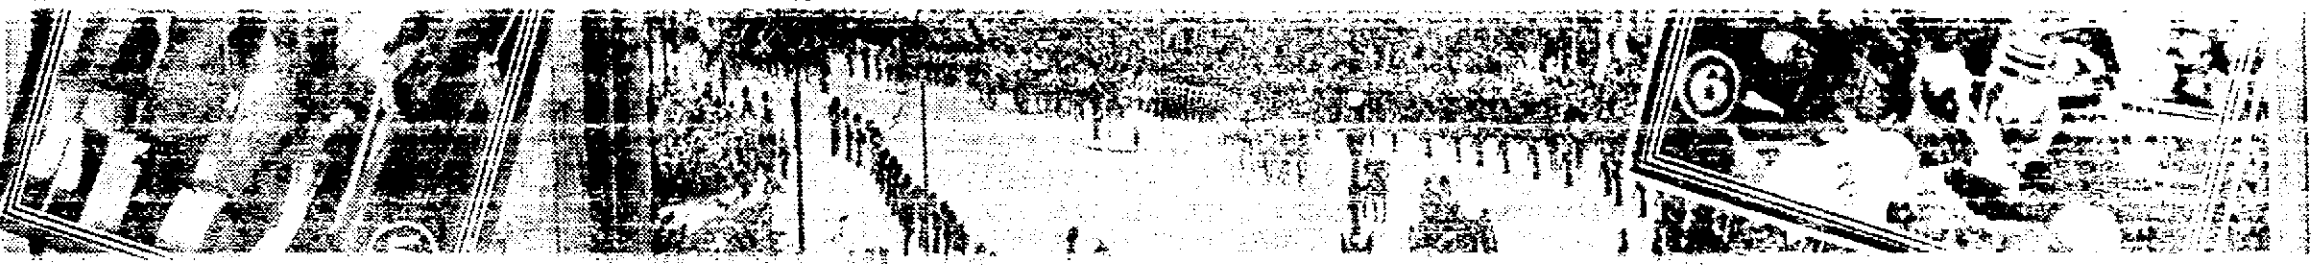

A. L. K.: In answer to your request I am reprinting the formula for face bleach: One-quarter ounce of lactic acid, one-quarter ounce peroxide of hydrogen, three ounces witch hazel. Put this on the face and then, after it is thoroughly dry, dab the face with any pure cold cream. Do this night and morning and you will see a great improvement in your skin.

AN ADMIRER: It is much easier to put on a few pounds of flesh than to take it off. First of all, look well to your diet. Eat plenty of fat making foods. Do not drink tea or coffee, but drink plenty of milk; cream and chocolate also are good. Eat properly cooked foods and masticate them well. If you are overworked and nervous try and take a rest. Get plenty of fresh air and sunshine. Sleep at least eight hours a day, and above all things don't worry. If you are nervous learn to relax, both in action and in rest, because nervous tension is one of the banes of this condition. When you take your daily periods of rest, let down the tension of your muscles and nerves by some exercise. You will find it most restful to simply open and close the eyes slowly and drowsily, stimulating sleep; stop thinking and yield to the soothing influence of the movement of the eyelids. I shall be glad to send you a dietary for gaining flesh if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

MRS. F. A. S.: I am delighted to know you like the skin food. Here is the formula for the cold cream which is an excellent cleanser: One ounce spermaceti, one ounce white wax, five ounces of oil of sweet almonds, one and one-half ounces rosewater, twenty grains of powdered borax. Dissolve the borax and rosewater while you melt the wax and spermaceti in a double boiler. When thoroughly melted add the oil of almonds. Let it remain in the boiling water until all flakes of wax, caused by pouring in the oil, are melted. Then quickly pour the rosewater into it, letting the mixture still remain in the water until all wax flakes are dissolved. Pour into a jar and with a silver knife beat the mixture until it is creamy. Beating is the secret of fine cream, and the longer you beat it the better it will be. Be sure that you get absolutely fine ingredients from your druggist and use the skin food.

FRENCH BIRTHS
SHOW DECREASE

Dr. Jacques Bertillon Points to Palliative in Increased Children.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)
PARIS, July 19.—(What France really wants in order not to become a second class power," says Dr. Jacques Bertillon, of finger-print fame, "is not a military law of three years, which will really only be a palliative, to be followed by demands for four and five years' service, but more children, just as other countries have them.")

In 1911 and 1912 have been the worst ever registered in France. Before 1907 this country had less than 800,000 births; before 1887 she had never less than 900,000, and before 1867 the figure was in the neighborhood of a million. This, or nearly so, was the number of births in Germany at the same period. But today the number of births in France is only 750,000 as the normal figure.

OTHER FIGURES.
Holland, with a population of one eighth that of France, has a greater number of births in each year. It is often pretended that the increase in the population is checked in other countries as well as in France. The contrary is the case. During the period of 1901-1906 Italy's population increased 251,000 inhabitants, that of Austria-Hungary by 300,000.

These figures, crushing as they are for France, are lower than the present figures.

Dr. Bertillon then points out that the number of marriages in France rose to 211,429 in 1912. Few countries have so high a figure in comparison with their population. Frenchmen marry readily enough, but they lack children in their homes. They have at present two or three, but they should have three or four.

Dr. Bertillon says it would be necessary to protect honor, and especially to help efficiently those who are unable to do the country the valuable service of rearing families.

DEFINE RULE OF ROAD
IN AEROPLANE SUIT

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)
PARIS, July 19.—The rule of the road in the air has been defined in a suit and counter-suit between Captain Dickson, the English aviator, and M. Thomas, a French flying man, whose aeroplanes came into collision at the Milan flying meeting in 1910.

Both aviators were seriously injured, and each declared that the other was at fault. Captain Dickson made a pot of $20,000 damages and M. Thomas for $14,000. The court found that the responsibility was with Captain Dickson on the ground that he was only making an exhibition flight while M. Thomas was engaged in a competition and Captain Dickson ought to have foreseen and guarded against the possibility of a collision.

It ordered Captain Dickson to pay M. Thomas $1000 damages and $2000 to the company whose machine M. Thomas was piloting. Captain Dickson has further to pay eight-tenths of the costs of the action.

CLAIMS TUBERCULOSIS IS NOT INHERITABLE

PARIS, July 19.—The general belief that tuberculosis is hereditary is declared to be erroneous by Dr. Calmette, director of the Lillie Pasteur Institute. The doctor has submitted statistics to the Paris Faculty of Sciences, compiled from the examination of 4000 subjects, which he believes prove conclusively that the real cause of tuberculosis is infection, and not hereditary refection coming after birth.

Of all the children less than one year of age which Dr. Calmette examined only 9 per cent were found to be contaminated with tuberculosis. After that age the percentage increased rapidly. Between 1 and 2 years of age 22 per cent of the subjects proved contaminated; between 2 and 5, 53 per cent; between 5 and 15, 90 per cent; and over 15 years of age, 97 per cent.

CONSTRUCT AEROPLANE FROM STOLEN MATERIAL

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)
PARIS, July 19.—Stealing a motor car is a very common occurrence in France, but up to now aeroplanes have been left alone. A stolen aeroplane has just been discovered in a shed at Courbevoie.

For some time past aeroplane accessories had been missing daily from works in the Boulevard Bourdon at Neuilly. The police were informed, and an inquiry was instituted. The works were closely watched by detectives, and after a few days the thieves were discovered. They were three men employed at the works. Two of them, Russian subjects, had been arrested. The thieves had rented a garage at Courbevoie, and the detectives found an aeroplane constructed entirely with the stolen materials. All that was lacking was spread over a long period and the value of the accessories is put at several thousand francs.

ENGLISHMEN PILFERING ISLANDS IN PACIFIC

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)
PARIS, July 12.—French islands in the Pacific are being pilfered, the French colonial office finds out, by private companies and individuals.

In one case, it is stated that a native named Tassara, of Tahiti, who acts as a kind of local surveyor for the French government, sold three islands to an English company. The documents of title which Tassara produced are alleged to be fraudulent. The French government is now suing the English company for the return of its territory.

Novel, But Expensive Manner to Get Into French Society.

PARIS, July 19.—The business of paid society chaperones is increasing here, largely on account of the demand by wealthy American women. One can get a society chaperon on precisely the same principle that one can hire a good guide to the Louvre.

The cost depends upon circumstances. First of all a lump sum, varying from $2500 to $5000, is given as a preliminary. It is much easier for the chaperon to obtain invitations to functions given in hotels than in private houses.

Sometimes the charge is particularly large to have her name appear in a list of people of recognized distinction. When the amiable chaperon arranges a dinner party, for instance, she is the hostess. She invites some of the very best people at her disposal. Her presence is one of the guests. Next day the society columns of the newspapers announce that Madame X gave a dinner, and among the guests were the Duke and Duchess of etc.

Two of her most widely known guests. The salaried chaperon charges her protégée $100 a plate for this service.

The chaperon gives a fashionable musical. The same principle applies to luncheons, theater parties and receptions. One who devotes her whole season to her protégée.

FRANCE NEEDS

Socialist Leader Argues in Favor of Seven-Year Enlistment.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)
The present condition of France is a fruitful topic for writers. When Germany announced her decision to greatly strengthen her army there was no doubt in the minds of many thinkers that she was making preparations for what they describe as "the decisive hour." It became necessary for Frenchmen who think and write, to take stock of the position of their country.

The danger which threatened France rose to the occasion, and none more readily than M. de Mun, who was writing a book which is being much discussed just now.

The duty which lies before France is clearly indicated by M. de Mun, reviewer of the book.

At the present time, when the author discusses at length and with the real reason for writing the book—the necessity of France returning to the three years' military system. M. Jaures, the Socialist leader, as an antagonist of militarism, has done his best to oppose the government. One of his arguments was that the great Marshal Bugeaud attacked the three years' system. It is true the great soldier attacked it, but his opponent, the government, won on one of the questions when the author discusses at length and with the real reason for writing the book—the necessity of France returning to the three years' military system.

Socialist leader wanted to make out, three years was too long a period for a man to serve in the army, but because it was too short; he wanted the period to be seven years.

MORAL EFFECT.
The decision of France to make every sacrifice to maintain her position has produced a great moral effect in Europe, and particularly in Germany. A few months ago France was represented in this country as a degenerate nation, incapable of resistance. It was suggested that German armaments would be sufficient to intimidate her. Though she might make a financial sacrifice in keeping with her wealth, she would never, it was said, have the energy to make a military effort. Then the three years' law was introduced. This move caused great surprise in Germany, where the hope was entertained that the country would rise up against the proposal. When, however, all classes, with the exception of the Socialists, accepted the sacrifice, there was consternation which soon turned into jealous admiration. M. Fuguet considers that the moral effect of passing the army bill will be like winning a battle.

RUSSIAN SOLDIERS
CLAIMED AFFRONT

Accused Foreigners Promptly
Arrested and Charged; Officials Apologize Later.

LONDON, July 12.—Captain Francis Hamilton, a well-known Hull Territorial just returned from Russia, related a remarkable adventure which befell him while he was staying at the principal hotel in Helsinki. He was in conversation with two Finnish gentlemen in the smoking-room, when a troop of Russian soldiers passed the window.

Five minutes later four police sergeants and an inspector entered and accused one of the party of having shown their contempt of Russian soldiers by having spat upon them from the hotel window. Despite their indignant denials, Captain Hamilton and the other two were arrested and marched through the streets to the police-station, where they were charged with the offense.

After being detained some time they were released. Thereupon the captain put the facts before the British consul, who telegraphed to the Russian ambassador.

Mr. Mark Sykes, M. P., got the Foreign Office to intervene, and Captain Hamilton has now obtained an ample apology from Russian officials.

WOMAN CAN SWEAR;
IT IS HER RIGHT

EVANSVILLE, Ind., July 19.—Judge McCoy of the City Court has decided that a woman has a legal right to say "damn." Mrs. Kate Graham had an argument with her landlord several days ago over the rent and, according to her story in court, she used these words to the landlord.

"I will not pay you a damned cent until I find out whether the house is condemned," she said.

Mrs. Graham was arrested, but discharged, the court holding that under the circumstances she was justified in using the word "damn."

SNAKE BADLY BITTEN

WALLA WALLA, Wash., July 19.—John Schumely, a Russian Pole, is in a hospital in a dangerous condition as a result of a rattlesnake bite. Schumely entered a meat market where the snake was displayed, said he was a snake charmer and asked for the snake, which was given him. As he pulled it from its cage he was bitten on the leg.

The officers were afraid to take the reptile from him. W. Reay, a summer's mate in the United States navy, put him into putting the snake in a sack. A physician lanced the swollen arm and Schumely was taken to a hospital.

LONDON SEASON FLAT
BUT SOCIETY LINGERS

Hotels Absolutely Filled Up Until September

LONDON, July 19.—Society has given up the present season as a mystery. Everyone describes it as flat and dull. Even London probably is fuller of well-to-do visitors than ever before and the amount of entertaining going on is absolutely unprecedented.

By every rule of the social code, the season should have finished this week, with every one of any importance making a real or supposed exit to Scotland or the continent. Yet all linger, while continental visitors continue to arrive and every liner adds to the enormous number of Americans already here.

"We have no set season now," said the manager of one of the largest hotels to a TRIBUNE correspondent today. "Our season continues all the year round."

"We are absolutely full up for August, which is supposed to be a dead month and we expect to be equally busy in September."

"Crowds of well known Americans who arrived later than usual have gone straight to the continent, on account of the heat of summer here."

BEST SEASON
There is no doubt from the monetary point of view, apart from the lamentations of society folk who bewail the absence of excitement, London has had the best season on record. The hotels without exception have been rolling in prosperity while the worst and tradesmen, who professionally declare trade always bad, confess in moments of candor that the volume of business this season has

GIRAFFE COMMITS SUICIDE IN ZOO

Unhappy Several Days, Deliberately Kills Herself Against Cage Bars.

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)
PARIS, July 19.—The largest giraffe in the Paris zoo—she was 15 feet high—has committed suicide from melancholia. She has been unhappy for several days, and she deliberately killed herself by banging her head against the bars of her cage. It was stated that the giraffe had been frightened by a man who had passed with a broom on his shoulder, and had rushed accidentally to death. The truth, however, seems to have more sentimental interest. The giraffe's great friend was a young collie dog, which was sold a few weeks ago. She missed her friend and companion, and did not find life worth living without him.

M. R. Poock, F. R. S., resident superintendent and curator of mammals at the zoo, said: "It is impossible for an animal to commit suicide in the sense understood by mankind," he said, "inasmuch as such an act presupposes a foreknowledge of death and its consequences."

LONDON COSTERS
MOURN THEIR KING

Chief T. J. Foyle, "King of Pearlies" Had "Great Human Heart."

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)
LONDON, July 19.—London costers have lost their chief, T. J. Foyle, "King of the Pearlies," whose funeral took place recently. Foyle died in the Royal free hospital after a brief illness, which had been brought on by undertaking a deed of kindness when in weak health. When in full dress Foyle wore a suit studded with 33,000 pearl buttons.

It was not so much his dazzling suit of pearls the envy of hundreds of his class—as his "great human heart" which won for Foyle the admiration of all with whom he came in contact. He was always one of the first to respond to the call of charity, and his sympathy with his fellow workers won for him the admiration of Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll. When Foyle lay in the Royal free hospital her royal highness sent her secretary to inquire as to his condition.

Hundreds of costers attended the funeral at East Finchley. The coffin and hearse were almost entirely hidden from view. Foyle's coat and cap of pearl buttons were placed on the coffin, whilst his donkey walked immediately behind the hearse. In the procession were pearl "princes" and "princesses" and street hawkers of every description.

RECOVERS SIGHT WHILE WEEPING AT GRAVESIDE

(Special to THE TRIBUNE by International News Service.)
LONDON, July 19.—Blind for eleven months of Manchester, who recovered his sight suddenly while weeping bitterly at the graveside of her grandmother. The facts of her previous blindness and present ability to see were confirmed by the doctors.

She is Catherine Welsh, a domestic servant of Manchester. Since her grandmother became ill a short time ago Katherine had prayed that she might be able to see her once again. She was able to take a last glimpse of the coffin.

Formerly very short sighted, she lost her vision eleven months ago, and had since been under medical treatment. Nothing had improved her sight, and she had given up hope of ever seeing again. "I am now the happiest girl in the world," she said. She can see to find her way, can distinguish persons a few yards off and was able to see a note book some yards away even in a gloomy room.

Mrs. Frank Wilbrog and her beautiful daughters of New York and Cincinnati, will visit North Berwick before returning to America in August.

Lady Cunard and M. Chabapin, the Russian basso, gave a musicale party on Wednesday night. It was an ultra smart affair. The great basso sang and the Russian quartet supplemented the program. Among the guests were the Duchess of Manchester, the Duchess of Rutland, Lady Diana Manners, the Duchess of Westminster, the Marchioness of Ripon, the Viscountess Carzon, Mrs. John Astor, Mrs. Hwa Williams and Lady Paget.

Geo. Gordon Moore of Chicago gave a merry dance in the form of a housewarming at 94 Lancaster Gate on Wednesday night.

These affairs showing how the gaiety of this "dull" season. The King and Queen have stepped into the breach by announcing a ball at Buckingham Palace on July 23 which will serve to keep the people in London another week.

WILL ITALY DO INJUSTICE TO EPIRUS?

CROWDS AWAITING TRIUMPHAL ENTRY OF CROWN PRINCE THROUGH CARPETED STREETS OF ARGYROCASTRO

WITH no further excuse to offer than that Greece, if possessed of both sides of the Canal of Corfu, will be able to menace the entrance to the Adriatic, Italy has pursued a policy with regard to the Greeks which is said to be as repellent to the civilized nations of the world as it is to the Greeks themselves. The argument which Italy advances for Albanian domination is so snailish that the real motives are but too clearly apparent and only serve to illustrate to what extremes of sophistry a nation may descend in justification of its political ambitions. European authorities say that the atrocity of Italy's policy becomes more than repellent when it is considered that this kingdom directly owes its unity to the principle of nationalities and the sympathies of all the liberal elements of Europe; that its efforts to subjugate Greece to the yoke of the Albanians, who are in every way an inferior race, evidences not only ingratitude and extreme selfishness, but become active revolutionary factors in the progress of the world.

DISTRICT OF EPIRUS.

The district of Epirus, of which Italy is seeking to deprive Greece, has produced many loyal patriots, ready to shed their last drop of blood to resist being made subjects of an inferior Musselman race like the Albanians. Every sense of equity, justice and right rebels against enlightenment and intelligence being dominated and governed by ignorance and rapaciousness. The inhabitants themselves bitterly oppose such a yoke; the large majority are Greeks; not only in language and sympathies, but in religion and it is evident that they do not intend to submit to the domination of an inferior race like the Albanians with negative ideas. Not only this, but in the district of Epirus there are great numbers of Greeks; even in the district of Valona, which lies farther north than the territory now claimed by Greece, there are some 45,000 Greeks. Despite this predominance of enlightenment which the greater numerical strength of the Greek assures, this territory is to be included in the future Albanian state which Italy plans.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

It is difficult to realize just what such a fate will mean to the Greeks. At present they are in enjoyment of the fruits of Greek culture and civilization, which even the Turkish officials have respected. They have shown themselves a peace-loving, law-abiding folk, ready for further education and advancement.

GIVEN AN OVATION.

At Argyrocastro, a great Greek center, which has produced many notable Greeks, including the brothers Zappa, great national benefactors of Greece, he was accorded the greatest ovation. This town contains 25,000 pupils.

Chimara, the coast district to the south of Valona, was the home of many of those who distinguished themselves in the Greek War of Independence. This district has now made up its mind that it is time for it to regain its independence and restoration to the common fatherland of Greece, and this is the spirit which manifests itself everywhere. Some months before the fall of Janina a brave Greek officer, a native of Chi-mar, established himself there with a band of thirty-five followers.

Arming the citizens, he held the fortress against the Turkish and Albanian troops until the Greek army of liberation arrived. The spirit of this town is the spirit of the other Greek towns; the men are ready to defend their rights and liberties with their life blood and to resist, to the last, every attempt to make them subjects of the Musselman race of the Albanians.

BILLIE BURKE OWNER OF FLOCK OF SHEEP

CHICAGO, July 19.—Just before Miss Billie Burke left for her vacation in Europe recently she added a herd of sheep to her live stock at Burnside, just the eastern corner home at the time of her departure. It is said that she kept the sheep in the house already crowded during the summer.

"I got that idea once when I was on a visit to Scotland," said Miss Burke, "over there they always have a herd of sheep around the house. They say they keep the grass down. It's the best thing for the lawn. I expect it will be a success here."

DOG WORTH $5000 HAS NERVOUS PROSTRATION

NEWPORT, N. I., July 19.—Hoo Too, the famous Chinese dog of Mrs. William H. Hoo, of Philadelphia, has been stricken down with nervous prostration, and there is a great deal to do about it. Hoo Too has been here less than two years, but it is said that he has been too much of the summer variety of dog.

Mrs. Hoo, in great despair, summoned Dr. Hoo, a dog specialist, from New York. He is expected tomorrow.

WOOD EXPORTS TOTAL BIG SUM

More Than One Hundred Million in Timber is Traffic.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 19.—More than 100 million dollars' worth of the products of the forests of the United States was sent out of the country in the fiscal year just ended, against less than half that sum in 1903, a decade ago, according to official figures of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. The total value of wood and manufactures derived therefrom during the fiscal year just ended amounted to approximately 120 million dollars and the bulk of this was in a crude or semi-manufactured condition.

Of the total value of the exports, approximately 100 million dollars for the year, boards, deals and staves, over 12 million; while the bulk of the manufactures, such as doors, sash, blinds, trimmings, woodwork, and furniture formed little more than 10 per cent of the total export of wood and manufactures therefrom. These figures of forest products exported do not include the value of the products of the sawmills, of which the exports amount to over 25 million dollars annually.

Pine and oak are the principal classes of timber being sent out of the country. As the approximately 120 million dollars' worth of wood and manufactures derived therefrom in the year just ended, 57 million dollars' worth was pine timber and lumber, and approximately 18 million dollars' worth was oak. Of that going out in the more completely manufactured form, lumber amounted to approximately 7 million dollars.

The whole world seems to be demanding the products of the American forests. The oak lumber exported in 1912, for which full details are available, was distributed to a dozen countries in Europe, about 10 countries in North and South America, and in smaller quantities to Asia, Oceania and Africa. The other classes of lumber exported went to more than 10 countries and colonies, including a score of countries in Europe; more than a score of countries in North America; practically every country in South America; a dozen countries in Asia; a dozen islands in Oceania, and various countries and colonies on the western, southern, and southern coasts of Africa.

Sticks and staves, ready for use in making boxes or barrels, had a wide distribution, and aggregated about 12 million dollars' value in the exports of 1912. Box staves go in large quantities to the countries and islands of North America, and in considerable quantities to South America, Asia, and Oceania; while Europe was by far the largest purchaser of the approximately 5 million dollars' worth of staves exported.

Pine, sash, and blinds go largely to British territory—the United Kingdom, Canada, the British West Indies, Australia, and British South Africa; though Argentina, Mexico, Cuba, and Santo Domingo are limited purchasers of the class. American furniture is also very widely distributed, going to more than a score of countries in Europe, and a number of countries and islands in North America, every country in South America, 25 countries and colonies in Asia, a dozen in Oceania, and more than a dozen countries, colonies and dependencies in Africa.

PARROT ON STAND TO DECIDE OWNERSHIP

CHICAGO, July 19.—"Hello, papa, hello, papa."

A parrot decided its ownership in Mrs. Joseph Wade's chambers by pecking on the head of one of two women and directing the above query at the judge.

The judge, incidentally, is a bachelor. He smiled good naturedly. The bird was awarded to Mrs. Clara Gunn of 222 West Chicago avenue, who had been arrested on complaint of Mrs. Mary Krippl of 100 West Superior street. Polly pecked on Mrs. Gunn's nose, and she said she did not want anything to do with the other woman.

Mrs. Gunn took the bird out of the apartment of the Krippls' house on July 15. She testified she had raised the parrot and that it was stolen from her four weeks ago.

MINES DOCTORS TREAT A PATIENT A MINUTE

JOHANNESBURG, July 19.—A remarkable new method published by the government department of labor in connection with the gold mine industry in the Rand district, has attracted the attention of the mining community. The attention given to the new method is due to the fact that the mining officials in Johannesburg are now making a study of the matter how serious may be the danger to the native population.

OPERATIC STAR FALLS IN LOVE MME. RAPPOLD SOON TO WED

NEW YORK, July 19.—Mme. Rappold, the wonderful Brooklyn singer, who has been a member of the Berlin Opera Company for the last two years, is in love. Everyone suspected this fact not long ago when she welcomed Herr Rudolph Berger, the German tenor and a member of the same troupe, in an extremely loving fashion at the Hoboken pier. Berger, it is said, came from the other side of the Atlantic to meet his fiancée, for the engagement has been announced—and ever since the two have been seen constantly together.

TRAIN STOPS IN TUNNEL; ALL NEARLY SUFFOCATED

ST. LOUIS, July 19.—Suffocating passengers of a Southern Railway train, staggered blindly through a mile-long tunnel when the engine, baggage and mail cars were derailed midway in the hours near New Albany, Ind. A dozen persons suffered from gases from the locomotive and sought safety by scrambling through the engine and baggage cars.

After the train was derailed, the passengers were nearly suffocated by the gases from the locomotive. It was an hour before some of the passengers could be fully revived.

SOCIETY

If you belong to a special smart set and are taking a vacation this year, you are invited to many unique festivities. They are out-of-door festivities for the most part, and your invitations read "A Bacon Bat," "A Fish Feast," "A Clambake," "A Moonlight Supper," "A Barbecue."

"A Bacon Bat" is all the rage in the Adirondacks, and at Tahoe, and in the Santa Cruz mountains the "Bacon Bats" are original forms of entertainment. The joy of it all is that the bacon is broiled by someone who knows how and the supper out-of-doors is served to guests who bring to the feast the keenest of appetites. "A Fish Feast" implies, of course, fish baked in ashes—the fish having a thick layer of moss around it. And those who know how to plan a "bacon bat" or a "fish feast" know also how to roast the potatoes and corn and how to toast the cheese.

At Newport there are clambakes innumerable, while on our own coast, at Monterey and Coronado the "moonlight supper" is the more popular form of entertainment.

The "barbecue" is popular, too, in Santa Barbara, and there also we find the "barbecue" which has come down to us with many of our other Spanish traditions. The most successful barbecues are those given at the Hacienda, and Mrs. Hearst has made the barbecue an annual event. It is always given on the Fourth of July, in the big picnic ground in the Pleasanton hills.

The William Searns, who have a most delightful country home at Aptos, also give charming barbecues, where all the details are carried out with much regard to the traditions of early Spanish days.

To cast away dull care, to amuse one's self and one's guests is the order of life in the summer time.

Tennis is having a very strong revival in the East and many women who find golf a trifle strenuous are proving expert wielders of the racket. Tennis, with afternoon tea on the lawn, offers an ideal entertainment for a summer day.

Del Monte is arranging for its annual "month of sports," and four days of polo, beginning August 29, are announced. The annual golf tournament, which attracts players from all over the Pacific coast, will begin September 6 and end on the 15th, and the tournament will be followed by several days of tennis.

Afternoon dancing is the order of the hour at Newport, and the fad for the unsauve is steadily pushing to the foreground in social affairs here, for it is beginning to be a feature of the afternoon affairs at the Menlo and Burlingame clubs.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish has given two "dances" at her home, The Crossways, in Newport. A famous orchestra played for the guests, who danced from 5 till 7 o'clock. Mrs. Fish is one of the well-known hostesses of America, and she announces a big "Mother Goose Ball" for the evening of August 1. There are great possibilities in a "Mother Goose Ball," for one may meet all the old familiar friends true to the life. For the friends in books are sometimes much more read than the friends in our own world. And how charming it must be to meet "Little Boy Blue," "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son," "Old Mother Hubbard," "Little Bo-peep," "The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe," "Mary, Quite Contrary," "Old King Cole," "The Queen of Hearts," "The Knave of Hearts," and good old "Mother Goose" herself. It is playtime in summer time, and a "Mother Goose Ball" is quite the best form of play that can be devised.

Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs will give a large dinner on the night of Mrs. Fish's ball, and the guests will go later to the ball.

Many midsummer entertainments are planned for the young people who have come all the way home from the East for the midsummer vacation. Many of them have studied hard and have brought home fine records to show for their work, and they deserve all that their families can do for them in the way of entertainment.

While many people are away they are still many prominent people in town and among those whom one meets almost daily are:

At intervals along the route a ball would be made and an impromptu Indian dance would be given, to the delight of the spectators.

One wonders if hereafter that will be the dominating idea of the Parisians in regard to Americans—that we live in a land in which Indians are the center of what may be called a wild and woolly West.

SYMPATHY EXTENDED TO MRS. LILLIAN EVERTS.

All her friends are very sorry, indeed, for the painful accident which befell Mrs. Lillian Everts this week.

pital for some time to come. Mrs. Everts, with her family, was planning to leave for Shasta Springs, and in the final preparations for departure she climbed a ladder to close a skylight. She was precipitated to the floor and the result of her fall was a very serious break of the hip.

Mrs. Everts is the president of the Woman's Exchange, and all its members, besides a host of other dear friends, are sending loving messages of cheer. If good wishes could lighten the burden of pain, Mrs. Everts would not be ill very long.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Brown and Miss Florinne Brown are remaining in town to be near Mrs. Everts in these days of illness.

INCESSANT DEMAND FOR AUCTION RULES.

An incessant demand by women in the smart set is for news of the latest rules in "Auction Bridge." Women who are in the East this summer, or abroad, will return home with the latest developments, and it will take some time for the stay-at-homes if they do not accomplish some good studying on their own part, to catch up with them.

Experts tell us that auction bridge is almost perfect now, since skill will count for more. Auction will not change very much more, for now we have given the player with a poor hand just as good a chance as the lucky player with five cards. And that is done by means of "mellos."

There are no trump cards, and you bid on a bad hand instead of a good one. Your object is to take as few tricks as possible, the fewer you take the more you score. If you get the bid at no mello, you are safe if you take six tricks, because you don't take the odd, and you have ten points. If you take but five tricks you score twenty—and so on.

When you bid two mellos you dare take but five tricks—when you bid three mellos you dare take but four—and so on. It is very difficult to play because your partner's hand is the dummy, and exposed of course, and because every one is going to throw away all sorts of cards, and make you take tricks if possible. But it equalizes the game and makes it absolutely fair, and it makes it impossible for a player to sit a whole afternoon with cards in one hand but unable to play the game. She can bid "a mello" and have the time of her life seeing her friends throw away aces and kings. Good players are very enthusiastic over "the mello" in the East, and it is only a question of time until it is played everywhere out here.

AMERICANS POPULAR IN FOREIGN SOCIETY.

London and Paris are full of Americans and each day chronicles more arrivals. Those who came in on the Mauretania last week had a bitter experience, illustrating the necessity of engaging accommodations in advance. The special train arrived in London at 3 a. m., and for two or three hours afterward "a number of cabs, laden with enormous piles of luggage, might have been seen crawling from hotel to hotel, with the occupants vainly seeking a bed in which to rest their weary limbs."

All the leading hotels still have "house full" signs out, and some difficulty is experienced by the managers in accommodating customers who have engaged rooms long in advance.

Americans are very popular in the heart of social affairs. In London the Duke and Duchess of Lancaster gave a large dance, and among the Americans present were Lady Graham and Mrs. Brinkley.

Doctor's Boyish Face Reveals Skin Renewer

I heard the other day the story of the physician with so admirable a skin that all his women patients asked the secret. He told one who generously told others, that knowing the remarkable absorbent property of ordinary mercurized wax, he concluded this substance would make an excellent complexion renewer and preserver. Knowing the wax could not harm the skin, he began using it after shaving. He soon observed that his skin was being gradually and replaced by younger, healthier skin. This was the simple secret of the silver-haired doctor with the boyish face.

The secret became public property. Now women everywhere use mercurized wax, applying it nightly like cold cream, washing it off morning—continuing until the complexion is entirely renovated. An ounce of this wax, procurable at any druggist's, will banish the worst complexion.

Another valuable rejuvenator used by this doctor was a wrinkle-remover and preventive in the form of a face bath, made by dissolving an ounce of sal-hold are home at New Place, Burlingame, and the vacation will mean a tale of happy days for them. Miss Ethel has studied hard along musical lines, one of her masters being Jean de Reszke of Paris. She has a lovely voice and is a sweet talented and very cultured girl. William Crocker Jr. has finished his second year in Yale, with much honor, and he was of the varsity crew in the recent Yale-Harvard race. Miss Helen Crocker has attended a fine school in Baltimore this year, and one hears that she bids fair to be as charming and unspoiled a girl as her sister.

The Newhalls are planning to entertain for their son and many of the girls who have been at school in the East this season are planning to bring home Eastern girl friends to spend the summer in California. The passing days tell a delightful summer for young and old. There is plenty of excitement for those who need it, and there are quiet, restful days for those natures attuned to harmony, those to whom tranquility and peace bring a special appeal.

FASCINATING FASHIONS OF PRESENT DAY.

No matter what people may say about them there is something very fascinating in the fashions of today. There is something cheerful about them, too, for the color tones are bright and are of distinct value in the cheerfulness of a social assembly.

every one at Burlingame has one also, and we are beginning to see them on our streets and in our hotels and theaters. Some of the little jackets, for they are not disguised enough to be called coats, are very amusing, for some of them are fashioned out of all sorts of odds and ends. For instance, one seen at Burlingame was a lace bolero, having a rose pink lining and reaching only half way to the waist. It was finished about its lower edge with a wide flowered ribbon, the background of this being black and the colors of the flowers very gay. Another of red taffeta was bordered with printed sponge, the entire garment scarcely covering the waist line, and still another, shaped like a tremendously loose kimono, was made of bright yellow crepe de chine and all the folds of the kimono were trimmed with a wide white ribbon.

The principal thing in regard to these most fashionable garments is that they are all light, airy, and ingeniously being their first requisite. The shapes vary from the bolero to the little tailed coats and from what is called "saute au barque," a queer pointed shaped affair, to the "man-tel," a jacket that is neither that nor a cape, but a combination of the two. There is nothing that is more in the mode than these odd coats, and the indications are that they will take their place, possibly in a different guise, among the early fall styles.

And all the women who are wearing the latest effects from the East and Europe are wearing costumes in black and white, and the color scheme is so arranged that it is wonderfully effective.

FRIENDS WORRY OVER THEIR CONDITION.

Two Americans abroad this month have been the cause of much uneasiness to their friends. President Benjamin Ide Wheeler and Peter Martin, President Wheeler has been very ill indeed of over work and he will have to spend many weeks at the famous "Bad Nauheim," taking the cure there, and the needed rest. The Garrett McEninys go there every summer.

President Wheeler ought to have rested instead of taking the long trip to Germany and in Berlin there were many social entertainments and much for him to do, so it is little wonder that he had nervous exhaustion. It is hoped that the same applies to Bad Nauheim will be able to do a good deal for him and that his recovery may be complete.

Peter Martin has also been very ill with a mental collapse, and it was feared that he would not be able to leave his home in California. Friends here are on his way home, his brother having gone to New York to meet the steamer and the good climate of California will soon restore him to health.

MANY PERSONS DUE TO RETURN SOON.

Many people will return to town

Tahoe and Yosemite valley are said to have the best climates of the year in August and September.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Driscoll and Mr. and Mrs. Christian de Guigni have been among the guests entertained by the Frederick Kohls at Bellevue, their Tahoe home.

Captain and Mrs. Clarence Kempff have also a home at Tahoe, and among their guests this summer have been Captain Kempff and Miss Cornelia Kempff, Mrs. Brigham and Miss Kate Brigham.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parcells are also in Los Angeles, which was the former home of Mrs. Parcells and where they have many friends. Their

Among the young people who will spend July days out of town is Miss Myra Hall, who will be the guest of Mrs. Hall's mother, Frederick Hall, who is building a beautiful home on Mountain avenue in Piedmont and it will be ready for occupancy in the late autumn.

There will be many changes of residences to chronicle in the coming season. The Edward Lacy Brattons are to take a house for the winter, having sold their own home to the Capwells. The Edward Hall home on Crocker Highlands will be ready in the autumn, and all through the Piedmont section of the city well-known people are building new homes.

Both young people are well known in social and fraternal circles on both sides of the bay, and the formal announcement of their engagement comes as a pleasant surprise to their friends. Miss Tracy is the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tracy, who are pioneer residents of Oakland, and is a talented musician.

Woodward is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. William Woodward. The wedding date has not been definitely set but it will be celebrated in October with a hospital mass at St. Patrick's church.

Health and Beauty Advice

BY MRS. MAE MARTIN

Katie: I advise you to use this formula for a hair-tonic, because to my personal knowledge it does more for the hair and scalp than anything else and is easy to make. Into 1 pint alcohol pour 1 ounce quinquina and add 1 pint water. This quinquina tonic quickly stops the itching and cures the dandruff and is soothing to a sore or tender scalp. The regular use of this inexpensive tonic effects oiliness because it makes the scalp and hair-sacs healthy; and to dull, brittle, faded hair will give a brilliancy and softness, and restores the former color. For best results it is well to shampoo with quinquina. (See answer to Letter.)

Lydia: Yes, rubbing pyroxin on eyebrows will induce them to grow thick and glossy. Apply pyroxin at lash-roots with thumb and forefinger and they will grow long, silky and curly. This treatment is unailing, but be careful not to get any pyroxin where hair is not wanted.

Mabel P.: A thick paste made of deodorant and water, and applied to those parts of the face where the skin is rough, dissolves them. After the deodorant is removed the skin should be washed and treated with a good cream. You must, however, be sure it is deodorant you get.

Bertha: Yes, exercise and dieting sometimes reduce your weight. An easy diet, however, may be the best way.

Parisian treatment. This reducer is made by adding 4 ounces paraffin to 14 pints of water. When it cools, take one tablespoonful three times each day. Keep up the paraffin treatment regularly and in a short while you will have gotten rid of the superfluous fat and your figure will be gracefully plump and nicely proportioned and the skin will be tight and smooth.

Laura: Your dull eyes will take on a delightful sparkle and expression when 2 or 3 drops of a crustos tonic are put in the eyes.

The rooms were decorated in the club colors of yellow and blue, and yellow lanterns were festooned about the walls. A buffet supper was served at midnight, after which the merry crowd danced several additional numbers before making their adieu.

The settee club is composed of about a dozen young women who are hostesses at a number of pleasant affairs. of the Gem of the Pacific, will be seen in a series of dances that are marked for their beauty and fascination. The Hawaiian singers and instrumentalists are also more than attractive with the weirdly, mournful beautiful music from native instruments and steel strung guitars.

It is the motive of the police "third degree" that Harrison Armstrong and Clay M. Greene have based their compelling playlet, "The Police Inspector," in which Scott Sidney and his able company appear as a special added attraction. The exposition of the cruelties of the "modern inquisition" is thrilling and the theme which controls the action of the drama is convincing and grips with fascination.

Miss Belle Oliver, the "Tetrazzini" of ragtime, is another person of importance whose appearance will add much to the program. Coocean and Fox have a dancing specialty in which their comedy dialogue is said to prove a veritable riot. The Florence troupe of European acrobats in "Fun in a Restaurant," Zalfredo, master musician with the violin and comedy names that have since shone brightly on the Great White Way were once modestly displayed on the park programs. The first musical comedy, "Quarter to Four," by local writers that has ever been presented will be given its premiere in the capricious amphitheater tomorrow night with the full strength of the Idora cast for the various roles and with every effort of the management which may add to the effectiveness of the production.

It's no easy task to stage a new play—anyone who thinks it is should see a company in the throes of rehearsal. It is all new, untold and only the precedents of former pieces of the same type to be depended upon. And in this case the play to be given is so different in many respects that it is difficult to find a precedent. Of course Ferris Hartman and John Raynes are both experienced men at this sort of work. The genial "Teddy" is staging the show and "Jack" Raynes is carrying the musical end of it.

The new piece is called "Quarter to Four," and if there's anything in a name, it should be a success. For it has, in the parlance of the day "got people guessing."

The libretto is the joint work of Adam Hull Shirk, a local newspaper man and Edward Gage, an Oakland composer. The music was written by Shirk and the music composed by Gage. If the task of "putting on" a musical comedy is almost herculean, the work of writing and composing such an offering is scarcely less and the authors have worked indefatigably to produce something that will please the arbiters of the stage—the public.

Manager E. L. York has received many manuscripts from aspiring (and probably perspiring) writers. Few possessed the requisite qualifications but "Quarter to Four" seemed to possess merit of an unusual character and so was chosen from the many for production.

While the plot and situations of the new piece are more or less absurd—after the manner of musical comedies—there is nevertheless a consistent story and the characters are all of an entertaining sort. The music promises to develop several hits and it is safe to say that "Maybelle" and "My Hindu Love," two of the numbers, will be whistled and sung long after its run.

REBEKAH. Ida M. Tarbell, O. P., held an enjoyable session last Saturday evening. At the close of the business meeting a reception was tendered the "newly weds."

The grand was recently married to a prominent young Odd Fellow and Rebekah, the couple being Sister Lillian Salter and Brother Will Sturgeon. The four bridesmaids who officiated at the wedding, Sisters Leonora Maggini, Nellie Keym, Stella Burleson and Etta Knox, preceded the bride and her father, and they were met by the groom and best man, Bruce Burleson, where they were presented to the assemblage. Sister Maggini in behalf of the lodge, gave them a set of silverware.

Dancing was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

LADIES OF MACCABEES. Oakland Hive No. 14, L. O. T. A., held its regular review Thursday evening, July 17. Last Monday, night the entire team went to Albany and put on the work of the second degree and much praise was given the officers and guards by the state commander, Mrs. Aydelotte, for the impressive manner in which the work was performed. A number of Oakland Hive members are planning a trip to Santa Cruz, where they will attend a rally.

After the business of the hive, the members played games. The sewing bee held its regular meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. F. Webb.

Oakland Tent, No. 17, met in regular review Monday evening, July 14. The attendance was large and the meeting was one of unusual interest. Three applications were received, four candidates were initiated and the lodge was allowed and ordered paid. The list of sick and disabled members was lengthy. Sir Knight Wm. S. Foss was reported in a serious condition.

The following officers were installed: W. J. Arvan, commander; L. Sunol, lieutenant commander; W. D. McQuarrie, chaplain; H. G. Sexton, sergeant; A. M. V. Nielson, master-at-arms; G. A. Klein, first master of the guards; R. W. John, second master of the guards; J. D. Slone, sentinel; J. W. Blain, picket; J. A. Hildrich, past commander.

Great Commander E. W. Hall was the installing officer. The past commander was the recipient of a handsome jewel, the great commander making the presentation.

The baseball committee reported progress. The team will play at Wood street, last Sunday. The Oakland team will soon have new suits. Past Commander Joe Elliott of Argonaut Tent was a welcome visitor. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

MOTHER TO SON. Later the mother writes to her son, who is a political prisoner in France.

Your sisters are all well. They are, as usual, very busy acquiring knowledge. They are learning Spanish, Italian, French and German; also the harp and the flute. At this moment Marianna is studying Euclid. Anne and Frances are at the piano. Isabelle is drawing and Maria is occupied with her French.

But learning did not fill all their time. Five beautiful girls with an ardent love of society kept a faithful mother busy in the days when chaperonage was in itself an occupation. It is not to be wondered at that the intrepid old lady lamented that she must send cards for her ball to 500 people, for that meant 1000 to 1200 courtesies, "and you know courtesies are deeper than year," she writes.

QUEEN VICTORIA. Many stories are told of Queen Victoria, among them the famous one of the meeting with Carlyle.

In this connection it is agreeable to read of Carlyle's unabashed claim to the heraldic of the past has been a case against the twentieth-century author. Ellen Glasgow is a healthy and pre-eminently that same, because of "Virginia," Virginia who rings her own death knell, Virginia who herself makes you see that the Virginia kind of woman, the heroine of the past, simply won't do.

FAIR TREATMENT. Let us read "Virginia," as in taking Virginia with Miss Glasgow, you are taking a heroine of the past, but fairer treatment than in Miss Glasgow's hands.

In reply to the question, what kind of a heroine would suffice, Miss Glasgow's answer is significant:

"What will do? Along that line of maternity, maternal feeling will do. But the world is not a mother. The truth is that the world wants and is going to have, something bigger than mere maternal instinct."

MATERNAL FEELING. "They (women) know that what is really high is maternal feeling, the maternity that can brood, not only over its nearest and dearest, but on out over the world. Men don't encourage that in women. They ridicule it, oppose its development, see it as a threat to their own proprietary concern in women. They exalt maternal instinct and belittle maternal feeling. They resent woman's extended application of her own motherliness, they accuse her of desertion, of treachery, of Mrs. Jellybushism, if she so much as weeps over a baby's grief."

And so the women of the past, they had their own garden gate. They admit, they insist upon the weaker virtues in women. How they have loved, and used, that dear old picture of the clinging vine. But for men's own sakes it's high time the vine stopped clinging. The vine has pretty and graceful hanging to the oak, but it really ought to be the oak that the vine is clinging to.

"Virginia," from a man's viewpoint, is certainly worthy of consideration.

ADAMS AND TARRELL. There are writers in our magazines today and in our books who try to satisfy the public in the most interesting period in which we live. There is a new school of writers, a new school of judgment and ability who can write the vital facts of progress for all the public to read. Two women are added to the list. Jane Adams of Hull House, and Ida M. Tarbell, whose courage and high ability, truth and honesty, her high place in the world of letters. So any work recommended by Miss Tarbell must be of very special interest to a reading public.

She recently wrote to Daniel Carson Goodman, the author of Hagar Revelly, the following letter:

"Hagar Revelly" is an unusually sound piece of work. You seem to have gone direct to life for your material and to have dealt honestly and reverently with what you have found. This is the way that life runs with girls like Hagar. She ought to be more illuminating than many plays about the world of letters. So any work recommended by Miss Tarbell must be of very special interest to a reading public.

ALCAZAR. Forrest Stanley, who returns to the Alcazar theater tomorrow evening to serve as Bessie Barricade's co-star during the remainder of her season there, is well and favorably remembered by San Francisco's play patrons, for he was Laureate Taylor's leading man when she was under Belasco and Meyer's management last season, and he then proved himself to be an actor richly endowed with personal magnetism and histrionic ability.

James Forbes, a successful musician, company, "The Traveling Salesman," which will be the medium of Mr. Stanley's reappearance in the O'Farrell-street home of drama, was chosen because it enabled him to score an emphatic hit in the East and affords Miss Barricade almost equal opportunity to do effective work. He will be seen as Bob Blake, a typical commercial tourist, and she as Beth Elliott, the pretty ticket-seller at a village railroad station in the middle west. These two characters are surrounded by more than a dozen others, each of whom is familiar to anyone who has studied the inhabitants of a small town.

After the business of the hive, the members played games. The sewing bee held its regular meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. F. Webb.

MATERNAL FEELING. "They (women) know that what is really high is maternal feeling, the maternity that can brood, not only over its nearest and dearest, but on out over the world. Men don't encourage that in women. They ridicule it, oppose its development, see it as a threat to their own proprietary concern in women. They exalt maternal instinct and belittle maternal feeling. They resent woman's extended application of her own motherliness, they accuse her of desertion, of treachery, of Mrs. Jellybushism, if she so much as weeps over a baby's grief."

And so the women of the past, they had their own garden gate. They admit, they insist upon the weaker virtues in women. How they have loved, and used, that dear old picture of the clinging vine. But for men's own sakes it's high time the vine stopped clinging. The vine has pretty and graceful hanging to the oak, but it really ought to be the oak that the vine is clinging to.

"Virginia," from a man's viewpoint, is certainly worthy of consideration.

ADAMS AND TARRELL. There are writers in our magazines today and in our books who try to satisfy the public in the most interesting period in which we live. There is a new school of writers, a new school of judgment and ability who can write the vital facts of progress for all the public to read. Two women are added to the list. Jane Adams of Hull House, and Ida M. Tarbell, whose courage and high ability, truth and honesty, her high place in the world of letters. So any work recommended by Miss Tarbell must be of very special interest to a reading public.

She recently wrote to Daniel Carson Goodman, the author of Hagar Revelly, the following letter:

"Hagar Revelly" is an unusually sound piece of work. You seem to have gone direct to life for your material and to have dealt honestly and reverently with what you have found. This is the way that life runs with girls like Hagar. She ought to be more illuminating than many plays about the world of letters. So any work recommended by Miss Tarbell must be of very special interest to a reading public.

ALCAZAR. Forrest Stanley, who returns to the Alcazar theater tomorrow evening to serve as Bessie Barricade's co-star during the remainder of her season there, is well and favorably remembered by San Francisco's play patrons, for he was Laureate Taylor's leading man when she was under Belasco and Meyer's management last season, and he then proved himself to be an actor richly endowed with personal magnetism and histrionic ability.

James Forbes, a successful musician, company, "The Traveling Salesman," which will be the medium of Mr. Stanley's reappearance in the O'Farrell-street home of drama, was chosen because it enabled him to score an emphatic hit in the East and affords Miss Barricade almost equal opportunity to do effective work. He will be seen as Bob Blake, a typical commercial tourist, and she as Beth Elliott, the pretty ticket-seller at a village railroad station in the middle west. These two characters are surrounded by more than a dozen others, each of whom is familiar to anyone who has studied the inhabitants of a small town.

Oakland Tent, No. 17, met in regular review Monday evening, July 14. The attendance was large and the meeting was one of unusual interest. Three applications were received, four candidates were initiated and the lodge was allowed and ordered paid. The list of sick and disabled members was lengthy. Sir Knight Wm. S. Foss was reported in a serious condition.

The following officers were installed: W. J. Arvan, commander; L. Sunol, lieutenant commander; W. D. McQuarrie, chaplain; H. G. Sexton, sergeant; A. M. V. Nielson, master-at-arms; G. A. Klein, first master of the guards; R. W. John, second master of the guards; J. D. Slone, sentinel; J. W. Blain, picket; J. A. Hildrich, past commander.

Great Commander E. W. Hall was the installing officer. The past commander was the recipient of a handsome jewel, the great commander making the presentation.

The baseball committee reported progress. The team will play at Wood street, last Sunday. The Oakland team will soon have new suits. Past Commander Joe Elliott of Argonaut Tent was a welcome visitor. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

But learning did not fill all their time. Five beautiful girls with an ardent love of society kept a faithful mother busy in the days when chaperonage was in itself an occupation. It is not to be wondered at that the intrepid old lady lamented that she must send cards for her ball to 500 people, for that meant 1000 to 1200 courtesies, "and you know courtesies are deeper than year," she writes.

FAIR TREATMENT. Let us read "Virginia," as in taking Virginia with Miss Glasgow, you are taking a heroine of the past, but fairer treatment than in Miss Glasgow's hands.

In reply to the question, what kind of a heroine would suffice, Miss Glasgow's answer is significant:

All Deadly Disease Germs.

WHAT will science do next for humanity? One by one the old problems are being solved. One by one the old curses are being alleviated. Man can see ahead now to a time when the world we live in will be a perfect habitation—when pain will have been abolished and when disease will be unknown.

Having practically conquered sleeping sickness, appendicitis, cholera, and other diseases that pestered mankind since Adam contracted his first headache, the medical wizards of the earth are looking for new worlds to conquer. Are they on the eve of learning the secret of dread tuberculosis? Is cancer about to yield up its untimely death and give way under the tireless research of mankind?

It is generally agreed that a new discovery is now due.

It is only in the last century that we have learned that most of the diseases are caused by deadly bacteria. The greater part of the human race die of the various infectious diseases, tuberculosis alone carrying off one-seventh of all who are born. It was Dr. Rudolph Virchow who first demonstrated the fact now universally accepted that disease is the behavior of the body cells under the influence of an injurious environment. This fact was the foundation for the modern science of bacteriology.

France, that has always been among the first nations to encourage scientific thought and discovery, was ready to welcome and aid any young man who was ready to enter on this important study. Louis Pasteur was the first to offer his services, and he was given a laboratory and money to carry on his research. At this time the silk industry was suffering from some unknown cause. Pasteur began his work by showing that fermentation is caused by germs in the air. After five years of investigation he demonstrated the cause of the disease to be bacteria and devised a remedy that saved the silk industry.

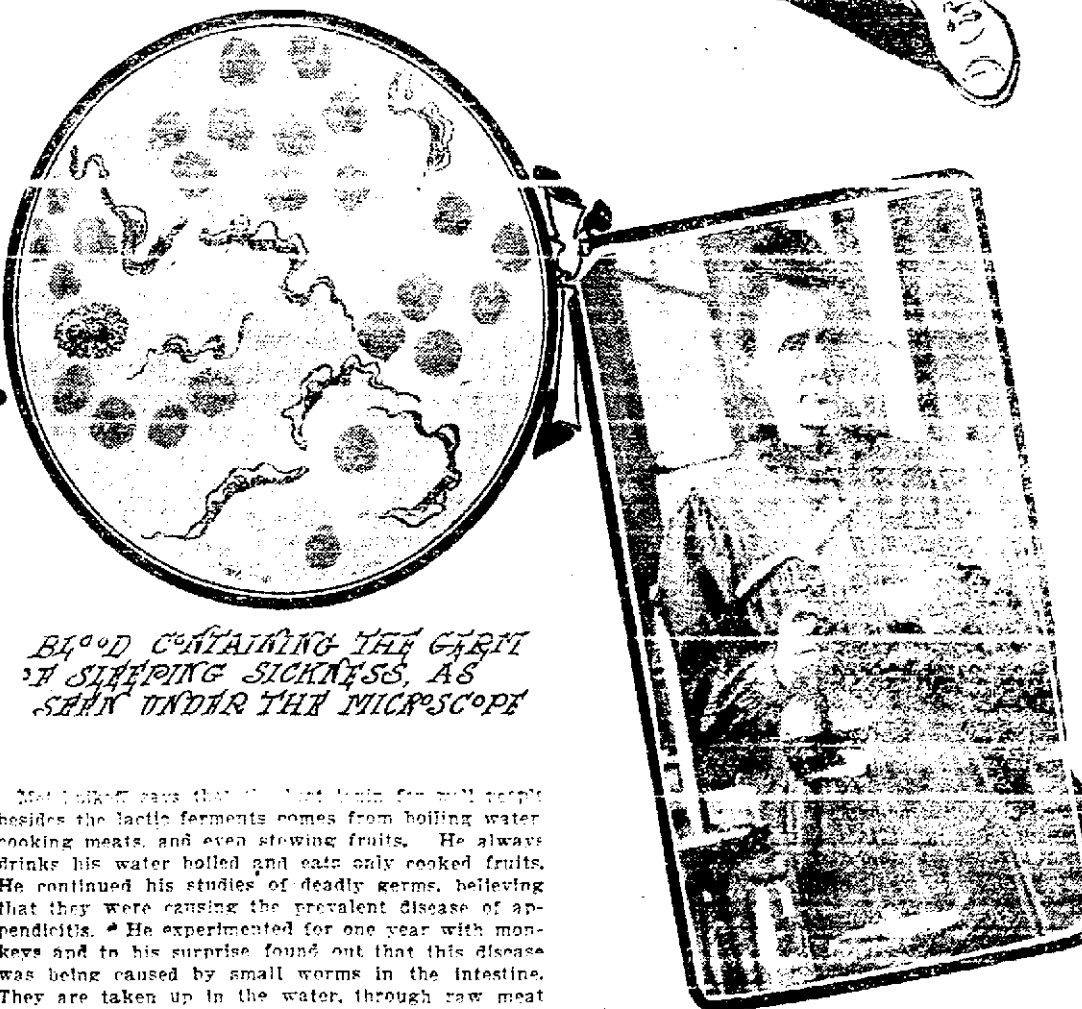

Mechnikoff an Original Investigator.

One of the ablest and best known of these investigators is Dr. Emil Roux. He is now the sub-director of the Pasteur Institute, and began his work by helping Pasteur in his last researches for rabies. Then he worked with Dr. Jensen, and their joint researches led to the discovery of the cause of diphtheria. He continued his work until he found the serum to cure it. In April, 1903, the Institute of France honored this work by giving him the prize of Osiris, which is $4,000.

THE LATE DR. ROBERT KOCH

Mechnikoff is another of the scientists who has done most of his work in the Pasteur Institute. Though a Russian by birth he came to Paris when still a young man, believing that it offered better opportunities for his research. He was one of the older men who were working there by his original way of looking at things. After some patient work he made the statement that men and women die and grow old early because of harmful germs in the intestines, and that these are not present at birth. Lactic ferments, he claimed, easily accustom themselves to the intestines and these produce a beneficial influence—they destroy the harmful germs, they help regulate the important organs of the body. These ferments may be taken either in milk that has become acid under their influence, in the form of a powder, or compressed tablets.

BLOOD CONTAINING THE GERM OF SLEEPING SICKNESS, AS SEEN UNDER THE MICROSCOPE

The lactic acid comes from boiling water cooking meats, and even stowing fruits. He always drinks his water boiled and eats only cooked fruits. He continued his studies of deadly germs, believing that they were causing the prevalent disease of appendicitis. He experimented for one year with monkeys and to his surprise found out that this disease was being caused by small worms in the intestines. They are taken up in the water, through raw meat and salads and vegetables grown under ground. After satisfying himself that this was the cause he found a serum to combat the disease. In some cases it has proved satisfactory, few of the monkeys suffering with appendicitis when inoculated with the serum having died, and it has also helped to cure human patients suffering with the disease.

During the last few years he has helped Dr. Koch with his discoveries about sleeping sickness, its cause, and cure. He is now at work trying to find a serum that will cure cholera. During the last months he has been working in Italy and had expected to go into Turkey when the war broke out.

Curie Discoverers of Radium.

Two other scientists have attracted the attention of all thinking Europe and America, the Curies. The discovery of radium was the more remarkable because all previous work was on heavy and costly metals. The Curies had so little money to carry on their investigation. To obtain the first few fractions of a grain of radium they had to use several tons of pitch-blende residue.

Since her husband's death Mme. Curie has been carrying on her work alone. It has been said that she has made no further progress in the investigation since radium was discovered.

Germany vies with France in honors with the number of splendid laboratories for bacteriological investigations and for able men who are using their genius to save life. Last summer Germany was the scene of the death of Dr. Ehrlich.

Mrs. Curie Co-discoverer with Her Husband of Radium

See his experiments with his latest discovery called "606." Besides his own laboratory Prof. Ehrlich has been working in the Royal Prussian Institute for Experimental Therapy in Frankfurt, an institute founded by the German government for scientific research. Prof. Ehrlich is director of this institute and as such controls the standardization and distribution of all antitoxins used within the German empire.

Discovery of Indirect Value.

He commenced his important series of researches on the structure of the human blood and its modification in disease. In peering for some time into the heat fixed or hardened the cells. By many experiments he learned that different cells or tissues can be stained while in the living state if once a dye stuff is found having the necessary affinity. Though this discovery had no direct bearing on his future work, it led to a knowledge of the specific affinity of chemicals upon which other work rests. He next worked out an elaborate theory concerning the manner in which the animal body is able to produce antitoxins. This is known as the side-chain theory. While Prof. Ehrlich was at work on his discovery of an antitoxin for diphtheria Prof. Ehrlich

Since Prof. Ehrlich became associated with the Royal Institute in Frankfurt it has grown until it contains many important departments. The factories that produce serum must have it examined by the institute and in this way the department supports itself. In America the government laboratory, which has charge of the supervision of antitoxins can only purchase samples in the open market, samples that are sold to the different drug stores, while in Germany a government officer is present when the horse is bled to secure the serum needed in the making of the antitoxin. A sample is sent to the laboratory and the rest is sealed until the sample is approved by the institute.

It is with his important discoveries while in Koch was working in Africa on sleeping sickness, Prof. Ehrlich was studying the subject in the laboratory in Frankfurt. He soon discovered that those stoxyl derivatives that have most effect work indirectly. He concluded that the body had the power of reducing these substances, in other words of abstracting oxygen from them, and that these reduction products were the ones that cure the disease. He therefore made a great number of these products, and one was finally found which proved to be a specific. He called this arseno-phenyl-glycin. It is a bright yellow powder which has to be kept in vacuum tubes. This drug is said to cure all animals suffering with sleeping sickness, even when in the worst stages. Prof. Ehrlich discovered "606," a cure for one of the worst blood diseases known to mankind. He experimented on rabbits in order to perfect this serum. This discovery has led to important discussions of the subject throughout Europe and America. Such men as Prof. Noller of Breslau, Lesser, Wechsungen, Frank, and Kraus of Berlin, with Pick and Von Norden of Vienna are investigating it. In his work Prof. Ehrlich never works quantitatively and rarely with a definite end in view. To use his own words he is simply a "play chemist," and uses his researches as a means toward an end—that of curing disease and explaining the phenomena of the action of chemicals upon the human body.

Cure for Tuberculosis Found?

In his work with tuberculosis Prof. Emil Behring claims that not only can he eliminate the disease in its early stages, but that he can arrest it after it has progressed far. He holds that there is no such thing as an incurable tuberculosis, though there may be some tendency. He calls his work the curative principle. He calls his serum "T. C." Prof. Behring lives on a large farm near Marburg. Here he has 400 acres of land and about 400 cows and horses needed in carrying on his experiments. He had been aided in his work by the Nobel prize and the emperor has such confidence in his ability that he raised his salary to enable him to continue his important work. He also won a French prize called the Prix Lavoisier, which yielded him $5,000. And in addition he has $200,000 set aside by a Brazilian millionaire for scientific investigation. He calls his Koch, who was born in the Hartz mountains. He worked many years in laboratories and hospitals before he became known to the scientific world. His researches on the cause of his researches on the artificial dyeing of microscopic objects, especially of bacteria. These researches were poorly understood, until he succeeded in identifying the germs of cattle in the disease of tuberculosis and cholera. Not satisfied with the result of his investigation Dr. Koch went to India, the home of cholera, to study this disease. In 1885 he was appointed director of the new Hygienic Institute of the University of Berlin. His work here was so satisfactory that he was soon made director of the Institute for Infectious Diseases in Berlin. This is one of the largest and most complete laboratories of its kind in Europe.

While working here he was ordered to lead the investigating party sent by the German government for the purpose of studying the sleeping sickness in South Africa. He spent eighteen months on an island in Lake Victoria Nyanza, where he discovered that the only flies that carried the disease were the tsetse flies—those that fed on the blood of crocodiles and hippopotami. Soon after this discovery the sleeping sickness germ was identified as the real cause of this illness. The fly merely served as a carrier. Now Dr. Koch claims he has found an atox, I-arsenic preparation that is death to the germ.

Campanhout Discovers Second Method.

It remained, however, for Dr. Emil Campanhout, who has lived many years in Africa, to discover the stoxyl method as a remedy for the disease. But Dr. Koch claims with his conviction he can make a cure in a few hours, while Dr. Campanhout's remedy often takes months. The cure is too new to conclude which is the better.

These are only a few of the most eminent scientists who are working in the field of preventive science. Besides the laboratories that are aiding them in their scientific research, there have also helped to others working along the same or similar lines. One of the best known and most successful is the Jenner Institute for Preventive Medicine. Lord Jenner is chairman and such able men as Alfred Salter and Sydney Rowland are its bacteriologists. It was in this institute that Dr. Ehrlich made his investigations of diphtheria. The University of Liverpool has the well known laboratories of the Thompson, Yates, and Johnson in physiology, pathology, and bacteriology. It was this laboratory that furnished one expedition to South Africa to study the sleeping sickness.

Last summer there was opened a new hospital in London. Like the Rockefeller hospital it is designed for poor and rich alike. Patients need not pay here, for it is intended to develop independent scientific study. It devotes itself to diseases such as tuberculosis, cancer, etc.

In Vienna there is a similar institute but the work is largely devoted to the study of cancer and the use of radium. Budapest also has a well equipped laboratory supported by the government; its investigators are studying radium. Then there is a great institute at St. Petersburg supported by the government which is doing splendid work along the lines of bacteriological studies.

Medical Progress in Last Decade.

In World's Work Dr. Woods Hutchinson lists the important medical achievements of the decade as follows:

- Discovery of the tuberculin test for tuberculosis.
- Identification of the house fly as the principal carrier of typhoid.
- Identification of the tsetse fly as the producer of sleeping sickness.
- Recognition of the mosquito as the cause of yellow fever and of malaria.
- Recognition of the rat as the principal carrier of the plague.
- Discovery of the hookworm and its cure. From 1 to 20 per cent of southern rural population are affected. Twenty-five cents' worth of thymol will effect a cure.
- Discovery of antitoxin for typhoid fever.
- Discovery of antitoxin for cerebro-spinal meningitis, reducing fatalities from 70 per cent to 25 per cent.
- Identification of the germ causing the worst form of blood disease, and discovery of tests which demonstrate infection and cure.
- Transference of vital organs from one animal to another without death to the animal.
- In regard to tuberculin Dr. Hutchinson says: "The great discovery of the dead, has been the skin tests of Calmette and Von Pirquet. Simply by scratching or rubbing a little tuberculin into the skin a reaction is produced which enables us to discover the disease at the earliest stage, when it is as curable as measles and long before it has become infectious to others. With the aid of this test we can break up each nest of disease as fast as we discover it. We can stop our present practice (as illustrated by New York City) of burying 10,000 cases of the to take their place, which means that each one before it died infected at least two others."

VINSON McLEAN.

BABY

ENTIRELY BY MEN

DOES it make a baby manly to be associated always with men? Will a baby be effeminate if his nurses are women?

On an aristocratic boulevard in Washington, D. C., stands a mansion—the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. McLean. Within that mansion lives young Vinson McLean, known as the $100,000,000 baby. Hundreds of thousands of babies grow up to be captains of finance, leaders of men, themselves strong, virile, and manly men, and yet have all had women as nurses and teachers as maids and governesses. Are the parents of the $100,000,000 baby working the wrong tack? They are surrounding him entirely with men on the grounds that it will make him more manly and that when he grows up he will be better fitted to cope with a man's responsibilities—those heavy responsibilities which will fall on his shoulders with his coming of age and with the management of his enormous fortune.

He has men nurses, men who dress him, men who feed him, men who take him out for his airing. A stalwart attendant gives him his bath and a six foot giant used to prepare his bottle.

His only playfellow is a little black boy a few years older than Vinson and he is with him constantly with the idea that finally he will be the millionaire's valet and servant.

The little pickaninny has already been taught to do little things for his future master. He shovels the sand for him when they are at the seashore; he picks up his playthings when they are in the nursery. He is brought up with the one idea of service. And the McLean parents think that he will be a second man Friday to baby Vinson's Robinson Crusoe.

When Vinson is 20 and in college it will be Friday's task to give him aid, if need be, in the morning exam. When Vinson is 30 and is married it will be Friday who will lay out his wedding clothes. When Vinson is 40, renowned, a celebrated man of finance, Friday will be caring for him, guarding him from the annoyances arising from his fame. When he is 50 Friday will be accompanying him to the various German baths, and when he is 60 the faithful servant will still be packing away his clothes, sending his suits to the tailor, and dressing his master for dinner.

He is being brought up never to think of himself first. It must always be Master Vinson. He is to be a body servant—a servant body and soul.

Now, will this continual environment really encourage manliness in the small boy or not? Some of the most noted scientists and pathological authorities of two continents are of the opinion that children of both sexes should be brought up together, at least until they are 10 or 12, and that the softening influence of women which a boy receives in his youth is responsible, to a large extent, for his attitude toward them later in life, and also for his attitude toward the ideal and the finer and higher things.

Will He Miss the Higher Ideals?

Frankly materialistic, they say that men are naturally without high ideals or finer sensibilities, and that it is only through coming in contact with women, who have these qualities innately, that a man is inspired to develop the more spiritual side of his nature.

Those nations which have ever been intent on warfare and conquest, on the strength and courage of their young men, have followed this plan of separating the boys from the girls at an early age. The Greeks and the

Mrs. McLean and Son Vinson.

North American Indians have followed this rule, but they always allowed the children to associate freely with each other until they were 7 and never made stringent rules about having male care.

Vinson McLean is going to have everything that the world can give him as far as physical strength, mentality, and material comfort are concerned. But is he going to have the fine, tender, gentle sensibilities in his nature, those sensibilities which underlie even the mightiest strength, and which are often the foundation of the greatest power? The tact, the intuition, the insight that come through these characteristics are necessary to a man who must deal with hundreds of other men, who must lead them and guide them.

As it is, his parents are doing everything in their power to fit him for the place he will one day take among the millionaires of the world and among the masters of finance. Although he is only a little over 3 years old he already has his tutors for Japanese, German, French, and Spanish. They think that he can learn all these languages gradually from hearing them spoken around him. And already he can reel off nursery rhymes in Japanese as fast as the German folk songs.

Training to Care for Fortune.

The reason for this elaborate system of training is the desire of his parents to fit him to look after the enormous interests which he will one day inherit. Much of the Walsh fortune is invested in the orient and South America, hence the Spanish and Japanese. German will be needed to look after the McLean interests in Cincinnati, and, for social reasons, French is necessary.

The greatest care is given to his diet—everything that science has learned as to the proper proportions of various kinds of food that go to healthy body building. The various apartments he occupies are all planned to provide the maximum amount of sunshine and air.

He has five nurseries in which to play, and there is not a single thing that he could desire which is not immediately purchased for him. He is being brought up as if he were some crown prince and his life is guarded as carefully as if there were a veritable throne that he were one day to inherit.

Since his birth his parents have been obsessed by the fear that he would be kidnapped and they employ four men to be on the continual watch that no one enters the grounds whose presence is in anyway suspicious. When Vinson goes for an airing with his man nurse, or tutor, or with his mother, a detective precedes him and one follows him, and every night another detective stretches himself across the threshold of the room in which the infant Croesus sleeps.

This winter at Palm Beach the baby was never seen without his three companions, the little negro boy, and the two detectives.

If he accompanied his mother down the sands and sat in stony silence beside her the two black figures were ever near guarding and watching.

How will this richest baby in the world turn out? Will he be as manly and stalwart and broad minded as they so fervently hope, or will he, just on account of this seclusion and separation, be peculiar, eccentric, and neurotic?

Renting Jewels by the Night a Popular Way to "Put on a Front" in London.

JEWELS are rented by the day or night in London.

This jewel renting is now the most popular thing in the way of acquiring "borrowed plumage."

The renting of jewels started years ago but has increased rapidly and is now at the height of its popularity. The fact that jewels can be rented is just being discovered by those of the great "middle class," who are hastening to take advantage of it. Already the poor but haughty lady of rank who wished to keep the world from knowing her real financial condition has learned the secrets of this borrowed glory.

The first time that jewel renting was introduced into England was at the coronation of King Edward. Women of rank who wished to appear in the magnificent ceremonies found that they had no jewels that were worthy of the great occasion. So they went to the small houses of the jewellers with their lamentations. A few of the jewellers refused absolutely to have anything to do with jewel renting, but others, seeking a way to make money quickly and without risk, consented to lend some of their choicest designs for the coronation. At this time the fact that the jewels were rented was kept a complete secret and the women borrowers had the satisfaction of appearing in magnificent jewels at a small cost each evening.

Everybody Renting Them Now.

This gave the jewellers the idea of renting jewelry at all times. They let it be known that for such and such a sum they would rent beautiful brooches, rings, necklaces, and tiaras. They had many kinds of precious

These rented jewels could not be advertised. One word printed about them in the newspapers would ruin their renting value at once for no one would rent jewels if there was the slightest chance of their origin being suspected. Advertising them by word of mouth became the popular method. Even now not much has been said in the press about them. Poor women of gentle breeding who were not above caring "an honest penny" were taken into the confidence of the jeweller. Now, when a big entertainment is to take place, or before the opera season starts, these women whisper to their friends: "Now, if you only had a few more jewels your appearance would be perfect."

"But I haven't the money for jewels," is the answer.

"Don't buy them," whispers the woman who is employed to introduce the rented jewelry. "I'll tell you a secret. — & — will rent jewels to you. Everybody is renting them and it's the only way, now, that times are so hard."

Some Jewellers Opposed to Idea.

The women who want to look beautiful, hurried to the jeweller and the woman who is doing the advertising has earned another neat commission.

Years ago, people who could not afford real jewels bought paste imitations. Although some of these seemed real, and they were made up in chain designs that glittered and shone on their fair wearers, they were not received with favor. Paste jewels grew ordinary and finally descended to the shop girls, where they have remained. The rented jewels have proved an acceptable substitute. So great has the practice grown that at the coronation of King George, millions of dollars worth of hired jewels were worn by society, and no one was the wiser.

Some of the better jewellers are strongly opposed to this borrowed plumage fad. They say that it is hurting legitimate trade: that the woman who contemplated buying a valuable tiara will borrow one for the few formal occasions when it is worn. By borrowing one of the same design for several occasions she gets all of the credit of owning it with none of the necessary expenditure of money.

May Hire Pearls for Season.

The jewellers who do the renting are, of course, enthusiastic over the plan and are planning to increase it each year. By careful renting they are able to get so much, during the season, in a place of London, that and still have the original in their possession.

Not every one can rent jewelry, even in London. The renter must be "a responsible person." Even those who are responsible are apt to be rather great risks, so the jewellers are insured. The lady who rents them paying for the insurance.

Borrowers Made Careful.

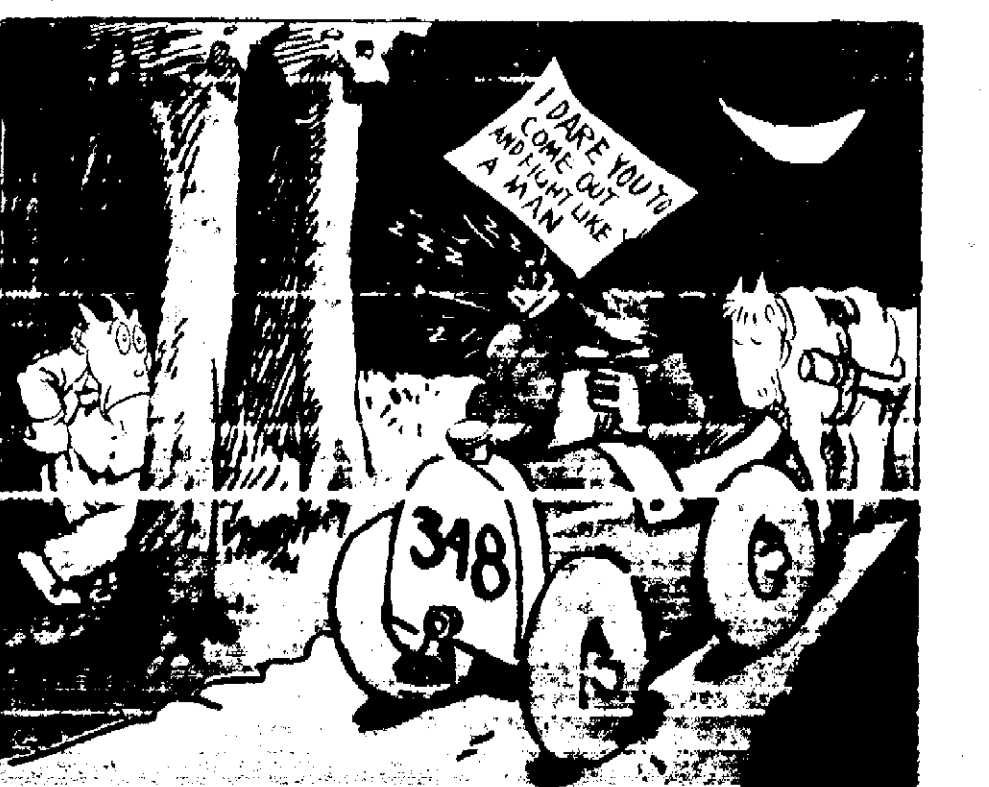

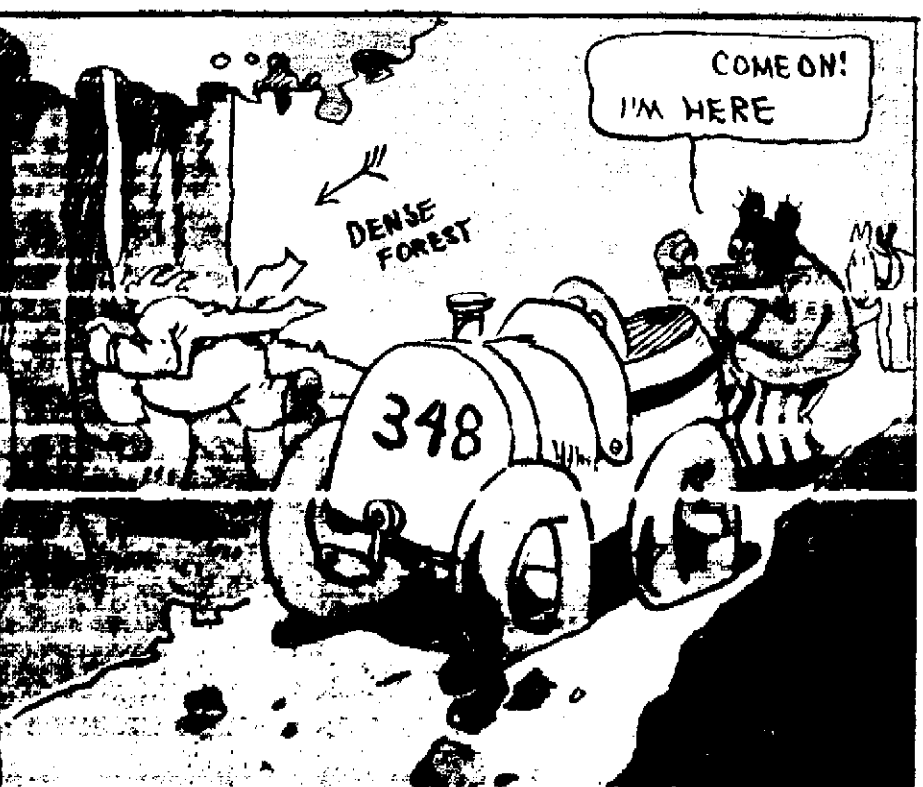

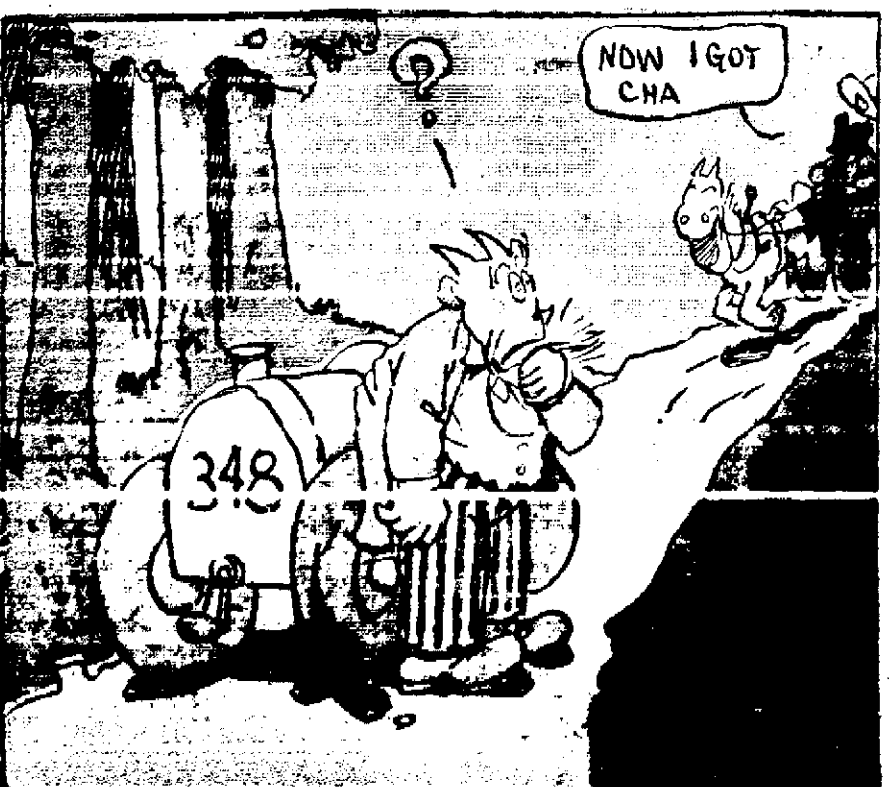

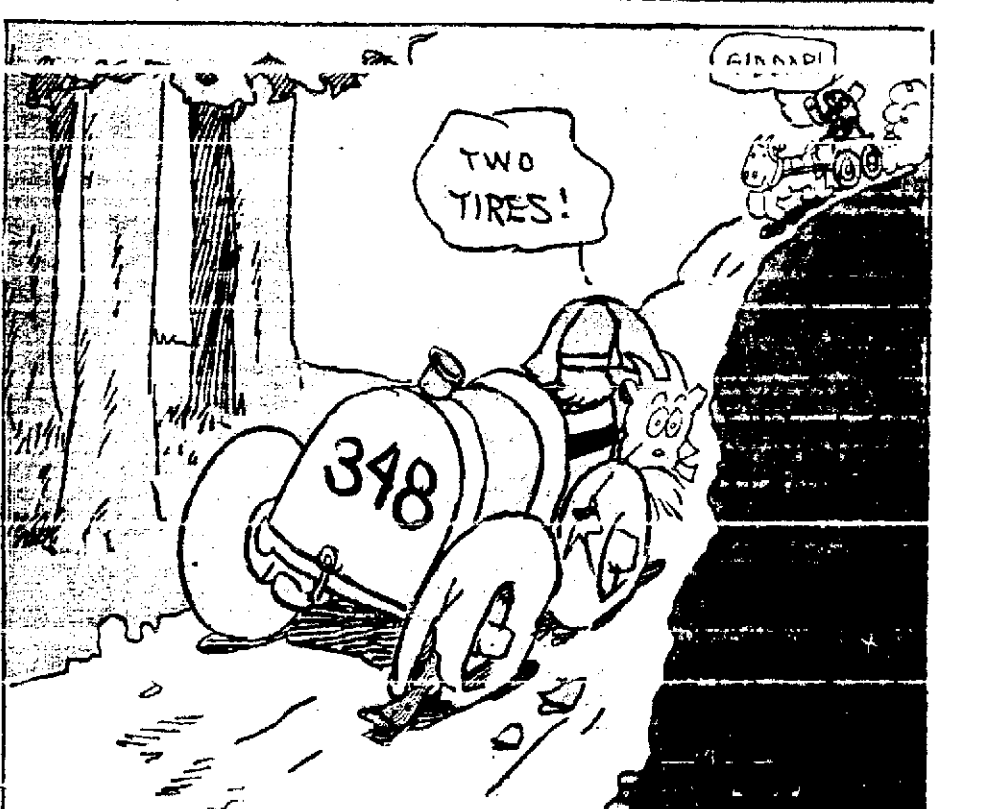

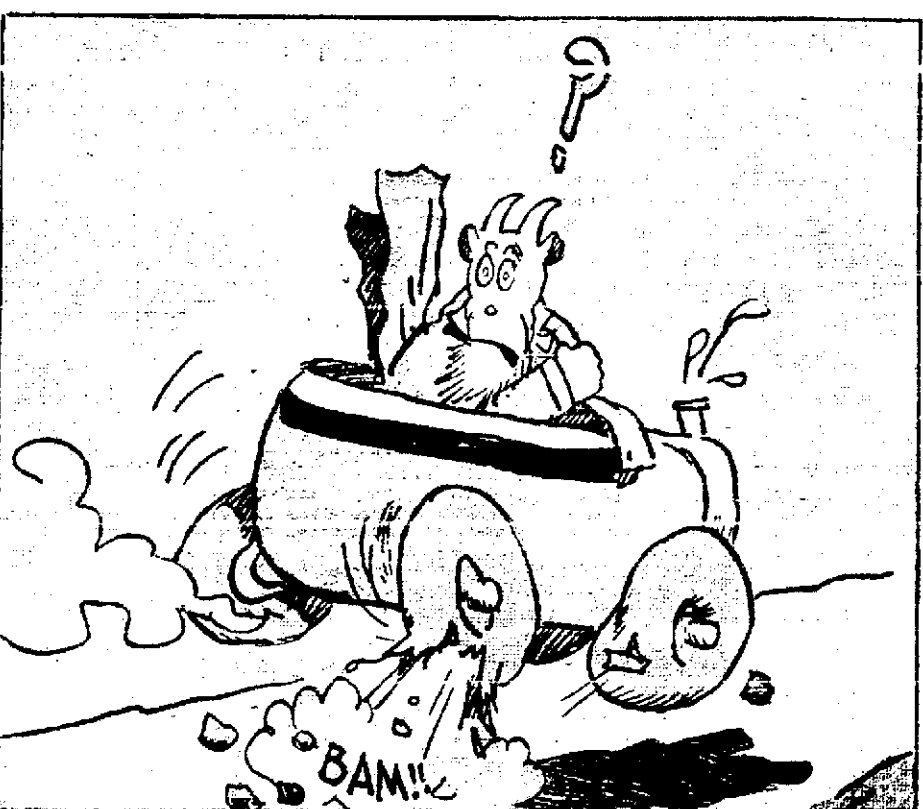

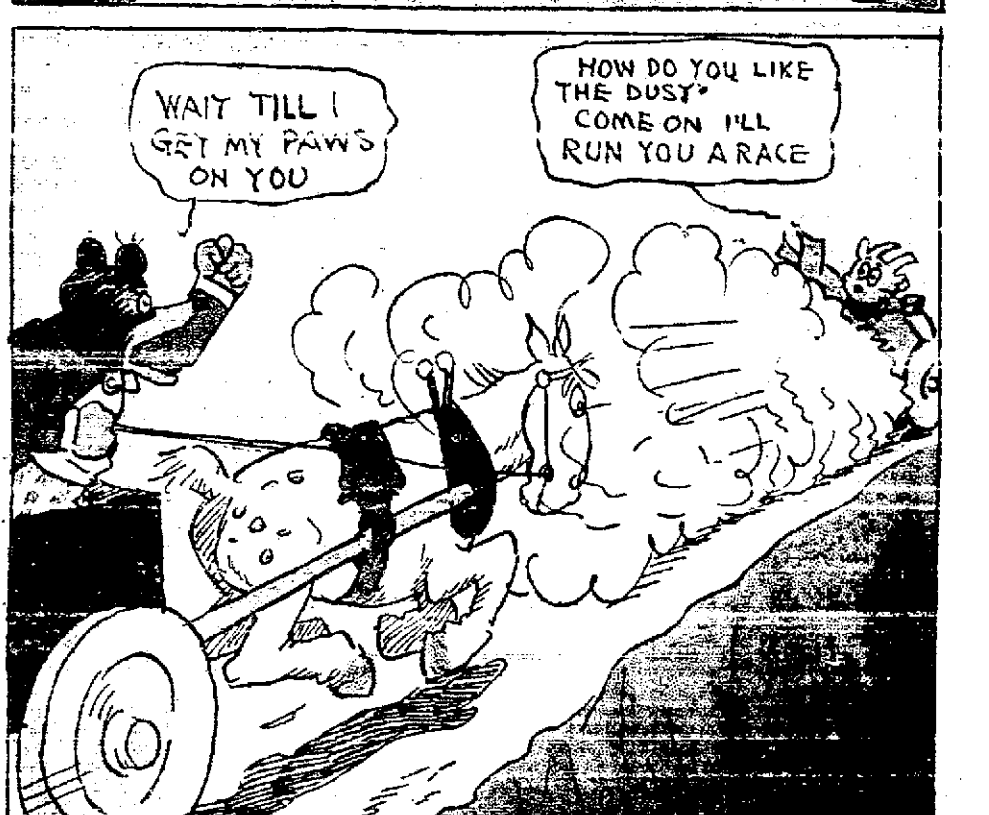

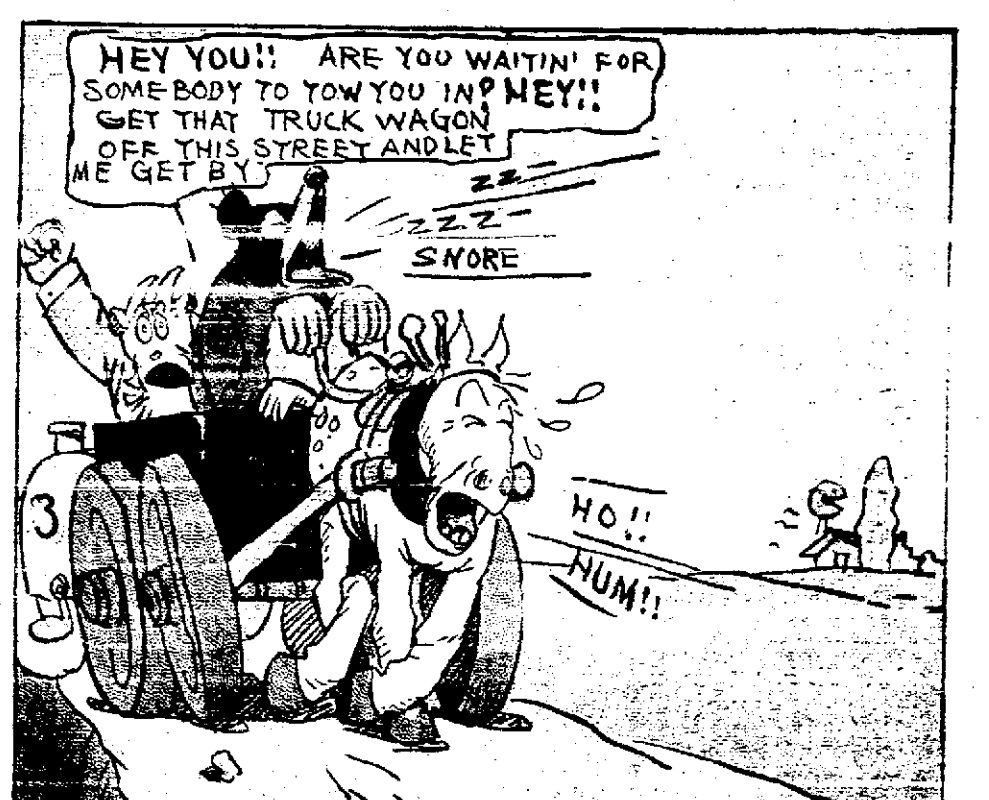

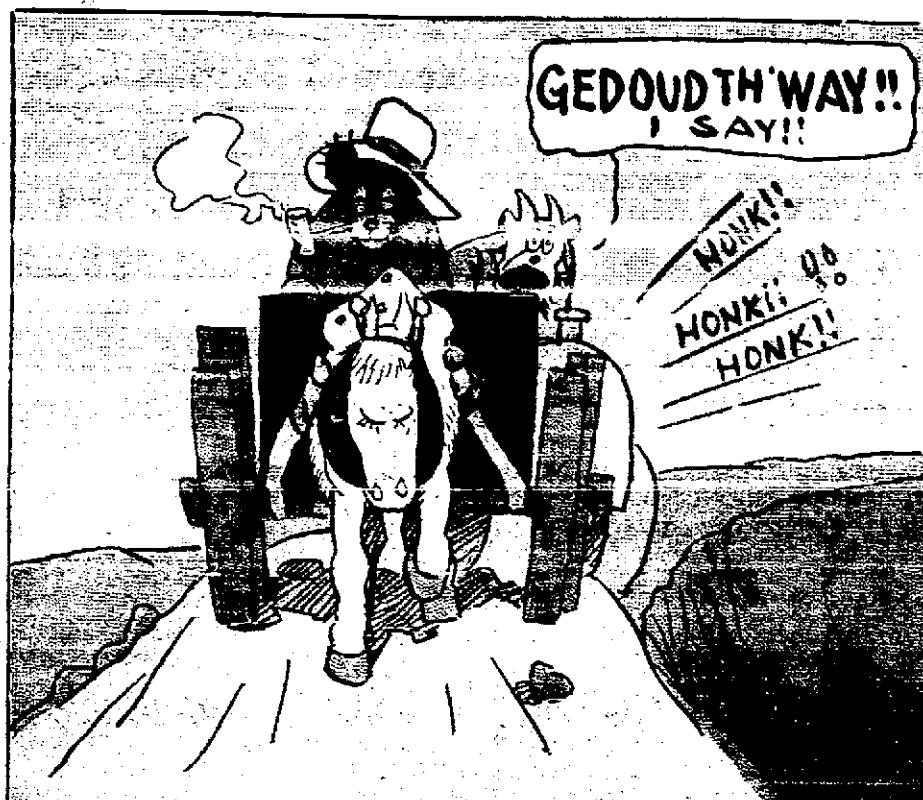

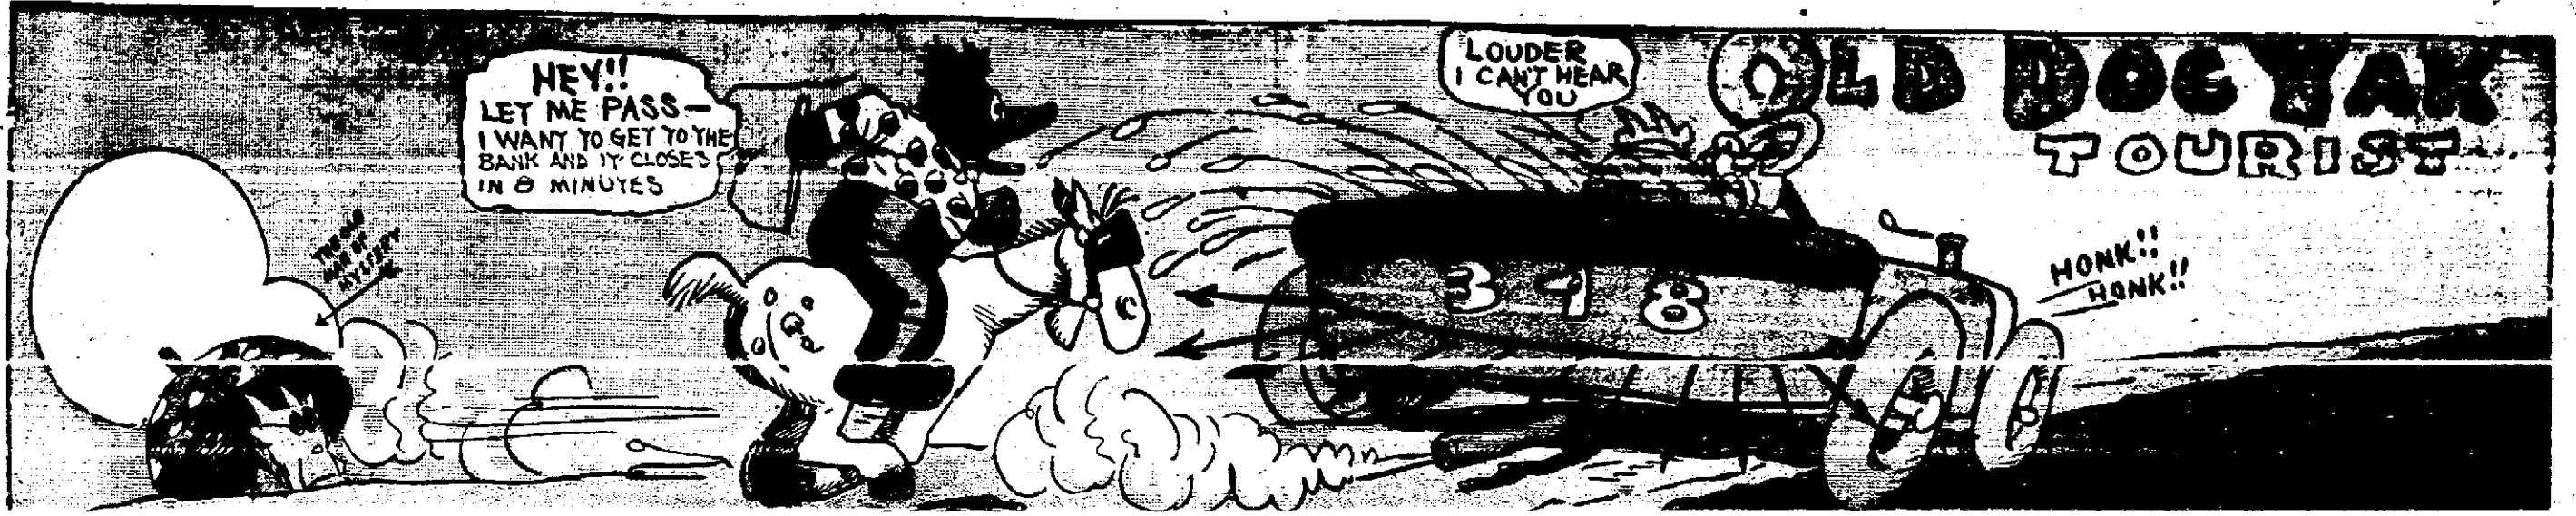

Since the renting of jewels and the insurance has been arranged to the smallest detail, it is now possible to hire jewels by the week, month, or even by the year. No longer is it necessary to hire by the evening only. A woman may hire a lovely necklace of pearls for the London season. She may rent many thousands of dollars worth of jewels for a period of two years. Many matrons with marriageable daughters are hiring whole outfits of jewels for themselves, in order to impress possible future sons-in-law with their worldly wealth. After the wedding the jewels go back to the jewellers to be snapped up by

The borrowed jewelry may be taken out of London now. In fact, the wearer may take it wherever she goes, except to Russia and Spain. Those two countries are not looked upon with favor by Lloyds, as they have been found more productive of unsolved disappearances of precious jewels than any other countries. If jewels must be taken to these countries a very high rate of insurance is charged.

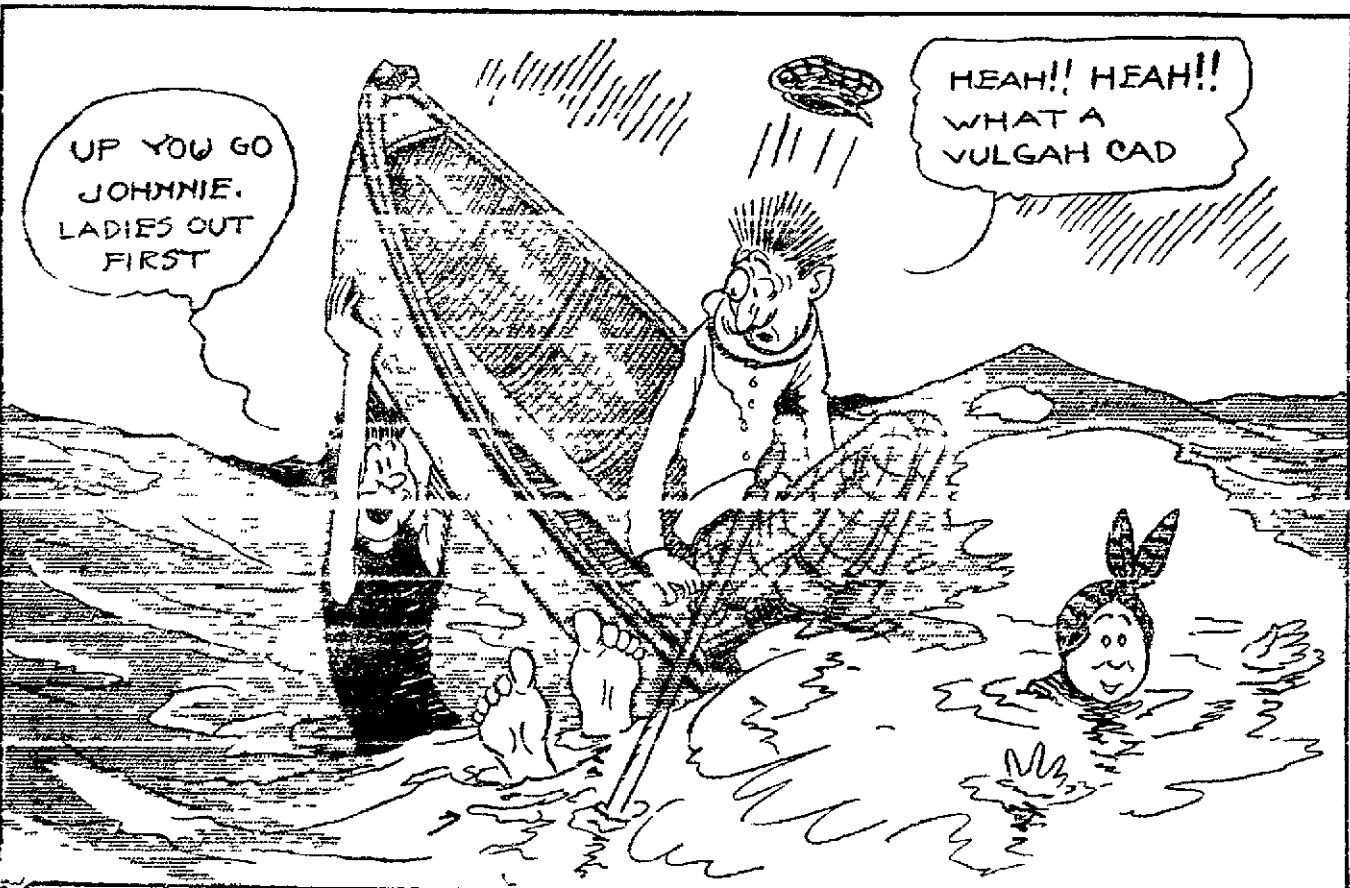

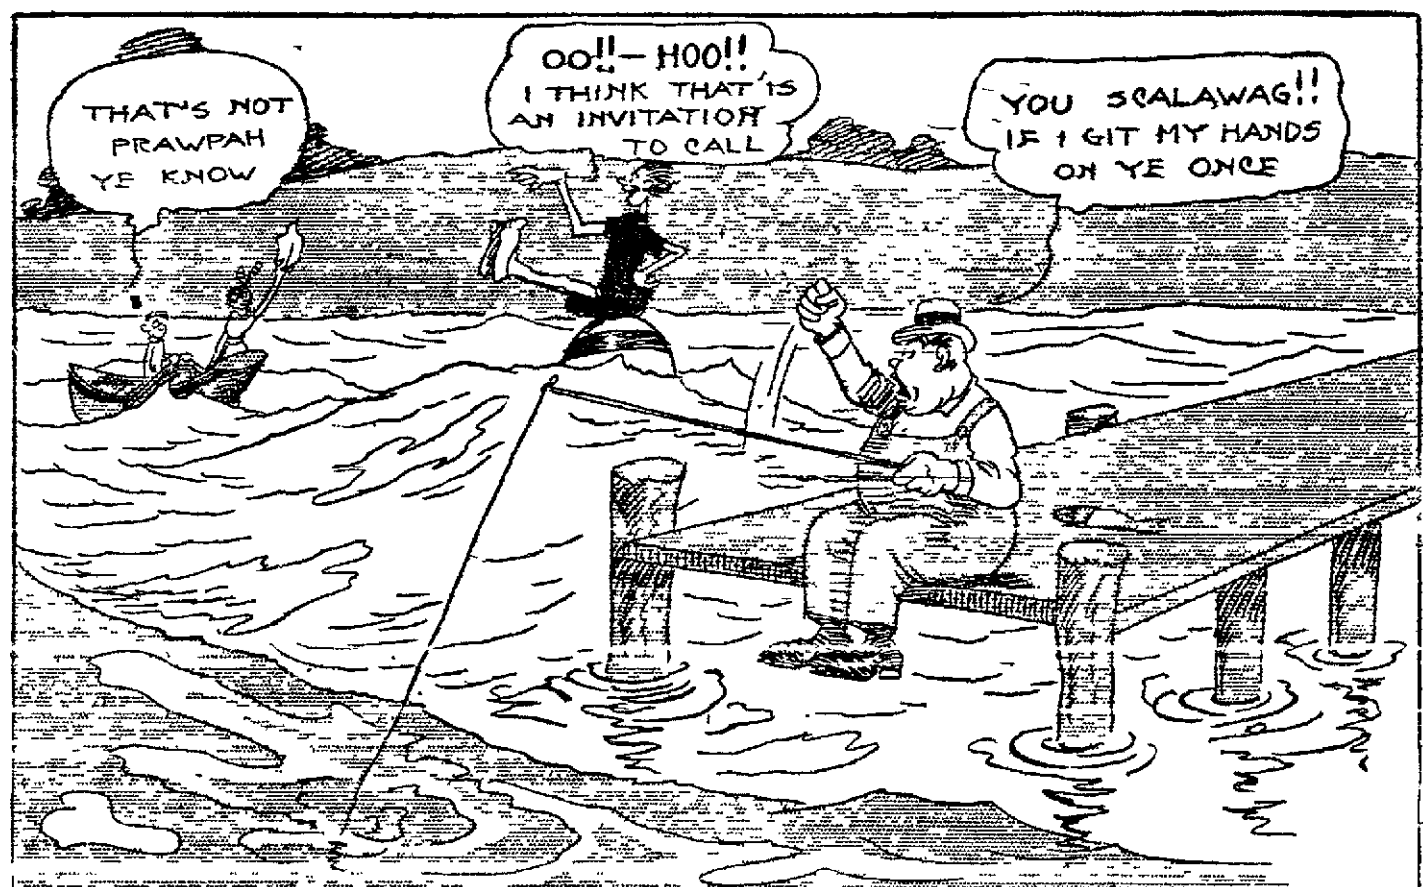

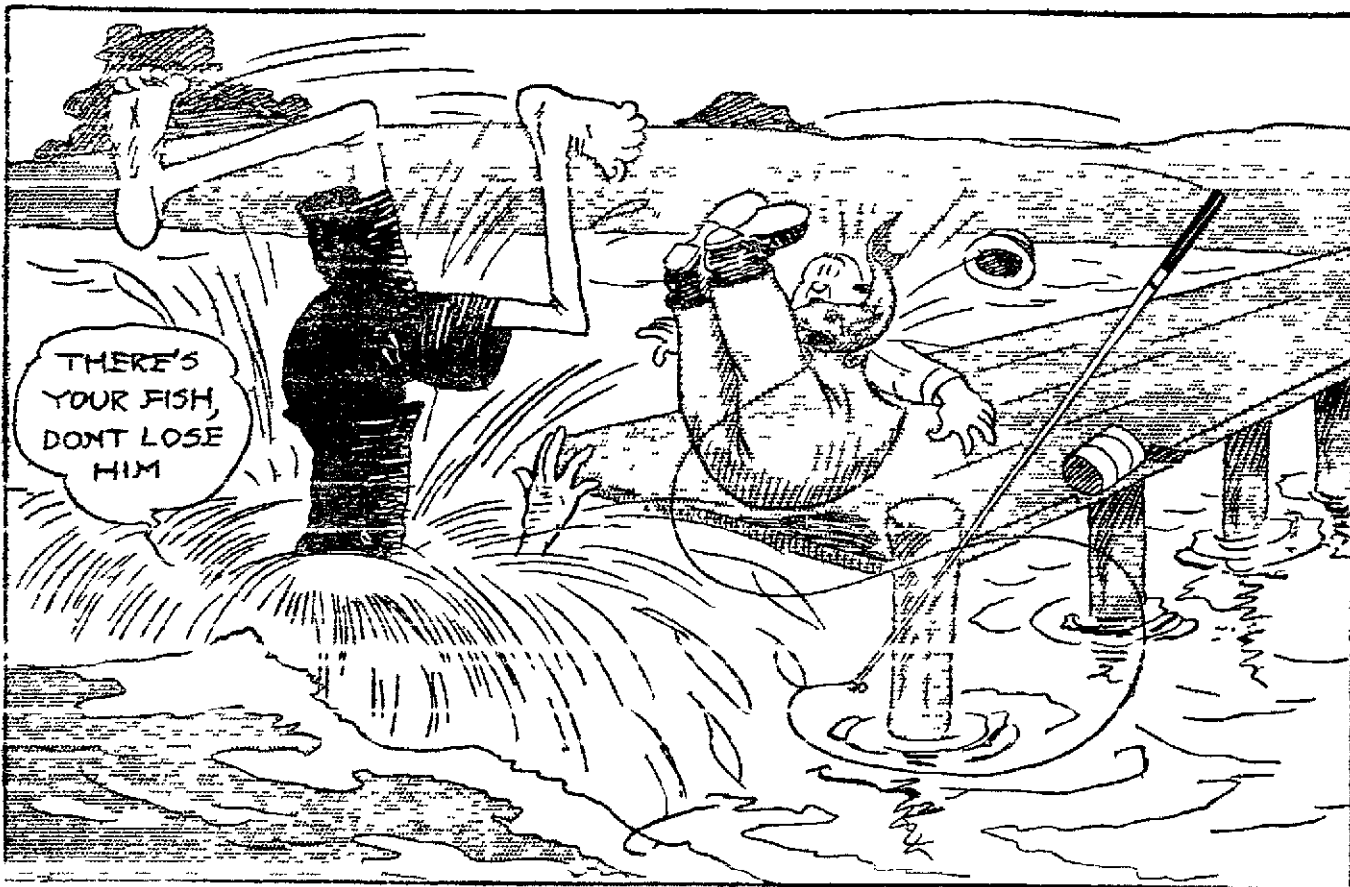

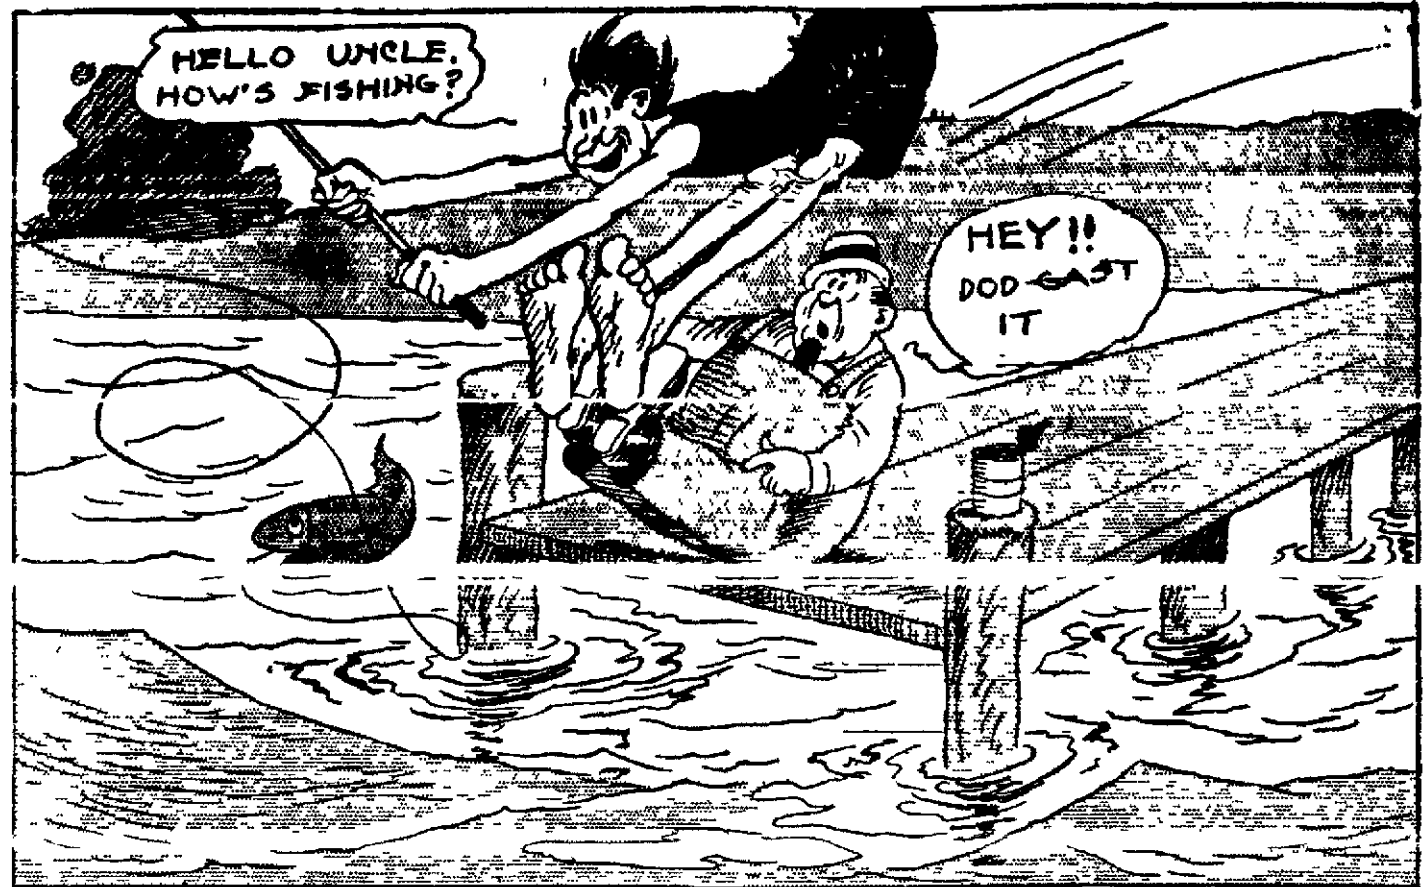

Scotland Yard tells a story of the disappearance of some jewels that has made the borrowers careful of what they borrow. A lady was renting a handsome necklace which was stolen from her. Two weeks later it was returned with a message stating that the jewels were paste. The jewellers said the returned jewels were not the ones stolen, but the matter was dropped and neither the lady nor Lloyds was compelled to make good the price of the dog collar. Now renters look carefully at the jewels before selecting what they wish, and one jeweller is having a difficult time renting to ladies at

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The McKinley postcard is doomed to disappear. The features of the married President are to be removed to give way to those of Thomas Jefferson. Postmaster
General Burleson has written to Senator Burton of Ohio that his decision in this regard is irrevocable. The senator had protested personally against the change and had forwarded to Burleson a protest from the McKinley Club of Canton, O. The postmaster general replied that the people's endorsement of the author of the declaration of independence in the last election justified the change. He insisted that no slight to the memory of McKinley was meant.

White Wings Brigade
Brushes Away Tariff

WASHINGTON, July 19.—If Mark
Evair could return to earth and come to Congress he would be immensely gratified by the "white wings" which distinguished statesmen have adopted his fad of wearing white. Over on the House side, Speaker Champ Clark, looking like a huge mountain of ice cream is resplendent in white from his snowy tail to his immaculate white tie. Since he has set the fashion there it has spread like wildfire over the chamber.
Vice-President Marshall seldom wears white, but he has the coolest light gray suits in Washington. He puts up a dapper appearance and a white carnation invariably adorns his coat. Amid the sombre clothes of some of the more conservative statesmen, the white suits of Senators Vardaman, Overman, Reed, Owen, Brad, of Idaho and Walsh form a Senatorial white wings brigade busily brushing away the debris of tariff tasks.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Secretary of the Interior Lane has sent the name of L. E. Pinkham to the President for governor of Hawaii. Pinkham was formerly governor of Iowa. He has been in Washington for several days in Washington.
His candidacy has met with strong opposition from the Hawaiian planters and it is probable that the President will hold up the secretary's recommendation for several days before sending the nomination to the Senate.

Bryan Asks Senate Com-

With Nicaragua.

Other sections prohibit the creation of debts that cannot be defrayed by the ordinary revenues and gives to the United States the right to interfere for the preservation of the independence of the country and to protect life and property. The provisions were written into the constitution of Cuba, under the terms of the Platt amendment. All of them would be agreed to by Nicaragua.
Secretary Bryan told the committee willingness to ratify such a treaty which already has been negotiated.

Democratic members of the committee, according to a senator present, were taken off their feet by the proposition, which they say went far beyond anything the Republicans had suggested. The proposed treaty, they said, did not meet with favor, although Senator O'Gorman and one or two of his associates apparently were friendly to it. Republican senposals so much in advance of the original treaty negotiated under the last administration, declined to express any opinion regarding it. No action was taken.

Immediately after leaving the Capitol Bryan went to his office and summoned Mr. Chamorro, the Nicaraguan minister, with whom he had an hour's conference. No information was given out.

MARYSVILLE, July 19.—Although 18-her a batch of unpaid bills, Maurice Schwartz followed her to this city last night from San Francisco and sought reconciliation. He first caused her arrest in the red-light district, where she had taken apartments the police looking her for vagrancy. The couple married in Oakland May 14 last.

Schwartz told the police that before leaving San Francisco where he is em-

Mayor Warned by Court That He Will Go to Jail If Stubborn.

In any city in America. The Times has single handed led a fight for old glory against the display of the anarchists' dirty emblem and against the dissemination of the reds' horrible ideas.
"As is well known, the Times building was destroyed by fire in February under exceedingly suspicious circumstances, though no success has attended the search for the probable culprits.
"Seattle's mid-summer potlatch, closely allied to the New Orleans Mardi Gras, invites a great display of the country's colors and the attendance of American warships and troops.
"The Times' fight is a fight of self-defense."

The next night, Friday, a group of soldiers and sailors, absolutely sober and earnest, destroyed the contents and decorations of every red flag den in the city.
In a vain attempt to save himself from the disgrace of his un-American record and its results, the mayor attempted to place the city under riot law and issued orders closing the saloons and forbidding the Times to publish this afternoon's and tomorrow morning's editions on the ground that this paper had incited the riot of Fri-

"This police was served upon us shortly before noon today and we very promptly obtained an injunction from Judge John E. Humphries of the Superior court, who very quickly brought the mayor and his chief of police Bannock before the bar to explain their reluctance in complying with the terms of his order.
"Over 1000 people more hit-terly denounced than Mayor Cottenill by Judge Humphries. He was ordered to raise the police embargo placed around the Times building or go to jail for contempt. The order was telephoned to the police headquarters and the Times regular editors went to the people on time.
"This in brief is an account of the victory of the Times over the mayor and his police. It is a victory for an American newspaper for its defense and championship of the American flag.
"The Times' victory over the mayor has shown the man to be closely in sympathy with the radical socialists, if not anarchy and should prove immensely popular with the citizens of Seattle who are naturally intensely patriotic."

Japan Disappointed
Over Land Legislation

TOKYO, July 19.—Considerable disappointment is felt in Japan in connection with the Japanese notes on the subject of California land legislation, which does not accept any of the Japanese suggestions and does not offer any suggestions for the solution of the difficulty.
The situation here has not yet reached a deadlock Japan has not yet decided on her next step, but is so desirous of maintaining friendly relations that it is believed she will not adopt retaliatory measures such as the renunciation of the treaty or the reduction of the rights of American citizens in Japan.

300 Are Accused of Playing N. Y. Races

NEW YORK, July 19.—Three hundred men engaged in playing the races, were trapped this afternoon in a large barn adjacent to the Belmont Park race track in a raid made under the direction of District Attorney Charles G. Wysox of Manhattan.
Racing charts, a telephone, playing cards, a roulette table and other gambling devices, were seized. Seven men were arrested. Evidence to fully substantiate the charges of gambling is believed to have been obtained.

DUPLICATE OF FAMOUS
MAGALIA NUGGET GONE

OROVILLE, Cal., July 19.—A duplicate of the famous 54-pound Bullard gold nugget, taken from a Magalia mining claim, is missing from the State Bureau of Mines at San Francisco where it was on exhibition. E.
B. Ward, Secretary of the Oroville Chamber of Commerce, received an urgent message to know if he could throw any light on the nugget's disappearance, but he was ignorant of the matter.
It is the surmise that the nugget has been stolen by some visitor to the Mining Bureau, who did not know it was a mere duplicate made of cheap metal, and not the original, worth $10 690.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—President

La Plata, Maryland, 35 miles south of it hugely. The President believed he would not be recognized, and as he was approached a thousand curious eyes

TELL OF WEDDING
ONE WEEK AFTER

just before the supper at which the public announcement of her marriage was made, Mrs. Grant said
"We will remain at the hotel tonight and start on our tour of the world on the steamer Yale for San Francisco tomorrow morning. Then we will sail for Sydney, Australia, where we will stay for a considerable time. From there we will go to Cape Town and pass a great deal of time about that territory. From Cape Town we will sail for Buenos Ayres." The couple plan to be absent about a year and half.
Mrs. Grant's engagement ring is a handsome solitaire diamond of nearly five carats weight. An amusing part of the "wedding arrangements" was that a vast amount of beautiful flowers began arriving at the hotel Grant this morning, decorative ferns and gorgeous calla lilies being among them.

WIDOW IS EXECUTRIX

NEW YORK, July 19.—The will of General Frederick Dent Grant, son of the late President Ulysses S. Grant, which has just been appraised, makes
Mrs. Grant, widow, sole beneficiary and executrix. The value of the estate is estimated at $100,000.
The report of General Frederick Dent
Grant, state appraiser, under the although the general was stationed at Governors Island at the time of his death, April 11, 1912, he was not a resident of this state and therefore the estate is exempt from taxation.
In making Mrs. Grant sole legatee
the will reads
"I make it my wife alone because of my assurance that my children have already been provided for in the last will and testament of my deceased mother, and they will be more gratified to have their mother receive the entire estate than to have it divided by present gifts to them, and also because of my confidence, which they share, that their mother will, in managing her estate, have more regard to their interests than her own will, always, if necessarily, therefore should have aided them or either of them to the extent of her ability during life and will divide her estate justly between them at death."
In her affidavit as executrix Mrs.
Grant states that just before the general's death he had been making plans to purchase a home in Washington at 1711 New Hampshire avenue.
"This residence," the affidavit continues, "I have now purchased an oc-

WORTHLESS SHARES.

A large amount of the estate is invested in railroad bonds. That the general had purchased many worthless securities was also disclosed. Included in the latter are 100 shares in the American Artillery Range Finder and Relocator, which were stated to have a value of $1000 but this company was declared void by the state of New Jersey for the non-payment of taxes and has "no home, no business and no assets."
The children who benefitted by their grandmother's will are Princess Can-taccuzene, now of St. Petersburg, and Ulysses S. Grant the third.
The announced wedding of July 12, followed an automobile ride in which the aged bridegroom and Mrs. Will visited the Mission gardens. The party then returned to Judge Puterbaugh's residence and while enjoying a light lunch Mrs. Holmes suggested that the marriage take place. Mrs. Will became extremely nervous but Grant was wil-

REDDING, Cal., July 19.—The good eastern part of the county last week, including the entire Board of Super-

Land company owns 26,000 acres of

The McArthur interests want a new

The Supervisors, since returning the McArthur land was valued at $250 an acre. The supervisors con-

McArthur's assessment, but have about concluded that "it is too late as the increase would require a lot of legal procedure."

PALATIAL W. P. FERRYBOAT IS LAUNCHED GLIDES GRACEFULLY INTO THE ESTUARY

MISS FLORA LEVEY, BREAKING THE BOTTLE OF CALIFORNIA CHAMPAGNE OVER THE PROW OF THE NEW WESTERN PACIFIC FERRY EDW. T. JEFFERY, AND THE GREAT VESSEL AS IT SLID FROM THE WAYS INTO THE WATER.

Hidden godspeed by a daughter of California, and baptized with a bottle of California champagne, the Edw. T. Jeffery, the largest vessel ever launched in Oakland, and one of the largest on the bay, slid from the ways at the Moore and Scott shipyards yesterday afternoon in the estuary, to take its place as the principal ferryboat of the Western Pacific company, and to inaugurate a new fast passenger service between Oakland and San Francisco. From a platform decked with American flags Miss Flora Levy, daughter of Second Vice President and General Manager C. M. Levy of the railway, launched the big ferryboat. Acting Mayor Frank K. Mott, City Attorney Ben F. Woolner was the orator of the day.

About 1000 people watched the big ship's first plunge into the water. While sirens blew a salute to the new monster of the bay, the huge red boat slid with hardly a ripple into the water, and later was moored alongside the wharf for the finishing touches.

CITY ATTORNEY ORATES.

The party of railroad officials from San Francisco, who were the guests of honor at the launching, arrived at the yard at 2 o'clock in the special train chartered for their use. Miss Levy, her father and mother, and Campbell McGregor, son of the Union Iron Works official and her fiancé, as well as other Western Pacific officials and their wives, made up the party. Immediately the mounted the platform, and as Miss Levy took the bottle in her hand, City Attorney Woolner stepped forward to make the oration.

"We are glad," said the attorney, "to see this daughter of the Golden State launch this new vessel. Since the days when the Carthaginians invented ships women have done this duty, as well as ruled the homes, and perhaps now also the ballot boxes. We of Oakland are proud of this big ferry, built in our city. A final great pleasure on behalf of the builders of the big vessel, in presenting you, Miss Levy, with this little souvenir, made of our California gold." Woolner here presented Miss Levy with a bracelet, the gift of the shipbuilding firm.

GLIDES INTO WATER.

As Woolner's speech ended the workmen under the ship knocked the props away from the keel. For a moment only the sounds of hammer and saw could be heard. A final great cheer, and the great vessel slowly moved toward the bay. Rapidly gathering speed, it shot into the water, while the whistles blew and the workmen cheered.

The Edw. T. Jeffery is one of the most modern ferryboats on the Pacific coast. Finished in mahogany, and boasting every modern convenience, it is equipped with the latest type of engines and has many novel features. Its hull is of steel and the superstructure is of wood.

OFFICIALS ATTENDED.

President Bush of the Western Pacific, with his wife and daughter, as well as John Scott, of the shipyards, were figures of interest at the ceremony. James Roberts of the Western Pacific, J. M. Jackson, vice-president in charge of traffic, E. L. Lomax, passenger traffic manager, H. M. Adams, freight traffic manager, J. B. O'Brien, superintendent of power, L. H. Powell, master mechanic, Superintendent E. W. Mason, General Auditor J. F. Evans, General Baggage Agent C. R. Muller, Passenger Agent J. B. Lowe, and several other officials were in the party on the platform, together with their wives and daughters.

The new vessel is of the screw-propeller type. The finishing touches will be put on at once and a short time will see the new ferryboat ready for actual service.

MELON SHIPPING AT DINUBA ENDS

DINUBA, July 19.—Melon shippers are about over. The output will be only about 10 per cent of last year. The Dinuba Melon Growers' Association will close the season with a shipment all told of a very fine crop of 100. Prices are at this time 25 a ton f. o. b. for sixteens and eighteens. Possibly the output from this locality will not be over 200 cars, while for the 1912 season 225 cars went forward.

CHILD BURNED WHILE PLAYING WITH MATCHES

HANFORD, July 19.—Mayne Brown, the 4-year-old daughter of Mrs. A. J. Brown, was painfully and perhaps fatally injured by fire on the body when she played with matches in her home in this city. The child was playing with matches which she had obtained from a fruit drying shed near by, and secured some matches in some way. She playfully ignited the matches and the flames caught her clothing. She was rescued by her mother.

RETIRED MERCHANT INJURED BY CAR

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—William Tager, a retired merchant, of 1405 Hyde street, was run down today by a car at the corner of Market street and Grant avenue. He was hurled to the ground, sustaining a concussion of the brain and severe contusions. He was taken to the Central Emergency hospital for treatment.

NON-UNION MAN IS BEATEN BY GANG

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—Edward Wells, a non-union man who is taking the place of strikers in a painting establishment at Battery and Jackson street, was badly beaten up by a gang of five men at 1:30 this afternoon. Wells says he was attacked by the men who left the elevator on an upper floor, dragged him to the rear of the place and set upon him. His nose was broken, his scalp lacerated, and his face badly bruised. He was first taken to the Harbor Hospital and later removed to St. Joseph's Hospital.

He did not recognize his assailants but a young girl employed in the place is expected to furnish the police not only with a description of them but a clue to their identity.

SCUDDER WILL MAKE TRIPS ON "JUPITER"

VALLEJO, July 19.—Lieutenant R. P. Scudder, U. S. N., outside superintendent of the Machinery Department at Mare Island, has been delegated to accompany the Mare Island built collier Jupiter on her coming trip to the city.

She will proceed to California City to coal, and after testing her engines in short spins about the bay she will proceed outside the Heads for a 12-hour run.

TO BRING WATER TO BENICIA IN BARGE

SUISUN, July 19.—After August 1 water for the use of the people of Benicia will be brought on barges from the San Joaquin river. According to word received here, the reservoir of the Benicia Water Company has become very low on account of the several dry seasons, and for the past few months the supply has been augmented by water from the wells on the farm of E. J. O'Connell. It is reported that Benicia has received two barges.

MAY DICARD UNIFORMS.

VALLEJO, July 19.—Mare Island officers are jubilant today over the fact that an order was received this morning by Commandant F. M. Bennett, U. S. N., stating that hereafter all officers not on strict military duty may wear civilian clothes while on duty at the local naval station. The order is a result of a recent conference of commanders at Washington.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS JAPANESE CORRESPONDENCE

Numerous Notes Have Been Exchanged, but Contents Kept Secret

(Special to THE TRIBUNE)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 19.—Considerable mystery surrounds the diplomatic correspondence between the United States and Japan over the California anti-alien land law. The bill was signed by Governor Johnson in May and while numerous notes have been exchanged between the two countries little is known of their contents. That Japan has receded from her original position that the California law violated a treaty obligation is admitted. It is hinted that one of the reasons for the withholding of information concerning these notes is due to the belittling of the Japanese correspondence, which, if published, is feared would arouse much feeling throughout the United States and especially in California. On the other hand, there are rumors that the replies of the United States are unduly conciliatory—that they are as mild as grape juice. In the meantime Secretary of State Bryan has left Washington on the weekly lecture tour, the Japanese question, and numerous other important affairs of state, to await his return.

OHIO WINEMAKERS JAMMED.

The provisions of the Underwood tariff bill affecting the California wine industry as originally agreed upon by the subcommittee of the Senate finance committee have been slightly changed as finally reported to the Senate. The tax of $1.10 per proof gallon for wine spirits, grape brandy, pure neutral alcohol used in fortifying sweet wines, against the imposition of which obnoxious tax the California wine producers and grape growers are so loudly protesting, is retained in the bill.

In an effort to reach the spurious wine makers of Ohio a provision is inserted imposing a tax of twenty-cent per gallon on all wines not made exclusively from fresh grapes, berries or fruits, and upon all wines to which have been added spirits distilled from any other materials. These spurious wines must also be labeled if they contain benzoic acid, benzoate of soda, salicylic acid or fluorides. While these amendments fail to relieve the California industry of the burdensome tax, it is of some little satisfaction to hamper the Ohio producers of spurious wines with a twenty-five cent tax which may make it more difficult for them to compete with the pure California product.

FAVORS HETCH-HETCHY BILL.

The public lands committee of the House has agreed to the Hetch-Hetchy bill with slight amendments. One of the amendments was suggested by Mayor Frank K. Mott of Oakland. A copy of the bill was sent by Congressman Knowland to the mayors of the east bay cities which expect to eventually utilize the Hetch-Hetchy water supply. The Alameda county representative requesting that if amendments were suggested in the interest of Alameda county cities he be notified. Mayor Mott wired, asking that the word "water" be added before "districts" so that the particular paragraph providing for the utilization of the supply by the bay cities should read: "For conveying water for domestic purposes and uses to the City and County of San Francisco and such other municipalities and water districts," etc.

As the present congress is ruled by caucuses, it will not be possible to secure consideration for the Hetch-Hetchy bill until permission is granted by the Democratic caucus. After the measure runs that gauntlet it will come to a vote.

WANTS DAUGHTER'S WEDDING ANNULLED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—Mrs. Ann Marhan began an action for the annulment of the marriage of her daughter Anne Margaret Marhan and William Cochran which was celebrated January 2, 1914, in Oakland. Mrs. Marhan claims that her daughter who was only 17, eloped and married Cochran without her consent. She sets forth that she is a widow and the only one entitled to give permission to the girl to marry.

WILD ANIMALS KILL TWO HUNDRED SHEEP

PORTERVILLE, July 19.—Jean Sarthou, one of the wealthy sheepmen of this district, a resident of Westfield, reports the loss of nearly 200 of his animals on ranges in the Tule River Indian Reservation, the monetary loss at present prices being nearly $1000. It is reported that the animals were stampeded by bears and scattered through the brush where they fell a prey to coyotes and lions before they could be rounded up. Bears and lions are said to be more than usually plentiful throughout the reserve district this year.

LADY PAGET TO REDUCE AT AIX LES BAINES

LONDON, July 19.—Lady Paget, American wife of General Sir Arthur Paget, has never completely recovered from her fall down an elevator shaft in Belgrave Square, and every year has to take a cure in lieu of exercise. She is leaving London for Aix Les Baines in a few days to reduce her weight. Like Queen Mary, she has a horror of growing stout.

She will be at Aix for three weeks and will then return to the Royal Hospital in Dublin shortly before the Dublin horse show, which opens on August 26 and which is the great event of the Irish season.

She is sending out many more invitations than last year for her horse show party and will entertain a large and distinguished gathering.

RESIDENTS OF DAVIS WANT HIGHWAY ACTION

DAVIS, July 19.—The people of Davis are circulating several petitions in all parts of the county and will present them to the Yolo supervisors. They ask that the board name viewers for the State Highway route between here and Broderick, on the south side of the Southern Pacific tracks, and to appropriate the value of the necessary lands. They ask that the present right of way on the north side of the railroad be abandoned.

WAS ARTISTS' MODEL NOW STAR IN MOVIES

ALICE JOYCE

Alice Joyce is the single screen player of stellar importance who has features. A young woman of striking and distinguished beauty, she was named in the studios of the foremost American artists before she entered pictures, having posed for C. D. Williams and Harrison Fisher. In fact, she had the reputation of being the best model in New York. A lucky turn of fate brought Miss Joyce into the pictures. Several years ago one of the Kalem directors required as one of the characters in a certain production an unusually pretty girl. By chance Miss Joyce was suggested. Her first efforts brought signal success. Her rise has been rapid, and now she is one of the leaders in the field. In "A Thief in the Night" shown today at the Oakland Photo theater her work is even better than usual.

BONCE DECLARES US MUSIC LOVERS

Tenor Returns to Rome From Concert Tour of America.

ROME, July 15.—Bonce, the tenor, who has just returned from a concert tour in the United States, is the most interviewed man in Italy. He has been telling the newspapers all about his experiences "America," he said to the I. N. S. correspondent, "is practically the only country where the love for music does not assume the form of a passing fad. Music clubs formed to insure if not a season of grand opera, at least one or two concerts by great artists are now springing up in all corners of the country."

"During my last concert tour I sang in many localities where no impresario would have dared to take a company."

"The secret of my visit to many of these small towns came out when, after the concert, I was introduced to this and that gentleman who, by their liberal donations, had made it possible for the people to hear me and my associates."

"American women do not go to the opera merely to display their jewels and gowns. They may do so to some extent in New York, Boston and other large cities, but in the south and west they go only to enjoy the music."

"My impression is that while in every corner of America there is now a genuine demand for good music this demand in Europe is either dying out or is already extinct."

Bonce said his most pleasing experience in the United States was a visit he paid to Thomas Edison.

"Edison gave me a bad scare," he added. "He took me into a padded room where artists sing for graphophone records and there I discovered that I had lost my voice. On leaving I had to sing a few notes to ascertain if my vocal organs were still the same."

VETERANS TO SEE HISTORIC HOMES

Chattanooga, Tenn., Will be Scene of Encampment of Grand Army.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 15.—There are a number of buildings yet standing in Chattanooga that did service for the Union army in 1863, the mention of which will doubtless recall stirring times to several thousand old soldiers who expect to attend the Forty-seventh annual encampment in this city in September. Among these are homes that served as headquarters for famous generals, hospitals for wounded soldiers and morgues for hundreds who were killed in battle. In turn buildings are also standing in which social functions were held before and during the war. Some of these buildings are in good repair, but many of

One of the oldest buildings, if it does not rank first in point of age, in the Chattanooga vicinity, is a mission house at Byrd's mill, a few miles east of the crest of Missionary Ridge where the great battle was fought. This house was erected by Gideon Blackburn, of Pennsylvania, in 1808, who came west as a missionary to the Cherokee Indians. Blackburn was the first missionary sent to this section by the Tennessee Presbytery. He taught the Indians useful occupations as well as religion. Books were put in print here in the Cherokee language. They were printed and distributed by this missionary society, and Missionary Ridge received its name from these missionaries.

HISTORIC SPOT.

The building around which greater interest centered after the occupation of Chattanooga by the Union troops perhaps than all others, is the old Crutchfield hotel, now the Red House, a modern brick hotel building since erected on the site of the Crutchfield House. After the battle of Chickamauga the Crutchfield house was used as an army hospital. Hundreds of wounded soldiers were carried from the battlefield to Chattanooga, a distance of ten miles from Chattanooga, as headquarters in this hotel. It was also headquarters a great deal of the time for Union commanders. Many important conferences were held there, the state of the Union cause discussed and plans laid for military operations. In turn this house has sheltered all of the military officials of the Confederacy that were assigned to this territory, including President Jefferson Davis, of the Confederate States, members of his cabinet and other men high in the councils of the South. Later it served as headquarters for Union commanders, including General U. S. Grant, General George H. Thomas, General Gordon Granger, General Brannan, General Rosecrans and many others. The late Charles A. Smith, assistant secretary of war in Lincoln's cabinet, had a room at the Crutchfield House for some time after the battle of Chickamauga and wrote many important and historic dispatches to the war department there. The historic value of the location is preserved by historical tablets, conspicuously arranged under the eaves of the Crutchfield House, which are the property of the National Park Commission, of which General Charles H. Grosvenor, of Ohio, is chairman.

CRUTCHFIELD FARM.

In war days there was a Crutchfield farm on the Tennessee river a few miles above Chattanooga that will be remembered by every survivor of the Union army. It was with General W. T. Sherman at the time of the famous "March to the Sea." General Sherman first crossed the Tennessee river at Brown's ferry below the city and marched up the north bank until he was opposite the mouth of South Chickamauga creek. Here he re-crossed the river and marched up the hill to the Crutchfield farm. It was at this position of General Patrick Cleburne on Missionary Ridge at Tunnel Hill. Desperate fighting occurred at this point and the Crutchfield home, a commodious farm house was converted into a hospital where several hundred wounded soldiers were given surgical attention. The Crutchfield farm contained 2000 acres. All of the region then embraced in this farm is now thickly covered by residences, and manufacturing plants, entirely from the river to the crest of Missionary Ridge. The Crutchfield farm was the site of a residence for a time of various Union generals, among them Generals Thomas, Vance, Rosecrans and later by General Grant and General Sherman. The house was the property of Thomas Richardson, an English subject, who maintained his nationality to the exclusion of the belligerent troops of both armies, but permitted some of the commanders to occupy rooms without protest.

HOUSE STILL STANDS.

General James A. Garfield occupied the residence of the late Judge D. M. Key, postmaster general in President Hayes' cabinet. This house is still standing and has been kept in good repair. The Loveman residence is built upon the site of the Brabson home. It was headquarters of General Bragg before he evacuated Chattanooga. The Brabson home burned thirty-one years ago. The Nottingham residence, one of the best appointed in Chattanooga, was occupied during the war by Generals Hill and Palmer. The remains of General McFerson, who was killed before Atlanta, lay in state in this residence, surrounded by a military guard of honor.

MADERA PRISONER IS APPLYING FOR PAROLE

MADERA, July 15.—T. H. Murphy, who was sent to state prison on April 18, 1910, for manslaughter, for the killing of Jas. H. Betner with a gun while the two were fighting, has made application for parole. This information was conveyed to District Attorney Larey in a letter from Mark H. Noon, secretary of the board of pardons. The district attorney does not look favorably to the idea. According to the letter Murphy admits the killing at the present time, but claims it was accidental. Larey claims this is the first time he has admitted the killing, and is inclined to the belief that it was not accidental. The case was a sensational one and attracted wide attention here three and a half years ago.

SEEK REMOVAL OF SCHOOL OFFICIAL

Foes of Women Superintendent in King's County Attempt Recall.

HANFORD, July 19.—Petitions seeking the recall and removal from office of Mrs. N. E. Davidson, Kings county's superintendent of schools, have been filed with the county clerk and what promises to be a bitterly waged campaign is thereby launched. The recall was taken up by the friends of T. J. Roessman, principal of the Hanford Union high school, whose teacher's certificate the Kings County Board of Education recently revoked, after a hearing on charges of immorality and unprofessional conduct preferred by Roy Vaughan, a former student under Prof. Roessman.

The grounds stated for the recall are that Mrs. Davidson failed to visit that she circulated scandalous stories about the teacher's conduct and about his standard of education. The petition demands of the supervisors that they call an election as required by law, that a successor to the office may be elected.

The friends of Mrs. Davidson regard her action in the Roessman matter as official. The petitions contain 759 names, whereas 566 names are required. The election will be called some time in September.

FERRETTI UNDER ARREST IN EAST

Man Who Killed Jose Portillo Taken Into Custody in Montreal.

FRESNO, July 19.—Pasqual Ferretti, who shot and instantly killed Jose Portillo in this city on February 28, 1934, is under arrest in Montreal, Canada, after being a fugitive from justice for over nine years.

Three weeks ago Sheriff McSwain received a telegram from Joseph C. Hansen, superintendent of police of Montreal, that Ferretti had been arrested and lodged in jail.

Joseph Ferretti was shot through the heart and instantly killed after eluding the police for nine years. The body of the slain brother-in-law, Antonio Ferretti, was found on the corner of Third and F streets. One of the men who was with Ferretti, who was under the influence of liquor, was shot and killed. The other man, who was under the influence of liquor, was shot and killed. The other man, who was under the influence of liquor, was shot and killed.

JAPANESE FUGITIVE ARRESTED IN FRESNO

FRESNO, July 19.—Kajita, an alleged murderer and fugitive from the Stockton authorities, was arrested at an early hour yesterday morning as he stepped from a Santa Fe train just arrived in Fresno. Patrolmen Castner and Hansen were the arresting officers. The Japanese was lodged in jail and will be held for the Stockton police, who have been notified of his arrest. An officer probably will arrive this evening.

A description of the man was received by telephone at 8 o'clock this morning, and it was stated that he was believed to be the same man who was wanted for the murder of the late Japanese farmer, late Tuesday night. He successfully evaded the police until last night, when they secured his capture, but too late to prevent his departure from the city. He died a short time after the shooting.

ACCUSED OF WIFE BEATING. Charles Clark, 34, a mill worker, was arrested yesterday on a charge of battery filed by his wife. He declared that he came home late and administered a severe beating to her.

SEA LION PLAYS HAVOC IN CAMBRIDGE STORE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 19.—Cambridge had a real sea lion hunt last night. The animal came up out of the Charles river basin and invaded an East Cambridge street, where it hopped about, barking loudly and frightening a crowd, which retreated before it. Attracted by the light of a store it leaped four feet through the window, smashing the heavy plate glass. The proprietor left in a hurry, while the animal raised havoc in the place.

A small squad of police reserves tried to confine it in a packing box and in a big sheet of canvas, but it smashed one and ate its way through the other. Finally men from the Boston aquarium lassoed it and sent it to that institution. There it was said to be a good specimen of a California sea lion, about three years old and weighing more than 200 pounds.

"A rare visitor in New England waters," one of the officials said.

Trolley Superintendent Alleged to Have Maintained a Nuisance.

SACRAMENTO, July 19.—A case unique in municipal annals was recorded today when City Street Superintendent F. G. Wrightson swore to a warrant charging N. G. Hollin, superintendent of the local trolley lines of the Pacific Gas and Electric company, with maintaining a nuisance.

The nuisance results from the alleged failure of the corporation to sprinkle the streets adjacent to its tracks throughout the city, as required by a municipal ordinance.

The complaint recites that the company has repeatedly ignored the ordinance and the clouds of dust resulting constitute a menace to public health.

SLEEPS ON TRACK AND HAS ONE FOOT CUT OFF

OROVILLE, July 19.—In an accident that occurred about a mile from Grady yesterday, Joseph E. Sliger of Grady had his right foot completely cut off by a Southern Pacific freight engine. The injured man was brought to the Oroville Hospital in this city, where Dr. Caldwell dressed his injuries.

Sliger had been in the habit of sleeping on the freight train. He was asleep when the engine passed over the foot, completely severing the right foot just below the ankle.

Sliger was well known in Grady. He is married, and is the father of two children.

Tinkling of Historic Bell Signal for Raising.

The tinkling of a little bell was the signal for breaking out the colors to the band yesterday afternoon. The little bell was an historic relic, as it was made from the filings of the old cracked Liberty Bell, and was carried to the Northern Police Station by Major E. A. Sherman, in whose family it has been treasured for many years. Miss Genevieve Lynch was given the honor of ringing the little bronze bell.

To the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner," the American flag was unfurled to the breezes yesterday afternoon from the old flagstaff, which formerly surmounted the old City Hall, and which has now been erected on the new Northern Police Station in Fifty-second street. As the Stars and Stripes were unfurled, a quartet commenced singing the national air, and the song was taken up by the crowd.

COLORS ARE SPREAD.

Miss Genevieve Lynch, 7-year-old daughter of Captain J. F. Lynch of the Northern Station and granddaughter of the late Sergeant Petr Lynch of Mexican War fame, performed the ceremony of spreading the colors to the strains of the national air, which had been awarded to her grandfather for bravery in defending the flag which was raised over the new station.

The ceremony was preceded by an automobile parade and by the holding of a court of honor by the holding of the Great Caravan in North Oakland. During the program addresses were made by Chief Walter J. Petersen of the police department, Captain J. F. Lynch and by the city commissioners.

MAJOR SHERMAN TALKS.

The flagstaff on which the colors were raised formerly surmounted the old City Hall, and was erected in 1878. Major E. A. Sherman, who was present a generation ago at the first flag raising, delivered a short address, in which he told reminiscences of the old days in the city. The flagstaff has been decorated with a plate bearing the date of its first flag-raising and with that of the ceremony yesterday.

NEW YORK YACHTSMEN TO SAIL AGAINST THOMAS LIPTON'S CLUB.

(By DUNCAN CURRY.)
NEW YORK, July 19.—After many months' delay and almost endless correspondence, the New York Yacht club has at last accepted the Royal Ulster Yacht club challenge on behalf of Sir Thomas Lipton for another race for the America's Cup. The race will be sailed on Sunday, September 16, 1934.

Formal announcement to this effect was made by Secretary G. A. Cormack of the New York Yacht club, tonight. Cormack stated that the challenge had been formally accepted by the New York Yacht club, but they had been waiting for the Royal Ulster Yacht club to accept their conditions before making an announcement. The statement is as follows:

"Cable received today from the committee of the Royal Ulster Yacht club saying that the conditions for a match for the America's Cup had been signed and that they were being forwarded by the Carman."

The conditions of the match are practically the same as those governing previous matches, with the exception that they are under the present racing rules and rule of measurement now in force in the New York Yacht club.

The first race to be sailed on Thursday, September 10, 1934. The second race on Saturday, September 12, the third race on Tuesday, September 15. Further races, if any, to be sailed on each following Thursday, Saturday and Tuesday until finished.

HOW GREETERS LOST $5000 FROM GATES

CHICAGO, July 19.—The sum of $5000 a year, to be used as a sinking fund for the organization, was lost to the Greeters of America, composed of clerks and managers of hotels, by a failure to recognize Charles G. Gates, son of John W. Gates, at the proper time, according to reports of members of the organization in Chicago.

The annual meeting was held in Minneapolis, and during one of the sessions Gates entered. Clarence Schaefer, manager of Portland, Oregon, hotel, who spent yesterday at the Auditorium, told what followed:

"I had a statement to make," he quoted Gates as saying. "Who are you?" asked David Olmsted, of the Hotel Planters, Chicago, president of the association.

"I am Charles Gates, son of my father," was the reply.

"Are you a Greeter?" he was asked by Olmsted. "Yes, and I have a statement to make to the Greeters," said Gates.

"What local do you belong to?" demanded Olmsted.

"No local, but here is my proposition," he was interrupted by Olmsted, who shouted to the sergeant-at-arms to take Gates to the back of the hall.

Gates had told many of the Greeters that he was going to give $5000 a year for a sinking fund for the organization. Olmsted failed to recognize him and we lose $5000 a year.

FLINGS OLD LADY INTO FIREPLACE

Mrs. E. L. Shipley Attacked in Lonely Cabin by Negro.

THE WIFE OF A NEGRO ASSISTANT in a lonely cabin at the extreme western end of the Great Malibu ranch today was attacked by a negro, who, by a sudden thrust of his arm, threw her into a fireplace.

Alone in her cabin, which is on a lonely mountain trail three miles from the nearest neighbor, Mrs. Shipley said she was attacked by a burly negro who, after a struggle of several minutes with her, threw her into a fireplace in which fire was burning.

Though terribly burned she struggled to her feet, and her screams apparently attracted the attention of a negro assistant in a nearby cabin, who rushed to her aid.

Several hours later Mrs. Shipley was found lying unconscious in the cabin, with a severe burn on the back of her head and a deep laceration on the forehead.

WIFE WILL PROSECUTE HUSBAND UNDER NEW LAW

PORTERVILLE, July 19.—Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, a resident of the Westfield district, has sworn to a felony complaint charging her husband with desertion.

Mrs. Marshall related to the officers that her husband had left her after drawing from the bank all their community funds and taking with him a woman whom Mrs. Marshall says she will name at the proper time, and to Los Angeles, if caught.

In California, Marshall can be extradited, but officers have charge of the case and are attempting to locate the husband in the city.

STATE PRINTER ON DOUBLE SHIFT

Growing Demand for Free Books Outstrips Present Equipment.

SACRAMENTO, July 19.—The first fifteen days of this month the state printing office received orders to ship 225,257 books, and from the way the demands are coming in it does not seem possible that the state printing plant with its limited equipment, will be able to fill all the orders. State Printer Friend Wm. Richardson, in an interview today said:

"Up to today we have sent out this year 792,607 books. Last year in the same time the total was 142,161. The demand for books is growing rapidly, and we are unable to fill the orders as fast as they come in."

A complete supply of such essential books as readers, speakers, arithmetic and language books. The state printing plant is now turning out with the same equipment and practically the same size force twice as many books as was ever turned out before in its history, and the cost of the books is being reduced. WOMAN'S WORK
IN CHINATOWN

Wealthy Merchant Held Up;
Two Homes Broken Into.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—Robbers and burglars descended upon Chinatown at an early hour this morning, held up one of the wealthiest Chinese in the Oriental quarters and broke into two homes.

Hong May, of the jewelry firm of Wong May, 1011 Grant avenue, was ascending the stairway at 1053 Grant avenue, to his apartment, when three Chinese robbers attacked him. One of them was armed with a pistol, a second grabbed him around the neck and the third took $2,000 from his pocket. Following the assault Hong rushed to the street and notified Patrolman Ritter and Bohle to whom he asserted that he could identify the robbers.

A short time later Leon Get of 855 Stockton street, entered his home to find the entire house ransacked and $159 taken. Mr. Ham Sue, who lives at 924 Grant avenue, also fell a victim to burglars, losing valuables to the amount of $92.60.

WOMAN MAY HAVE STARVED HERSELF

Found Unconscious, With Chloroform Tumbler Beside Her.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—An unidentified woman, apparently about 40 years old, was found unconscious shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon in a room at 803 Turk street. She was lying on a couch and beside her was a tumbler which had contained chloroform. The woman hired the room about a week ago and did not give her name or otherwise make herself known to people in the house. It is believed that she has been starving herself, as another lodger stated that she did not believe the woman had left the house to procure food. She was rushed to the Central Emergency Hospital where she is still in a stupor. She may recover. The woman was neatly dressed, of medium height and had dark hair and eyes.

SYSTEMATIC THIEVERY
IN S. F. SUSPECTED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—A number of burglaries were committed in the Ashbury Heights district and the territory adjacent thereto late last night, and the police are of the opinion that the same thief is responsible in all cases. The first report came from the home of J. F. Thomson, 17 Carl street. The family were in the front part of the house and the thief opened a bedroom window taking $113 in valuables.

At the residence of J. W. Ragan, 87 Central avenue, jewelry, money and clothing to the amount of $244 was stolen.

The last visit was paid to the home of J. M. Grauer, 1283 Pierce street, where valuables totaling $116 were obtained.

BOY LASSOES FREIGHT TRAIN; NEARLY KILLED

FORNHILL, Mo., July 19.—Willie McGaugh, 10 years old, while playing cow boy lassoed a moving train and found it was worse than any of the imaginary Texas steers that he had been roping. He was dragged about one hundred feet and badly bruised, but not seriously injured.

While his parents gave him a full cow boy outfit for the Fourth and the last fired his toy pistol, killing imaginary Indians and proving himself a terror of the plains, but he looked for new victims and played a vicious pranks on a buster and cattle roper.

After roping hitching posts and door-knobs all the way from his home to the railroad station, he discovered a freight train on the siding. With accurate twist of his rope he threw the noose over the brake wheel.

I am unpopular with some dentists because I am popular with the public. Success incites narrow minds to plots and intrigues. Such people believe they can only build up themselves by tearing down the man above. I didn't succeed that way.—PAINLESS PARKER.

LONDON MINUS HIS APPENDIX
HE LEAVES FOR THE SOUTH

BAS-RELIEF OF JACK LONDON RECENTLY COMPLETED BY FENN H. FROELICH, A LOCAL SCULPTOR.

Almost recovered from his operation for appendicitis Jack London will leave for Los Angeles tonight. Mrs. London will accompany him. The trip is necessitated by business, and is not a step forward in convalescence, but marks the return to health of the author.

London's recovery is one of the most remarkable in the history of appendicitis operations in this city. On Monday, July 7, he was operated on by Dr. W. S. Porter at the Merritt hospital, and last Thursday, nine days later, he was able to be dressed and to go to the home of his mother, Mrs. Flora London, on Twenty-seventh street, where he has been since that time. He was prevented from going to a prize fight Thursday evening only by the fact that the house was sold out, and since leaving the hospital has been to the theater every evening with Mrs. London, who is his constant companion.

Last evening London was the guest of honor at a dinner given at the Hotel Oakland to celebrate his recovery, with Dr. W. S. Porter as host. He looked as fit and well as if his illness had been two months ago instead of two weeks.

After a short stay in Los Angeles the Londons will go to their ranch home at Glen Ellen, where the author commands a principality of his own in fertile acres. They will remain there during the winter.

The picture of London shown here-with is from a photograph of a portrait bas-relief done by Fenn H. Froelich, a sculptor who recently arrived here from New York. Froelich was the guest of Jack London at Glen Ellen for some time last winter, and the medallion was made under the interested supervision of the author's wife herself. It is said by Mrs. London to be the best likeness ever made of her famous husband.

London received hundreds of letters and cablegrams of condolence on the first news of his illness, and now that his recovery is known letters of congratulation are pouring in as plentifully. He has been spending each day in bed, where he would read the messages and dictate the answers to Mrs. London, who is his amanuensis at all times.

After the return to Glen Ellen London will settle down to serious literary work. He has several stories and novels in process of completion awaiting his return home.

ATTEMPTS ATTACK ON YOUNG GIRLS

Young Rancher Makes Confession After Being Pursued and Caught.

VISALIA, July 19.—William B. Robertson, a young rancher of Delano, attempted an attack on the two young daughters, aged 9 and 12 years respectively, of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Gepford, 1629 I street, Fresno, at Pine Flat, above the California Hot Springs. He was caught after pursuit by forest rangers and sheriff's deputies, near Lerdo, in Kern county. When lodged in jail here Robertson confessed to the crime. Although heavily armed with a Winchester and two revolvers, Robertson made no resistance. Both the girls escaped unharmed.

About 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, Robertson took the two children with him to the horse pasture several hundred yards from where the Gepfords had pitched their camping tent. Shortly thereafter, Mrs. Gepford was attracted to the scene by the screams of her little daughters. Rushing to the stable, she saw Robertson mount his horse and flee toward the mountains.

Questioning the children, Mrs. Gepford was informed of the attempted crime.

Forest rangers and campers were notified and immediately took up the work of locating Robertson. Sheriff Collins of Visalia was immediately notified, as were other officers of the valley.

Hearing that Robertson was headed for Bakersfield, the local deputies Dave Wright and Charles Smith left this city in an automobile. They pursued him as far as near Lerdo. The officers came upon Robertson as he was drinking from a barrel used by section hands. In his possession were found a lady's handbag and some jewelry.

S. F. Police Force TO BE COMPLETELY REORGANIZED BY ROLPH

AN FRANCISCO, July 19.—The reorganization of the police force will not stop with the change in the chief cided that White must go, but White's going will be followed by other radical changes. The commission will also be reorganized and brought into harmony with Mayor Rolph's ideas and policy.

The mayor has not lost confidence in White's honesty, but he has no faith in his strength of character. White is a good easy man, too tolerant of vices and of people who thrive on vices, and the mayor thinks that the larger interests of the community should not be sacrificed for one man. He has grown very restive under the recent exposures and feels that the inefficiency of the police department is a serious reflection on his administration. He realizes that something must be done to restore the public confidence in the administration of the laws. He does not wish to make White the goat, but he does not want the public interests sacrificed because a well-meaning man fails to meet the requirements.

The truth is, White lacks force of character; he is not a strong man and it is his disposition to follow the line of least resistance. He has no punch. He takes too much for granted and is too lenient with a certain class of offenders.

In justice to himself and the community, Mayor Rolph is determined upon a radical change. The change will run from top to bottom. The reorganization will begin with the commission and will go clear down to the patrolmen. As soon as a man can be found who will fill the bill, he will take White's place and the commission will be reconstituted in accordance with the mayor's ideas and policy.

Minor Changes

Captain Mooney is still talking. That is his fatal fault. He cannot refrain from talking his head off when anything comes up which brings him and the detective force in the limelight. Much of the trouble in the police department is due to the absurd civil service laws. The chief of the detective force must be taken from the police captains.

Nobody but the police captains is eligible to this position. The commissioners can ring for a messenger boy and make him chief of police, but when they want a chief of detectives they must pick him from the police captains. Not one of the police captains is ideally fitted for the duties of a detective chief. They have gained their promotion by long service and by political favor. It is the policy of each and every one to temper the wind to gain political favor. The bunch that the commissioners have to choose from leaves them only "Hobson's choice." The one nearest the door will fill the bill as well as any of the others, but he is quite sure not to fill it as it ought to be filled.

The police commissioners got themselves in bad with the community when they evaded the issue when the bunko exposures were sprung. They washed their hands of the matter and left it to the courts to deal with derelictions in the department. Having once passed the buck they find themselves unable to get hold of it again; having flunked once the people are not inclined to trust them the second time. They would like to take hold and conduct an investigation, but having once decided that they should not hold any investigation until the courts have passed upon the criminal charges brought they cannot consistently do now what they ought to have done in the first place.

Therefore they do not possess the confidence of the community, nor of the mayor. They lack decision and firmness and have faltered with a condition that demanded prompt and drastic action. The mayor believes that other men are required for the duties in hand. He does not believe an effective reorganization can be had without an infusion of new blood in the heads of the department.

The Spreckels-Phelan Feud

Rudolph Spreckels failed in part in the attack he made upon Charlie Fay. He succeeded with W. J. Bryan's help in getting Fay turned down for Collector of Port, but he is disappointed to find that Fay is selected for a position equally as good. He does not want Fay to have anything and is wroth to find that Fay is to be made postmaster.

It transpires that Fay's turn-down for the collectorship was the cause of Arthur Fisk being asked to resign as postmaster. Fisk was asked to step down and out because a place had to be made for Fay. Fay's application for the collectorship was Phelan a vacancy was created in the postoffice that he might have a place.

The situation is delightful to nobody, unless it be Phelan and Fay. Spreckels has been defeated in fornia has been kicked in the face. That is why everybody laughs except Arthur Fisk.

J. O. Davis won out because Bryan urged his appointment. That fact was not disclosed until the last moment. Bryan was not antagonizing Phelan nor helping Spreckels, but he was pulling on Davis' end of the string to soak Theodore Bell. In his opinion the appointment of Davis to the chief federal office on the Pacific Coast would be a slap at Bell that could not be misunderstood.

Spreckels is coming back with a club and an awful grouch. He proposes to exterminate Rolph and put the Rolph administration out of business altogether. Just how he proposes to do it has not been disclosed, but it is certain that he will make all the trouble that he can and endeavor to incite an insurrection in the Board of Supervisors against the mayor. He has convinced himself that it is his duty to thwart everything Rolph proposes to do and to throw obstacles in his path whenever he can. He is in the humor of Bosco, who advertised that he "ate 'em alive." He made himself a nuisance in Washington and I hear that President Wilson heaved a great sigh of relief when he departed. He dined all the quarrels and scandals of California into the ears of the President until the President felt like calling on the red cross for relief from the infliction.

Theory and Job Chasing

Experience has demonstrated that physical presence counts for a great deal more in Washington than anything else if a man wants a job. The President and members of the Cabinet all complain of the presence of office-seekers and advise all job chasers to stay at home and make their applications by letter.

But it is found that practically every man who goes in person after a job usually gets it. The fellow who stays back and forwards letters and endorsements gets left. Frequently the President appoints men to positions to get rid of them. Like the girl who married an importunate suitor to get rid of him, he finds that is the only way to get peace. A small man in Washington has more pull than a dozen men of real prominence at home.

Which shows that the instinct of the office-seeker is correct. He understands the value and the strength of personal importunity. He is not bothered by scruples or by any delicacy about invading the privacy of men in exalted station, but he wants something and he goes after it in the most directed method he is acquainted with and he usually lands the persimmon. This history repeats itself and theory gets another black eye.

Democratic Congressmen Peeved

All is not lovely with our California representatives in Washington—the Democratic ones I mean. Raker, Church and Kettner are disappointed and miffed to find that they have no influence in the distribution of patronage in this State. They admit to their friends with chagrin that Mr. Spreckels, a Republican, and Mr. Phelan, who holds no official position in the Democratic party, control all the patronage of this State, save the plums which Frank Lane manages to pull out for his personal friends.

Neither Phelan nor Lane has done anything for the party. Mr. Spreckels, of course, has no use for the Democratic party, nor for any other party that does not submit to his dictation. The Congressmen are not asked who should be appointed, nor are Democratic committees consulted.

Mr. Lane is asked what he wants for his friends and Mr. Phelan recommends persons who will render personal obedience to Mr. Phelan, regardless of what may happen to the party.

David Starr Jordan represents unbiased public opinion. The said unbiased public opinion being whatever Dr. Jordan happens for the moment to think. As his opinions change with great frequency, he is not altogether a safe adviser to the President.

The Quandary of Tom Fox

Tom Fox of Sacramento was notified by wire that he would relieve the President from embarrassment by declining the appointment to the postmastership of that city. Fox is not a good Samaritan. Being a practical politician he prefers to let somebody else walk the floor. As the President was good enough to appoint him, he thinks that the President can better relieve himself of embarrassment by withdrawing Fox's nomination instead of asking Fox to pull out when he wants the place.

So Fox has gone on to Washington. He understands the value of personal solicitation. He is also a good single handed talker and can tell the President a few things that would be worth his while to know. Fox's only sin is having participated actively in politics. He has been a wheel horse for the Democracy in Sacramento County and when he was postmaster before made a record that is unsalable.

A great many people are opposing him without knowing why they are doing so, or much about the man. But it shows how the President got mixed up when he desires his own appointees to get out of the way after he has selected them for important positions. He would like to get rid of Fox.

standing and Democrats throughout the State express no sentiment of loyalty to the administration, because they regard it as something apart from themselves and from the political principles they profess. As one of them expressed it to me the other day, it is an ugly dump and grape juice.

The Local Political Situation

Some curiosity is evinced as to what effect the quarrel between Spreckels and Phelan will have on local politics. How will it affect the future of certain Supervisors—particularly Murphy and Giannini? Under whose banner will they array themselves, or will they divide? Spreckels at present pays taxes on their assessed valuation, which is very small, but Phelan is regarded as having a proprietary interest in at least one of them.

Will there be a suit of partition, or will they be divided as a political asset by a Solomonic decision? If they are to be cut apart and the pieces distributed, will they be divided longitudinally or latitudinally? They have hitherto voted and acted together, but now that their political patrons have agreed to disagree the momentous question arises as to whether they will be distributed in separate parcels or in broken pieces. It does not really make any difference, but the speculation serves to enliven dog-day political discussion.

The Gambling Joints

Some time ago in these columns I remarked on the inability of Chief White to discover the location of the numerous gambling joints which flourish in the city. He repeatedly announced that he had suppressed gambling and that the police were unable to find any gambling joints in operation.

I stated then that the location of the gambling joints was as notorious as the Palace and St. Francis hotels, that their presence were forced on the attention of strangers even when they were not looking for them and did not desire to visit them. The chief said there were none in existence and threw himself a few bouquets for suppressing all such establishments.

Now mark the result. An exposure has brought out the fact that over 100 such places exist in San Francisco; that even members of the force belong to them and visit them. The chief acknowledges that he knew of their existence because he says he instructed the officers to visit the gambling joints in uniform to see that the law was not violated. Instructing them to go in uniform of course would warn the gamblers against violating the law while the officers were present. Nobody was arrested. Men were robbed every day in these joints and the amounts for which suckers were fleeced was the subject of discussion in the saloons and on the streets, and strange to say the chief knew nothing about all this. His uniformed men went around to the joints and saw nothing wrong, and the business went on undisturbed.

It is said, moreover, that members of the police commission were well aware of this condition of affairs and gave it their tacit consent. At least they never called the chief's attention to his lack of vigilance in this direction and never made the slightest effort to make the police department do its duty.

As in the case of the Barbary Coast dives, action was only taken when outraged public opinion demanded it and forced the commissioners and chief to act. The bunko business would be still going on in undisturbed serenity if District Attorney Fickert had not kicked down the subterfuges and compelled an exposure, and to do this he was compelled to call upon men outside the police department to get the evidence. That is why Mayor Rolph thinks a thorough reorganization of the police department, chief and commission included, is necessary that public confidence may be restored in police activities.

The Sweet Wine Tax

The wine producers are up in arms against the proposed tax on brandy used to fortify sweet wines. All the Democratic grape growers are outraged and indignant. If the proposal goes through it is safe to say not a wine man in the State will vote the Democratic ticket at the next election. You should hear them talk.

"We will not vote again to ruin our industry and destroy the value of our property," said a veteran Democrat from Fresno at the St. Francis yesterday. "Putting a tax of $1.10 a gallon on brandy used to fortify sweet wines increases the cost of each gallon of sweet wine by twenty cents at least. We might as well dig up our vineyards and go out of the business. We simply can't exist if this tax is put upon us."

"I have been voting the Democratic ticket for forty years, but here is where I quit. My vineyard will be worth less than the bare land if this tax goes through. My wine-making plant will be worthless and I will be put to the expense of clearing the land of vines. Never again. All my neighbors think about this thing as I do. They are hit in the pocket and taught a lesson that will keep them from sucking eggs in future."

"The Pomerene brandy tax will not put revenue in the coffers of the government, but it will hand over the home market to the sweet wine makers of Europe. Maybe that is what they want to do, but it is not what we voted for them to do when we sent a Democrat to represent our district in Congress. Church is opposing the sweet wine brandy tax, but the Democratic caucus will ride over him and he will not go back to Washington a second time."

Wilson's Advisers ARE MANY; SOME ARE SOBERLY DISAPPOINTED

the wrong crowd. He is lined up with the enemies of the California wine and raisin men. That will be enough to beat him. The grape men in Fresno County are mad and disgusted clear through, and they are going to call every candidate running the Democratic label the next time they go to the polls. We have had a belly full of fool legislation, and that is all there is to it."

Then the old war horse mopped his perspiring brow with a bandana handkerchief and blew a loud blast from his nose to denote his defiance to the Democratic majority in Congress.

"I tell you, we've had enough," he added as he made his way to the bar. "Never again will I vote my money away because my daddy was a Democrat and voted for Andy Jackson. This fool outfit calling itself the Democratic party can't make me vote to ruin myself to benefit a bunch of foreign importers in New York. No sirree; not for Joseph! Watch the returns from old Fresno if you don't believe what I say." Again he snorted defiance and said fiercely, "Gimme Bourbon—no rye; I've changed my whisky with my politics."

The Wickedness of San Francisco

I met a prominent Eastern advertising man the other day, and he was good enough to inform me that San Francisco was a fake as a wicked city.

"It's all a bluff," he remarked. "Just a little vaudeville vivacity and unconventionality that means nothing at all when you come to examine it. I had been led to believe that it was something altogether different, that San Francisco was a reckless, sizzling place where high balls and high kicking was the rule every time."

"Sure it's all a bluff. This town isn't really wicked. What passes for wickedness is mostly make-believe—a sort of mardi gras gaiety that makes the boobs stare and the preachers turn up their eyes and feel that life has too many good things for sinners. I have been looking for wickedness ever since I came here, but all I've found is a few skin games, some ordinary loose women of the regular commercial type, cabaret singing and dago dinners in the so-called Latin quarter. This town is a Sunday school village going through the motions of being deliciously wicked and gay."

"Why, I haven't seen a street walker since I came here. Broadway is swarming with them after eight o'clock in the evening. In Boston they accost the stranger almost at the church door, and in Philadelphia they are to be found in force on all the fashionable street promenades. Bathhouse John's district in Chicago can give San Francisco cards and spades in the line of licentiousness. There the women have been turned out of their regular resorts, and they have gone to the apartment and lodging houses and are mixing things at a terrible rate. You get the high sign everywhere, in the most unexpected places and in all sorts of company."

"There is not a real slum in this town. You ought to visit certain districts in New York and staid old Boston, which is closed as tight as a drum on Sunday, and imagines it is virtuous because it will not allow baseball to be played on the Lord's day. Philadelphia was the worst slum in America and immorality of a variegated and degraded sort that you wouldn't allow here for a minute. Take it all around, San Francisco is the cleanest large city I have visited. But you've been advertised as the Paris of America, and people in this country imagine there is nothing but wickedness in Paris."

"About the noisiest nasty thing I have encountered here is the stuff the Bulletin is running daily. I don't see why you people stand for it. It is the hottest red-light dope I ever saw printed in a daily newspaper. It is a mystery to me why the postal authorities allow it to go through the mails. A man would promptly be sent to jail for selling such matter in book form. A lot of it is evidently pure, or rather impure, fiction cooked up to keep the mill going. It is all alike in one respect, though, the girl invariably falls and the manner of her falling is told with an attention to detail that can have only one effect on youthful minds."

"Such contributions to salacious literature help sustain your reputation for wickedness, but they are a libel on the community. If I am any judge, they go to show, as I said before, that San Francisco is a bluff as a wicked city. The Bulletin is doing its level best to keep up the bluff, and incidentally to make the bluff good."

Mack Took the Tip

I am informed by a close friend of Hull McClaughry that the man who persuaded him to allow his wife to get a divorce and to settle for $250,000 or under, was Charles S. Wheeler. To be sure, Wheeler was McClaughry's attorney, but he also acted in the advisory capacity of a friend. McClaughry, as is not generally known, demanded $500,000 as his share for the freeing of his wife. Anita Baldwin McClaughry. He was stubborn and for months refused to give in. Mrs. McClaughry was equally as set on having her own way, and in Los Angeles she told her then husband that he must be satisfied with $250,000 or nothing at all.

"I have been in the courts for years," replied McClaughry and that night he boarded a train for San Francisco and called on his friend Wheeler.

"I want half a million or nothing at all," stormed McClaughry in Wheeler's office in the Union Trust building.

"Listen to me, Mack," Wheeler is said to have replied. "For my part, as your attorney, I would sue for ten millions, but as your friend, I would advise you to settle on a compromise for $250,000."

McClaughry took the tip.

OMINOUS VIEW FORECASTS CONFLICT

Prof. Di Palma Sees American-Japanese War as Inevitable Event.

Thinks Present Naval Program of United States a Fatal Mistake.

(BY CAMILLO CIANFARRA)

ROME, July 19.—Professor F. Di Palma, editor of the Italian Review, a deputy in the Italian Parliament and Italy's foremost naval expert, in a talk with THE TRIBUNE correspondent, gave the following views on the situation:

As Japan thinks she is ready to assume a political protectorate over the yellow race and gain control of the Pacific in the interest of her fast-growing population, which is continually seeking rich land and remunerative markets.

He pointed out that the hopes of the American "Pacificists" are certain to be shattered and that the present naval program of the United States is a fatal mistake, especially in view of the new obligations which the opening of the Panama Canal imposes on the United States.

"Japan is building more ships," Professor Di Palma said. "What makes this ominous is that Japan builds quietly and steadily."

"We cannot refrain from asking ourselves why Japan wants a navy so disproportionate to her present resources, and to what use she is aiming to put it."

WHO IS FOR?

"We used to say that sometimes a nation prepares for war only for the purpose of securing peace, but this always presupposes a foe. And who is Japan's foe, now that Russian revenge is out of the question?"

"A sincere wish to keep the peace is not alone sufficient to insure it. This desire, if carried to the absurd length of refraining from providing the country with the only means of defense, an army and navy, can only lead to national disaster and humiliation."

"In America's case Pacificists must never forget that besides the immigration question there are others which Japan will one day proceed to settle. When the United States is asked to recall there is a protest quietly lodged with your State Department, according to which Japan objects to the annexation, and, what is more pointed, declares she would never recognize it."

"No other nation sided with Liliuokalani, the little deposed queen, but Japan did. It is the only one who still has a claim for her to do it by protesting. She was then prepared for the struggle with Russia."

"To my knowledge, that protest has never been withdrawn and one day your State Department will be reminded of it. CAN WAIT."

"Do not ask me when. Some time ago I expressed my opinion that the day would come before the opening of the Panama Canal, but today, after the adoption by your Congress of the present naval program calling for building only two ships a year, Japan knows she can wait."

"Four years hence your new splendid up-to-date fleet will be inferior even in the matter of fighting units to that which Japan will possess, and then even the advantage of moving your Atlantic squadron to the Pacific in a short time will be of little help to you."

"You are losing precious time. Battleships age rapidly, a single year of protection or offense might render ship obsolete."

"Besides, no nation ever prepared for war in a year or two. Military efficiency is the result of long work extending over many years. Every European nation has learned that."

Several well-informed Italian papers, in discussing the recent controversy between Japan and the United States, have expressed the fear that Japan may one day also solve the canal question for Europe by forcing the United States to internationalize the waterway.

ITALIAN RESORTS.

ROME, July 19.—Probably never before have there been so many American visitors at the Italian and other continental resorts; every place is full of them. Meanwhile the natives and other residents of the various capitals have fled to the watering places.

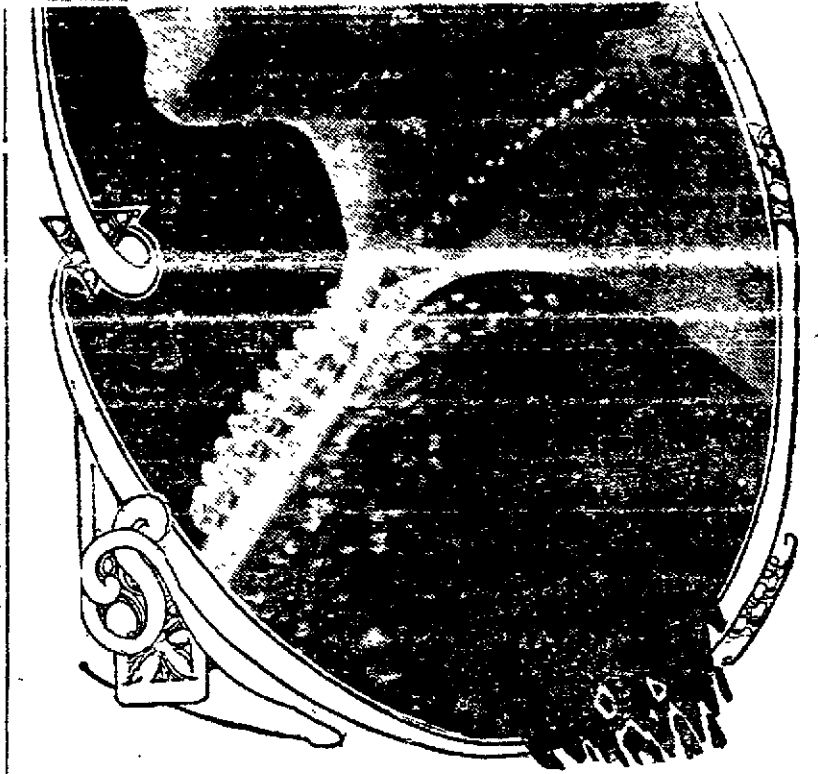

Ambassador and Mrs. O'Brien are now at Fregene, where they are taking the water cure. The Ambassador soon leaves for the Atlantic Lakes, where he will spend a short vacation.

RETIRED CAPTAIN MAY BE RESTORED

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Restoration to the navy active list of Captain Temple M. Potts with the rank of rear admiral is proposed in a bill introduced by Senator Martin.

Captain Potts was recently retired by the "plucking board." Friends contend that he has been a victim of unusual circumstances.

MARCONI AND WIFE IN NEWPORT BOTH EXTENSIVELY ENTERTAINED

MRS. WILLIAM MARCONI, WIFE OF THE WIRELESS TELEGRAPH INVENTOR, VISITING WITH HIM AT NEWPORT.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Mr. and Mrs. William Marconi are again in America, and Newport is pleased as usual with the charming Englishwoman and her talented husband. Exclusive affairs of all kinds are being extended the couple, although beach teas and strictly informal luncheons compose a large part of the social program for their entertainment.

Mrs. Marconi was formerly Miss Beatrice O'Brien, only daughter of the great Irish Baron Inchiquin. Her marriage to Marconi was the culmination of a romance in which the wireless system, of which he is the owner and inventor, played a very important part.

It was during a business trip to Dublin that he first met the beautiful Irish girl, and after a few days of acquaintance the two were seen frequently together.

The wireless system was then occupying all of the inventor's attention, and it was not until the summer of 1901 that he and his wife came to America.

Marconi's income is said to be one of the largest in the British Empire, his earnings from the wireless interests alone climbing close into the millions, and rents from his London office buildings adding many thousands monthly to his enormous income.

Estimates for the departments under Commissioner of Public Health and Safety F. C. Turner for the current fiscal year amount to $1,171,251.50, or an increase of $78,452.47 over what was asked a year ago for the same departments. It is anticipated that a similar cut will be made this time when the estimates are gone over, in the hope of keeping down the tax rate.

SHAM SICKNESS TO COLLECT THEIR INSURANCE

England Finds That New Law Gives Workmen Chance to Soldier.

London Discusses Question of Dying Out of Family Names.

LONDON, July 19.—If all men were perfectly honest schemes like the Liberal Government Insurance Act might be ideal schemes. But the few months in which the act has been in operation have shown that it is not so.

Some employers who pay small amounts of feigned illness among the insured is becoming a great scandal. In this respect the experience of Germany, which furnished the model for the Lloyd George bill. The Germans have invented a new word for the illness of the government insured, and some similar word will be needed in England.

Fourteen million people are now paying the contributions, "licking stamps," the government's opponents say derisively. Undoubtedly many of them find fault with the administration of the act, and probably some amendments will be found necessary. New problems have arisen every day. An employer has written to the papers that because an employee had been four or five months in jail charged with murder. The trial resulted in acquittal. The employer wants to take back the man, but wants to know who is to pay the insurance contributions for the time of detention. The act says nothing on that point.

For the time opposition to the insurance scheme, or rather criticism of it, is the principal political capital of the Conservative party. Home Rule and Welsh Disestablishment have taken back seats as targets for attack. But while the Conservatives declare that compulsory insurance is a failure their leaders do not go so far as to urge repeal. It is unpopular with many people, but whether it is not popular with the great majority of the insured is still an open question.

BUSINESS OF ANCESTORS.

A discussion as to whether Londoners die out with the third generation, as so often asserted, has been taking place in the daily papers. One paper suggested that it would be difficult to find a Londoner of the fourth generation and as a result has received many curious pedigrees. Some of them date back two hundred years, with a great-grandfather born in a place where the descendant hopes to die. Most of these come from districts where trades are handed down from father to son, and in almost all of them it was found that the present generation were carrying on the business established by their ancestors. It has been pointed out, however, that the Londoners who make London have been drawn from the country to the city.

INADEQUATE HOSPITALS.

Sir William Osler, Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford, has been voicing the opinion of the medical profession at the inadequacy of the hospital accommodation in England, and comparing unfavorably the voluntary system here with the system in America and Canada, where all hospitals accept paying patients. Throughout the United Kingdom the hospitals accept no pay from their patients, with the result that they are crowded with those who cannot afford to pay, and in many cases are practically closed because of the lack of funds to allow all the beds to be occupied, while people who could afford to pay something have to go to nursing homes, which are in most cases very expensive, or be nursed at home.

The result, according to doctors with large practices, is that only the very poor obtain a very rich proper medical attention.

MAY ALIER CAPITOL.

One of the possibilities of the return of the Labor party to power in Australia, where they secured a majority of one over the Labor party in the Lower House, is that the plans for the new capitol at Canberra may be altered. The opposition, and the architects of Sydney have memorialized the new premier to set it aside. Of course the Liberals are not likely to establish in office, but they have to appoint a speaker, which would leave them with exactly the same strength on the floor of the House as that of the Laborites, who also have a majority in the Upper House. It was for this reason that McMahon, a member of the Senate, was appointed minister of defense, as it will be his duty to attend the proposed naval conference at Vancouver, where the future naval policy of the Dominions, having a frontier on the Pacific, will be decided. The ministry will also continue the preferential negotiations with Canada.

JERUSALEM IS DULL.

Since the extension of compulsory military service to non-Jews, there has been a marked tendency to emigrate among the more intelligent Jews and Christians of Jerusalem, a tendency which is being encouraged by the abuses of the tax collector, and the encouraging reports received from friends and relatives already settled in America, according to the report of the British Consul stationed there. The population of Jerusalem, according to this report, is composed roughly of 50,000 Jews, 15,000 Christians and 15,000 Moslems. The British community, largely a missionary one, comprises about 250 persons. Owing to the war and the consequent falling off in the number of tourists, the city is now a very dull place.

BERLIN, July 19.—The German war ministry is preparing a bill to supply the army with new artillery, according to Militaerish Politische Korrespondenz which is usually well informed on military matters. From the same source it is learned that the German ministry of marine already has prepared a bill providing a fleet of cruisers for foreign service.

The Condition That Confronts Us

In a year and a half the Panama-Pacific exposition will be opened to the public. Thousands of sightseers from all over the world will daily visit San Francisco, and Oakland. They will take note of every evidence of thrift and progress. They will judge us by what they see among us, by what we are not doing as much by what we are doing.

Every proof of failure will be recorded against us. Every evidence of waning and discouraged spirit will be set down to our discredit.

Can we afford to let the city hall stand unfinished, when the inundation of visitors from the East and Europe pours into this State? Can we afford to let it remain in its present condition as an advertisement of failure and loss of confidence in ourselves? Completed, it will excite praise and admiration and give strangers a favorable impression of this city and its people. It is a structure unique of its class, and a landmark no one can fail to observe. It catches the eye from whatever point the city is approached, dominating the landscape like some giant monument. Finished and occupied, it will be something our citizens can show every stranger with pride; ask every visitor to note as an evidence of the taste, ambition and public spirit of the inhabitants of Oakland.

Uncompleted it will be a mark of shame. It will silently tell something we would all wish to hide. It will stand before all the world as a memorial to failure. It would give the stranger a distinctly unfavorable impression of the city and its people. It would be something to explain away, and it could not be explained away. Instead of pointing to it with pride, we could only pass it by with an apology. When we boasted of our growing population, our wealth, progress and public spirit, we would be greeted with the inevitable question:

"Why don't you complete your city hall? What is the matter with your town that you spend a million of dollars on so beautiful a public building, and then leave it unfinished and unoccupied while you house your municipal offices in a rented shack?"

Think what this would mean for us. Are our people prepared for an ordeal so shameful? Do they not already feel the sting of the mocks and jeers the city hall in its present state will provoke? Would not the city suffer a financial loss far exceeding the sum required to complete the building and fit it up for the purpose it was planned to serve?

The city hall must be completed some time. It must be completed in accordance with the original specifications, or it will be a botch. The interior must correspond with the splendid exterior. Cheap plaster and woodwork inside cannot be made to harmonize with cut granite walls and an architectural scheme at once splendid and beautiful. It would be like putting a rag carpet on the floor of a palace. We should be ashamed to show visitors the inside of a building with an exterior so noble, so ostentatious, so imposing and so appealing to the eye. A shabby interior would destroy all the effect of an exterior which commands and adorns the city.

Surely no one is in favor of letting the city hall stand unfinished permanently. Surely no one with an eye to the future and the fitness of things will favor completing the interior with shabby materials and inferior work. All, we think, will agree that the hall must be finished in time as it was planned. It is inconceivable that any other decision should be reached. Any other decision would be folly so rank that no one outside of a lunatic asylum can seriously contemplate it.

Since the hall must ultimately be completed, why not now? While it stands unfinished the city is paying $12,000 a year rent for mean and squalid accommodations. The taxpayers are paying a heavy penalty for delaying the completion of the building. In the meantime they are preserving the unfinished structure as a shame to the city and as a reproach to the civic enterprise of its citizens.

It will require an additional bond issue of $796,000 to complete, equip and furnish the hall. This is not such a large sum. Under any other circumstances THE TRIBUNE would oppose the issuance of more bonds for any purpose till the financial stringency has passed, but in the present instance there is nothing else to do—that is, if we are sensible and have a practical regard for our own interests. The alternative is so much worse that there is no room for hesitation. Notwithstanding the cost, it will be money in the pockets of the taxpayers and property owners to complete the hall now and not hereafter. To do this the bonds must be voted. We cannot complete it in time for the exposition otherwise. And we have got to complete it ultimately. Delay will in the end be more costly than to go ahead; moreover, it will give the town a black eye which would injure every property owner and give Oakland a bad name abroad.

The situation, disagreeable as it is, must be faced, and the only thing to do is to face it manfully and sensibly. Cowardice will not relieve the situation. Public duty cannot be evaded by postponing it. In the present instance postponement will only increase the final bill of expense and inflict an injury on the city.

Vote the bonds and complete the city hall now. Then when the exposition opens we can invite strangers to come to Oakland without shame, confident that they will admire all they see here and be impressed by the courage and public spirit displayed by our citizens.

As to the schools, the voters are merely asked to authorize an increase in the interest to a figure, not exceeding 5½ per cent, that will enable the city to sell the bonds already authorized by popular vote. We have no doubt what the answer will be. Our schoolrooms are over crowded to a point dangerous to health, and they are daily becoming more over crowded. The uncompleted buildings are deteriorating while school children are denied the facilities imperatively needed.

Here again there is nothing to be done, but approve an increase in the interest rate. To do otherwise is to injure the school department and wrong our children. So every citizen with the interest of the schools and the city at heart will vote aye on all the propositions submitted. To paraphrase Martin Luther; "Here we stand; so help us God, we cannot do otherwise." So let us brace up and go ahead, not fall down and write failure across our high hopes and civic ambitions.

Anonymous Advice.

An anonymous circular is out addressed "To the Improvement Clubs of Oakland," and opposing the proposition to put on school, harbor and auditorium bonds a selling rate of interest, and opposing also the proposition to finish and furnish the new city hall.

The anonymous letter writer and lampooner is always a coward and sneak and usually a blackguard, and it is unthinkable that such should influence the people of this city.

For thirty years we have been talking about a new city hall and the opening of Washington street. After three decades of talk we now have both of these desirable and long-needed improvements. That the new city hall is externally and not internally finished is not the result of bad business judgment or of any mistake. The people were widely advised that more money would be needed and asked for to finish and furnish the building if it were built on the plans and proportions in which it now stands, a credit to Oakland and a monumental advertisement of the enterprise and civic pride of our people. If the arguments now made against finishing and furnishing it shall prevail, it is easy to conceive that they will continue to prevail, and we may go on discussing for another thirty years whether the building ought to be finished. The anonymous circular writer represents the yellow streak. Let us limit that sign of cowardice to him and his kind and not put it up as a sign for the whole city.

Governor Foss of Massachusetts abandoned the Republican party because it would not make a tariff to fit his business regardless of how other people were affected. He now makes the same complaint against the Democrats. Foss wants a tariff for Foss, and is in a great rage because he can't get it. He says he is going to move his manufacturing plants to Canada. Let us hope he will accompany them. His plan of tariff reform is so grossly selfpelled to buy abolished and a heavy duty levied on everything Massachusetts sells. He wants protection for Massachusetts exclusively, and reciprocity with Canada strictly on the basis of benefit to himself and the Bay State. If Congress does not give him what he wants he threatens to move his shops to Canada. The fewer patriots we have of his class the better for the country. Here's your hat, Governor. Good-bye.

Oakland's Steady Growth.

June is not usually an active month for building, but Oakland's record for last month was, in view of the financial conditions prevailing throughout the country, truly remarkable. The figures disclose an activity that testifies to the stability of real estate values and the business health of the community. Business expansion is the motive of at least three of the new buildings now in course of construction.

Last month the building permits totaled nearly $600,000. This is above the average for a month usually counted dull in the building trade; it is particularly encouraging under the circumstances. It is proof that this city is holding up its record, despite unfavorable general conditions better than most any city in the country. It is a convincing evidence that Oakland continues to grow with phenomenal rapidity.

For the last seven years Oakland has expended annually something over $3,000,000 in new buildings. Notwithstanding the depression due to short crops and financial stringency, this year will hardly fall behind last—it may exceed the 1912 record. A strong and healthy activity prevailed during the first half of the year. The only jarring note was the temporary cessation of work on the new school houses, a circumstance due to special causes. Otherwise building is proceeding with normal activity. Oakland has never had what is called a boom. Her growth has always been along safe and steady lines. Business demands it and measure it by tests which can alone be accepted as reliable. First, there is the increase in water services and new dwellings. Second, there is the increase in assessed values and the volume of business. People do not come to Oakland to stay awhile, they come here to live permanently. New local trade centers are springing up in the suburban districts in response to the needs of increased population, yet trade in the department stores is expanding, as attested by the increased accommodations provided and the steady demand for stores in desirable locations.

From 1900 to 1910 the population of Oakland increased from 67,000 to 150,154. And there was no boom. Since the census was taken the city has grown in every direction, and several of the finest business blocks have been erected. During the past three years the permanent paving has been more than doubled. Paving improvement is now going ahead at a steady pace; in fact, Oakland is growing in all ways and planting itself each day on the firm ground of an enduring prosperity. Year by year it is becoming more beautiful and more prosperous.

At a London banquet Ambassador Page pulled off a lot of that dusty old stuff about the American people being a branch of the Anglo-Saxon race. There is no Anglo-Saxon race. The Angles and Saxons supplied only a fraction of the blood of the people of the British Isles, still less of the people of the United States. There is more Scandinavian blood than Saxon in British veins, and the Celtic strain is larger than both combined. We in America have inherited our language, laws and literary traditions from the British Island folk, but we are less than half British, and, as we have shown, the British are not Anglo-Saxon. But a humbug once established is hard to down, and flapdoodle will continue to be popular as a mental exercise no matter how often it is exposed. Ambassador Page is simply treading in the path blazed by a long line of flapdoodlers.

Twenty Years Ago Today

Judge F. W. Henshaw, who has been making a tour of the East, will be home soon. He leaves Chicago early next week. A ventilation system is being installed in the chambers of Judge W. E. Greene at the court house. The room has heretofore been stifling, and illness has been the result innumerable times because of the lack of air.

It is now announced that F. M. Smith will purchase the Piedmont Springs Hotel and thoroughly remodel it. The fact that he is intending to extend the East Oakland line in this direction would seem to verify the rumor regarding the hostility.

The Oakland Light and Heat Company have improved their property at the foot of Grove street. The cost was $50,000, and the new addition to the plant is one of the finest pieces of work seen in this vicinity. The company now employs two hundred people.

Miss Grace Kimball of this city made a brilliant address to the Convention of School Methods now being held at Pacific Grove. Miss Bell, also of this city, executed a fine instrumental solo. Swedish Day at the World's Fair drew a huge crowd. The weather continues fair and cool.

John R. Glascock has returned from Castle Crag. Miss Lou Kerr has returned from her southern trip. The Young Women's Christian Association gave a pleasant welcome to their popular president, Mrs. F. D. Brown, who has returned from her Eastern trip.

The family of W. S. Beate are spending the summer at Nice. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Brown have returned from a recent vacation at Niagara. The University library now contains 62,600 volumes.

JAPAN'S WOMEN IN MOVEMENT FOR EMANCIPATION

Question Comes to Fore As in Accident for Greater Freedom.

Minister of Education Warns Against "Cruel Influence of Vanity."

TOKIO, July 19.—The "New Woman" question has come to the fore in Japan just as it has in the Occident, and has aroused almost as much attention as the woman rights problem in foreign lands. The Japanese woman, compared to her sisters abroad, has occupied a modest place in the life of the Empire and has nevertheless been able to exercise a greater freedom and wider intellectual activities than hitherto has been allowed her.

A cry for "emancipation of women" from "domestic slavery" is being raised by a number of educated girls, who call themselves "Blue Stockings." These "new women" do not merely speedily what they wish to accomplish, but in a general way they defy the old order of things laid down for the female sex. They have their own publications and occasionally attend public meetings for the propagation of their ideas. They have a club of their own and are engaged in many of the rights discussions.

However, these are extremists. Their utterances and their mode of life have shocked conservative Japan. In fact, some of them have been so radical in their action that the authorities have imposed the law to restrain them. Recently a number of meetings for women were suspended on the ground that they were "injurious to society."

Dr. Okada, Minister of Education, is of the opinion that the discussion of woman's rights question may not be dangerous to the minds of women who are well educated and have been well trained in mind, but he added his view that "it will excite injuriously the minds of ordinary women, or, in other words, will encourage vanity among them." He asserted that nine out of ten women who discuss such a problem are the victims of the "cruel influence of vanity."

CORONATION PLANS.

After the observance of the first anniversary of the death of Emperor Meiji at the end of July, the court will begin active preparation for the coronation of the new Emperor, who is now quite well again after his recent attack of pneumonia. The coronation will take place in the fall of 1914, and will be attended by representatives of all the nations of the world. The Imperial Coronation Commission will soon be appointed. It is likely that this office will be bestowed upon H. H. General Prince Fushimi.

The date for coronation will be fixed and published with the signature of the Minister of the Imperial Household and the Minister of State. At the same time the Emperor will announce the date at the Imperial Sanctuary and will send messengers to the Great Shrine at Ise, to the mausoleum of the Emperor Jimmu and the mausoleum of Emperors Meiji and Kommei, to proclaim the forthcoming coronation.

One of the early preparations for the coronation will be the planting next spring of sacred rice to be used during the ceremonies. Already the rearrangement and repairs of temples and old palaces at Kyoto, where the coronation will take place, have been commenced for the suitable reception of the foreign envoys and special missions.

BRAZILIAN COLONIZATION.

Although the emigration of Japanese to the United States has been practically stopped by what is known as the "gentlemen's agreement," the exodus of emigrants to South America is increasing. One of the principal causes of this is the establishment of the Brazilian Colonization Company by Baron Sotomatsu and other prominent Japanese for the leasing of lands in Brazil. An agreement with the Brazilian government provides for the settlement of 2000 Japanese families in Brazil for the next four years, and a start has been made in sending these people across the Pacific. It is likely that the cultivation will be the chief occupation.

The majority of the Japanese emigrants are in Hawaii and the United States, with South America and Canada next. There are 800 Japanese working in the rubber plantations in Malay Peninsula. Already there are 8000 Japanese laborers in Brazil engaged in the cultivation of coffee about 1000 in Peru in the cultivation of potatoes, 1000 in Mexico in mining and 2000 in Australia. Official figures place the number of Japanese in the Philippine Islands at 3000, chiefly engaged in the production of rice and potatoes, while there are 50 employed in the sugar plantations in the island of Guam, which belongs to the United States.

ART DONATION.

Japan will contribute to the Peace Palace at The Hague nine beautiful pictures of flowers and birds, elaborately worked upon silk tapestry. In these pictures are depicted, in artistic variety and arrangement, such blossoms as the cherry, purple magnolia, paulownia, wisteria and azalea, and flowers such as the lily, peony, marigold and dandelion, together with peacocks, pheasants, pigeons, sparrows and swallows. Of the nine pictures the two principal measure 15 by 16 feet and represent a majestic peacock strutting under beautiful cherry blossoms. These tapestries were designed by Robun Kikuchi, a famous Japanese artist, and their manufacture was started in November, 1905, and has only just been finished.

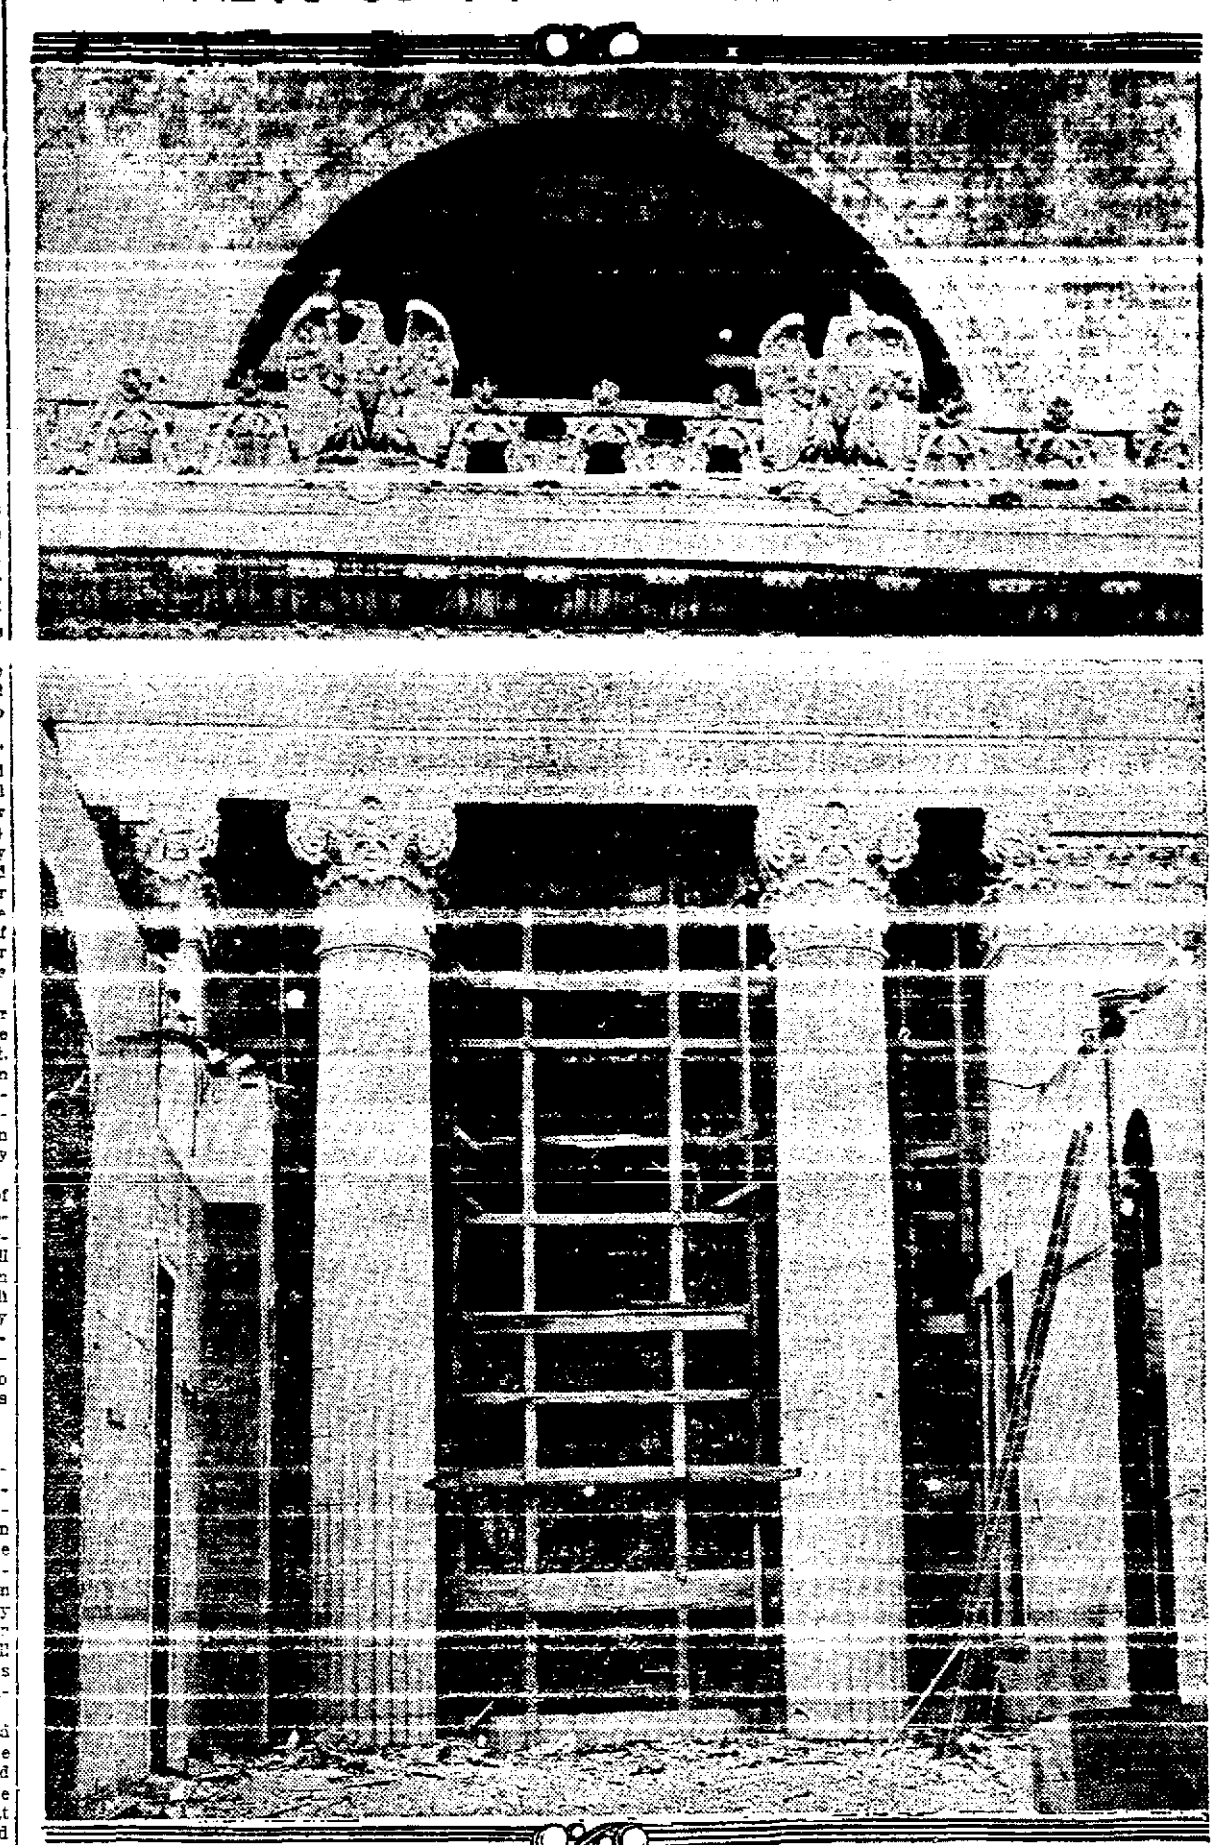

WIRELESS TELEPHONE.

Japanese inventors have made a successful wireless telephone apparatus. Instruments were installed on board a ship and at two points in the city of Yokohama. After a series of experiments it was found that conversation was clearly audible at a distance of 20 knots out to sea, and that messages were exchanged even at a distance of 60 knots. After a few more experiments the Department of Communications will open the new system for the use of the general public.

DICKEY STUDIES CHICAGO PLAYGROUND METHODS

Chicago playgrounds, is in Chicago, where he is looking into the playground methods of the lake city. With his camera he is obtaining first hand knowledge of innovations in play parks and these, together with notes he will take, will be incorporated into similar places of this city. He will remain in Chicago until July 23 and then make a study of Buffalo methods for a few days. New York will follow, and here the playground director will spend most of his time, the nation's playground being about the same.

DESPONDENT GIRL COMMITS SUICIDE

Unofficial Investigation Shows Young Woman Was Not Murdered.

CHICAGO, July 19.—Unofficial investigation of circumstances surrounding the death of a young woman whose body was found hanging from a fence railing near Oak Forest, a suburb, today, indicated that the woman was a Swedish or Norwegian domestic servant and that she committed suicide.

The partial identification was established by letters which she carried and "servants wanted" clippings from newspapers. The only evidence which might indicate murder was the fact that her watch had stopped apparently before the spring had completely unwound.

Death apparently was due to strangulation from a strip of cloth in a noose around her neck and attached to the top rail of the fence. She was not bound, nor were her personal possessions, including several dollars and the watch, disturbed.

The wreckers at work on the old structure have met with no difficulties thus far in their work of tearing down the old building. The walls have been pulled over after the supports were cut and the timbers sent sliding from the building down a long chute toward Fifteenth street, where the wagons have been loading.

It is anticipated, however, that some difficulty will be experienced when work is commenced in getting out the granite foundations and walls of the basement of the old building. The wooden structure which has stood at the head of Washington street for the past generation was erected as a temporary structure after the first city hall had been almost entirely destroyed by fire.

The lower granite walls of the earlier structure were utilized, however, and still remain. They are of solid granite, and it is thought that it will be necessary to blast them out. If the wrecker of the building is unable to get the stone, he will have to throw it into the basement area, which is below the street level, and it will be used as street bottom, when Washington street is improved.

MAN KILLED BY TRAIN IS STILL UNIDENTIFIED

GILROY, July 19.—Every effort possible has been made to discover the identity of the man who was killed by north-bound train No. 77 on Tuesday night, but without avail. Every possible clue has been followed up, and upon Wednesday afternoon the body of the unfortunate man was laid to rest in the Potter's field.

Although those who claim to have known and recognized his features are numerous and men of truth and veracity, yet nothing is known of his antecedents, save that he was a wanderer and an occasional visitor to our city. While his age, appearance indicated that he was able to perform but little manual labor, the fact that $13.45 was taken from his pocket, and his countenance bore marks that he was at least of ordinary intelligence and of good habits.

KENNETT, Cal., July 19.—James McLaren, formerly a miner living in this camp, was killed in Wallace, Idaho, Thursday. The telegram to City Marshal W. W. Middleton did not show how McLaren was killed, but it is presumed that he lost his life in a mining accident. McLaren was a member of the Kenney family of Chicago.

IRISH SCENES FOR DANCING CLUB

Gaelic Outing Will Be Like a Bit of Emerald Isle.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—A scene from the Emerald Isle will be transported to Snell Mound park tomorrow for the annual picnic and outing of the Original Gaelic Dancing Club. Pretty Irish lassies in the gay costumes of the old country will dance the picturesque jigs and reels of their forefathers, with graceful lads as partners, and the great reunion of sons and daughters of Old Erin will resemble nothing so much as the famous Felsen, or cross road dances, of old Ireland.

The carnival of Gaelic dancing, which is to be the most spectacular feature of the day's program, has attracted the entries of the most agile dancers of both sexes on the coast. The winners of the various classified dances will participate in a grand final to decide the championship of the west. There will be contests for children as well as for grown-ups, and handsome prizes will reward all the winners.

Among the well-known local dancers who are to participate are the Misses Rose Taube, Mildred Kelleher, May Roper, Annes Garberry, May and

WORK AND PLAY GO HAND IN HAND

Interesting Studies Being Conducted by Children of Tompkins School.

One of the interesting innovations in Oakland playground training is the raffia and basketry work now being carried on by the children in the vicinity of the Tompkins school under the direction of playground supervisor, Miss Edith Dickinson. The work, which has only been introduced a short time, has caught the fancy of the boys and girls in the neighborhood of Fifth and Market streets, and so successful has it become the department will widen the scope of easy labor as soon as proper plans can be obtained. Sewing and light cooking especially are being considered by the playground officials, and as soon as George Dickey, superintendent, returns from his eastern tour of inspection, the subject will be immediately taken up.

It is thought that additional equipment and instructors will soon be necessary. With but little practice the willing pupils have become adepts, and already interesting competition has developed between the boys and girls, new designs being constantly invented, and baskets of all kinds now adorn the walls and floors that formerly were bare.

MAKE UP STONE MARKS HIS GRAVE

Remarkable Gravestone Is Placed at Resting Place of J. A. Howells.

JEFFERSON, O., July 19.—One of the most remarkable gravestones on record was placed in the cemetery here today.

It stands at the head of the grave of J. A. Howells, veteran editor of the Ashtabula Sentinel, who died here recently. It consists of the "make up" stone used by Howells for fifty years, during his successive evolution as printer's devil, printer and editor. On it is inscribed a verse written by Wm. Dean Howells, the novelist, a brother of the dead man. The verse reads:

"Stone, upon which with hands of boy and man,
"He framed the history of his time, until "Week after week, the varying record ran "To his uncenturied tale of well and ill
"Remember now how true, though all those days,
"He was—friend, brother, husband, son—
"Fill the whole limit of your space with praise.
"There needs no room for blame—
"Blame there was none."
The boyhood of Wm. Dean Howells was spent in the office of the Sentinel. The father of William Dean and J. A. Howells was editor of the paper.

BAPTISES THIRTY IN GOLD CREEK

Five Hundred People Witnesses Out Door Ceremony of Church.

KANSAS CITY, July 19.—Thirty new members of the Swope Park Baptist Church were baptized in Town Fork Creek near Fifty-eighth street, Walcott avenue. The ground near the creek forms a natural amphitheater and five hundred men and women were seated so that they could easily see and hear all of the ceremony.

Dr. M. Louis Mertens, pastor of the Swope Park church, preached on "Three Reasons Why I Am a Baptist."

The thirty new members of the church baptized were mostly grown people, but there were five children also who were baptized.

"I have been hoping for some time," Doctor Mertens said, "to have a regular old fashioned baptism in the old-time Baptist way. I was baptized in a creek, and in the olden times it was the principal way of receiving new members into our church. I see no reason why we should not continue with the same kind of ceremonies in the future, as it seems very agreeable to the members."

NEW YORK, July 19.—The "kangaroo slide" has hopped away. Women no longer shall glide or mince or trip, but, in the form of a letter "S," she shall slouch. That particular kind of feminine locomotion shall be called the "silhouette slouch," and it shall be known by its angles. Such is fashion's edict. Nobody could have dreamed a few months ago that the angular woman would become the model of fashion, or that the slouching woman would attract the envious glances of her sisters. But so it has come to pass, it seems, and the tight skirt is responsible. The center of gravity is raised by the narrow skirt, it is said. Thus the wearer must develop certain new angles in her effort to balance herself while in motion. In other days women of fashion had freedom for a stride. But no stride is permissible with the "silhouette" gown. A slouch may suggest a burglar or a man out out of a job, and a droop suggests the "clinging vine" type of woman. The mingling of both in one fair feminine creature may seem inconsistent—but that may be only the obtuse man's way of looking at things. The two, said a dress authority yesterday, rather suggest the blending of the feminine and the masculine in the apparel of the woman who rules the world in these new times—who still rules the cradle, but who is determined she will have the vote. Viewed in that light, the "silhouette slouch" may be consistent. But who cares for consistency in women anyway? Fashion says the "silhouette slouch" must be worn. WIESBADEN ARRIVALS. SMALL BONDS FOR LOCAL INVESTORS

Mayor Mott Explains How Citizens Can Make Good Investments.

A feature of the bond issue, the re-issuance of which will be voted on next Tuesday, will be the placing on sale with the carrying of the bonds of a portion of bonds of $100 denomination of each issue. Stress on this point has been made by many of the commercial, civic, improvement and labor organizations which have heartily endorsed the bond issue and hum-dred of merchants, business and professional men and others called attention to the advantage of this plan.

Mayor Frank K. Mott in an address before the Stadler club discussed this feature.

"A portion of each issue in bonds in small denominations," said Mott, "will be set aside for the benefit of the citizens of Oakland and these will be sold over the counter to whomsoever prefers to purchase. This plan of disposing of $100 bonds will not only give the investor an opportunity to realize handsomely but will keep the money in Oakland and help in the growth of the city. The bond issue already voted, and to be again voted upon Tuesday, were all in $1000 denominations and were too large for the smaller investors to handle. The plan has met with general commendation and the demand will prove very heavy."

This is a sign of the faith of the citizens in our city and indicates that it is realized that the bonds must carry. We have started on the road to progress and prosperity and I am confident that we will permit nothing to stand in our way.

Additional endorsements to the bond issue were given at various meetings held last night, the Vernon-Rockledge Improvement club being among the latest organizations to work for their success. The Builders' Exchange has also given its endorsement and the sentiment is almost unanimously in their favor.

Two additional meetings will be held next Monday at which the revoting of the bonds will be urged by Mayor Mott, Commissioner Anderson and Assistant City Attorney Charles Beardsley. The West Oakland Improvement club will meet in Junction hall, Seventeenth and Beralita streets, and a meeting will be held in St. Andrew's church, Thirty-sixth and Adeline streets.

MATERIAL DEALERS TO HOLD MONSTER DINNER

Arrangements have about been completed for a huge get-together dinner to be given by the Material Dealers' Association of Alameda county on the evening of July 25, at the Saddle Rock cafe. An elaborate menu has been planned and a special orchestra will be included in the evening's program in addition to a long list of professional and amateur entertainers. Many of the latter will be members of the association who are especially talented. Addresses by prominent men of the organization will round out the program, which, added to the dinner proper should provide the merriest kind of an evening for friends and members of the dealers' club.

The object of the dinner is the bringing together of all those interested in building materials, a closer union of interests being regarded by the committee in charge as a true boost for the city of Oakland.

SANTA CRUZ, July 19.—Carefree, good humor and holiday jollity unite with the peerless attractions of seashore and perfect summer weather to make the Santa Cruz Casino and the beach this season the abode of enjoyment.

The visitors are taking advantage of the fine fishing in the bay. All are making good catches, both in number and weight. The Farallones have made good catches in salmon, sea bass, smelt, sand dabs, sole, halibut, sardines, kingfish and this morning they caught a large quantity of hae rockcod.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Three of the best known, as well as best beloved, women in New York are Mesdames Billings, Johnson and Vanderpool—society matrons and charity workers. Among the tenement dwellers these three women are as well known as they are among the members of the smart set, and much of their time this summer is being spent at the East Side milk stations, where their friendly work among the poor has won the admiration of experienced workers in the crowded districts.

There are always seen together, a friendship begun years ago in Egypt, when they were the only Americans at Shepherd's Hotel on the Fourth of July, having continued throughout the subsequent years.

All are experienced horsewomen, Mrs. Billings especially, taking a delight in riding through Central Park and Riverside Drive, and watching her husband's trotters in the Grand Circuit meets. She opposed the sale of his large stable of racing horses not long ago, and had been in America at the time, instead of residing in Paris, it is thought that her husband would never have rid himself of the famous breeding stable in the hands of the Billings mansion on the heights of Fort Washington, overlooking the Hudson, is one of the most palatial in New York. It is the center for art circles and the suffrage enthusiasts, Mrs. Billings being among the first to openly endorse the "votes for women" movement in New York.

SEEK KIDNAPER AND FIND HUSBY

Bride Has Right Idea When Told Police Looking for Husband.

KANSAS CITY, July 19.—A well-dressed young man carrying a suitcase walked along Bales avenue Saturday morning. In front of 6235 he gave a shrill whistle and walked on down the street to the Swope Park car line. He was Homer W. Pinkard of 6715 College avenue.

The signal reached Miss Gertrude Adams, who was in the house. A moment later she had put on her hat and was on the street.

The two went to the county courthouse, but were refused a marriage license because Miss Adams was only 17 years old.

"That's all right," said Pinkard, "we'll go to Marshall, where you have relatives. Someone there will marry us."

And to Marshall they went and they were married there by James H. Arhurst, a justice of the peace, Saturday afternoon.

When they returned to Kansas City, the first thing Pinkard did was to call his mother on the telephone and tell her of his marriage.

"You had better not come home," she said, "the police have been looking for you for kidnapping Miss Adams."

Pinkard and his bride discussed the situation all afternoon. Finally the young wife said:

"Let's go down to police headquarters and tell them all about it. I don't believe they'll be hard on us."

I was about five. An hour later they finished a conference with Captain Flaherty and left the building smiling. The captain refused to say what took place, but said:

"I used the telephone a little and it's all right. They are going home and that is all there is to it."

TOO MUCH LIGHT INJURING SIGHT

Development of Short Sightedness Due to Excessive Illumination.

CHICAGO, July 19.—America is developing a race of short sighted people, was the warning delivered by Dr. C. G. Fellows of Chicago in an address before the convention of the American Ophthalmological and Laryngological society in session here. His assertions were backed up by other speakers who he declared office workers use too much light.

"It is astounding how many persons are short-sighted," said Dr. Fellows. "The development of shortsightedness or progressive myopia in adults is due to the manner in which they study in school in their childhood. The prevention is early and frequent examination of children for eye troubles."

"Most people don't need half the light they use," said Dr. H. D. Schenk of Brooklyn. "Clocks and bookkeepers will have a big burner right over the books they work on. They tell you it is beautiful, but they are burning out their eyes. If we decrease the excess light we decrease the danger of near-sightedness."

Thirty-three of the 87 ophthalmologists present wore glasses.

PRESIDENTIAL PARTY LOSES WAY

Rescued From Muddy and Dangerous Roads by Fellow Motorist.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 19.—On the return from Bookland Wood, where they had attended the wedding of Frank H. McAdoo, son of the secretary of the treasury, and Ethel Preston McCormack, President Wilson and party lost their way a few miles north of Baltimore.

"I'll tow you in," volunteered Frank Primrose of Cantonville, who was motoring along with his family. He warned the chauffeurs not to attempt the route they had chosen, as the hills were muddy and dangerous. Primrose did not know that he was piloting the president of the United States, but he discovered it later, as he sped the American coast of arms on the president's car.

"I helped ex-Governor Warfield get to town only yesterday," Primrose proudly said as he got the president's party on the right road and directed them to Baltimore.

The three big machines carrying the president, his family, and secret service men plowed through water and mud at a good clip.

Once, however, the rain was so heavy that the party stopped under a covered bridge. The 120 mile ride was interrupted by the president's car taken in an automobile since he came to the White House.

Alameda County Is Motor Car Owners' Paradise

AUTOISTS WANT BIG OAK FLAT APPROACH

Is Sought for Motor Owners.

(By EDMUND CRINNION.)

The motorists of Northern California and Alameda county in particular are deeply interested in the proposed development of the Big Oak Flat road into the Yosemite valley, which, as was told yesterday in the assembly of the Big Oak Flat Road Association, is a project of the greatest importance to the state and the nation.

BLIND some weeks ago comprises the purchase of the privately owned road and the making of the necessary improvements to put the road bed in first-class shape for automobile travel.

Of all the available routes to the Yosemite valley the Big Oak Flat road is the most practical and also the most advantageous to the motorists and residents of the bay cities. It is claimed that this road was given no consideration whatever by the officials in the valley when making recommendations to the department of the interior as to the roads to be opened to automobiles, on account of its being a privately owned road. However, be that as it may, there is no disputing the fact that this road is the most desirable and most practical and we want it opened to automobile travel.

Considering the fact that the large portion of the automobile tourists that will motor westward during the next few years and especially while the exposition is in progress will make the bay cities their headquarters, it is due them also that this road be opened so that they can motor to the world's wonderland in their own cars.

There is every reason why we should, and none why we should not, contribute freely to the proposed undertaking which is favored by Senator John B. Curtin of Sonoma, who evolved the idea to buy the Big Oak Flat road to the aid of contributions of motorists of Northern California. Curtin has formed a corporation under the laws of the state of California to collect donations and carry on the work. It is known as "See Yosemite by Auto Over the Big Oak Flat Road," and the place of business of the corporation, which is a non-profit paying affair, is in Sonoma. J. R. Lester is secretary of the company.

The men behind the project, who are united to the trust of the public, state that there is not a single red cent of profit in the idea for any one but the motorists who will be benefited by the completion of the undertaking.

The Big Oak Flat road, which is the northern approach to the valley, connects with Oakland by the Dublin canyon, out over the Stockton boulevards, thence to Oakdale, Keystone, Chinese Camp, Priest's Hill and Crocker's Sequoia resort, which is about twenty-four miles from the foot of the valley proper and the starting point for the high-hitch basin.

The state highway commission has already surveyed the road from Oakdale to Keystone. From Keystone to the new six per cent grade over the Priest's Hill the board of supervisors of Tuolumne county is to spend $25,000 in building a road to the state highway, a donation from the automobile owners averaging $1 a car in this territory the newly formed corporation can purchase the Big Oak Flat road, convert it into a free highway and make all the repairs necessary to put it into the best of shape. This route will then enter to the motorists of the bay cities a perfect boulevard from Oakland to the Yosemite valley and no further objection can be offered by the park superintendent against giving the motor car owners their rights to motor over this road.

As soon as this is done the Big Oak Flat road will get all of the travel from the north and Oakland will get all of the travelers for at least one night's stop. Secretary A. A. Denison of the Oakland chamber of commerce and representatives of THE TRIBUNE have just made a trip of inspection over this road with Manager C. H. McCutcheon, of the Howard Automobile company's branch house, in a Buick car, and report the proposition one to be commended to the consideration of motorcar owners. The Buick handled all of the present grades with ease and even with the present conditions of the road the worst grade encountered at present is the famous Priest's Hill, a climb of about two miles, and this has already been done away with by a new road which has been constructed from the Jacksonville mine to the top of the hill with an even six per cent climb all of the way. This road will be open to the public in about three weeks.

One of the ideas of the Curtin project is to get away from the grades on the Big Oak Flat road also in a similar manner, but at the same time in a way easier to accomplish on account of the different conditions.

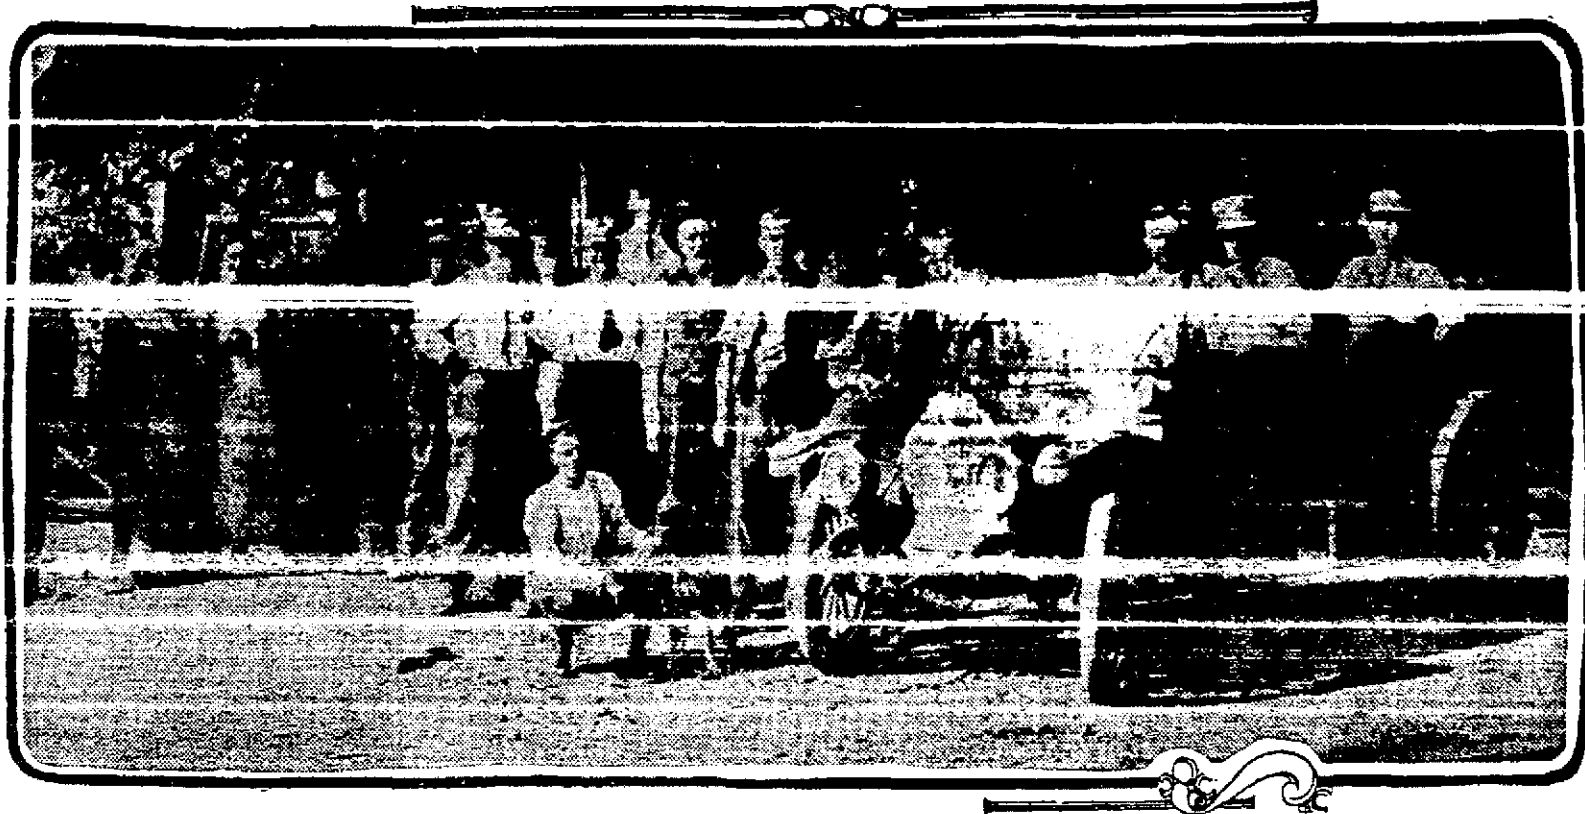

The "SEE YOSEMITE BY AUTO OVER THE BIG OAK FLAT ROAD" corporation which is attempting to accomplish this work solicits a contribution of at least one dollar from every car owner in that little donation is far less than the same motorist could get by the present toll gate with, under the present ownership, it is to be hoped that the automobile men will send their contribution without further solicitation to the secretary, J. R. Lester, at Sonoma, Cal.

NEW MEXICO MOTORIST TACKLES DESERT TRIP

One of the most interesting motorist tours taken this season has just been completed by R. C. McNally of Roswell, N. M., who is a letter to E. H. Daily, the head of the Reo agency in Oakland, says:

"I have just returned from a trip to Los Angeles, to which place I drove a new Reo the Fifth. I do not think that a car could be put to a harder test than we put this car. We were only seven days on the road and we never ran over seven hours a day. The distance covered was 1280 miles, and on the whole trip we only used seventy-six gallons of gasoline, six and one-half quarts of lubricating oil and two quarts of water. We went by way of Tuba, Ariz., and

CHANSLOR AND LYON OPEN NEW STORE

Huge Supply Concern Invades Oakland Field With Branch.

Following the announcement made in THE TRIBUNE during the latter part of June last, the Chanslor & Lyon company, one of the largest automobile supply concerns in the world, has finally completed arrangements for opening of a branch house in Oakland. The new branch house which is now open to the public places the well known company in an excellent position to cater to the wants of the motoring public in Alameda county.

With the opening of the new house in the upper Broadway row here, the Chanslor & Lyon company now has seven branch houses on the Pacific Coast. The first store was opened in Los Angeles in 1905 by W. G. Chanslor and P. H. Lyon. The growth of the business has been phenomenal and since that time stores have been opened in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Fresno, Seattle, Portland and Spokane, practically covering the entire Pacific Coast with branch houses and giving the officials the claim that the company is the largest of its kind in the world.

The new Oakland house opens with a full line of the company stock, including the famous Lee tires and also the Motz tires. The latter is the new solid cushion tire which, on account of its construction, is said to possess all of the resiliency of the pneumatic tire for electric vehicles and on account of its being of solid rubber insures the lady driver of the electric against the inconvenience of repairing the punctures and blow-outs on the road.

George A. Morrill, who has been connected with the company for years, has been appointed manager of the new branch and has already surrounded himself with an organization for the Oakland house that will insure the success of the new branch.

It has been known in motor circles for some time that Henry D. McCoy, general manager of the Chanslor & Lyon company, has been considering seriously the opening of a new store in Oakland and he has spent much time, as had also Earl Thompson, sales manager, in inspecting the Oakland field and looking for the most desirable location. Just for the most part the upper Broadway row just above Twenty-fifth street was the final choice and among automobile men it is considered a good one, especially so as it gives the new house the distinction of being the only supply store in the upper auto row. In speaking of the new arrangement, Manager George A. Morrill says:

"For some time we have felt the need of an adequate store in the city of Oakland for the convenience and service of our Oakland trade. The new building, which is located at the Broadway, is now finished and a complete stock of accessories has been put in on the spacious shelves. Particular attention has been paid to the furnishing of an adequate service department. This department of the business has come to be one of the most important. We have made a specialty of service. It can hardly be said of the human race that the Biblical admonition, 'It is more blessed to give than to receive,' has become a universal practice. Still, the world realizes, and particularly men in the automobile business, that it is necessary to 'give' in order to 'get,' and consequently those who give most in the way of service and quality are those who prosper."

VELIE MAN VISITING COAST, SINGS PRAISE

E. H. Schomer, superintendent of the Velie Motor Vehicle Company of Moline, Ill., paid San Francisco a visit last Monday after having visited many prominent parts of the state and toured many miles of her roads. Like many other Easterners who see the Great Bear state for the first time, Schomer was very much excited over roads, climate and scenery. He says:

"This is my first trip to the Coast, and I shall never forget it, nor shall I forget to come here as often as I can. I have been demonstrated very forcibly to me that it is impossible for the Easterner to form even a remote conception of California climate, roads and scenery from simply reading or hearing of it. I was foolish enough to let myself believe that I knew about California before coming here, but let me say that I was not long realizing how pitifully inadequate my idea was. I have heard California boasted by professional 'boosters,' but if these men were only able to convey one-half California's charms to the

MOTORCYCLE NOTES.
Rev. Father McGlincy of Lansing, Kas., is one of the most enthusiastic motorcyclists in eastern Kansas. His territory is about twenty miles in extent and he covers it easily and quickly on his two-wheeler.

Four motorcycles are to be added to the police department of Janesville, Wis., Two Bay City, Mich., motorcyclists are planning a trip which will bring them into the capital cities of each state in the union. The riders will distribute advertising matter concerning Bay City en route.

Two additional motorcycles have been purchased for the Saginaw, Mich., police department.

MOTORCYCLE HELPS CUPID.

A motorcycle recently came to the aid of a Wellington, Kas., couple in escaping their friends, who wished to help celebrate their wedding. Walter W. Thompson and Letta Wood rode Thompson's motorcycle to Caldwell, where they expected to get married. When they arrived there they found a crowd of Wellington friends waiting for them, supplied with rice, old shoes and horns. As soon as Thompson caught sight of the merry-makers he turned on full power and sped his machine through the town without making a stop. They then rode on to Wichita, where they secured a license and were married, while their disappointed Wellington friends returned home.

JEFFERY FACTORY VETERANS GATHER

Forty-eight employees of the Jeffery organization, whose terms of service with the company aggregate 337 years, made up a party of old-time bicycle men and pioneers in the manufacture of automobiles which was banqueted in Kenosha, Wis., the other night, according to reports from that city.

The banquet was given in honor of assistant superintendent M. Mattson, who, on July 1, after serving twenty-three years, severed his direct connection with the Jeffery organization to become a successful farmer and Jeffery dealer in South Central Texas.

While the aggregate term of service for the forty-eight employees present was 337 years, the added years of service of seven absent members and present employees would make the total exactly 1043 years.

This record of two employees dates back twenty-nine years: one, twenty-seven years and twenty-eight years; two, twenty-four years; four, twenty-three years; five, twenty-two years; three, twenty years; two, nineteen years; eight, eighteen years; four, seventeen years; one, sixteen years; four, fifteen years; two, each fourteen and thirteen years and seven, twelve years.

This is a record seldom matched in present day factory history.

A feature of the evening was the recital of the many unpublished acts of kindness and charity performed by the late Thomas B. Jeffery and a toast by the old timers to the present head of the company, Charles T. Jeffery.

MOTORCYCLES SERVE BIG STORE.
A new use is made of motorcycles by a large department store of Toronto, Canada. A corps of riders is kept busy visiting employees of the company who are absent on account of sickness and making reports of the conditions found. The company is thus kept in close touch with its employees, and whenever relief is necessary the company extends a helping hand.

FIRESTONES WIN IN TACOMA RACE

"The first week in July added many race laurels to the already well filled victory list of Firestone tires," says Howard Holmes, the Firestone dealer here.

The much-talked-of Panama Pacific Road Race, from Los Angeles to overwhelmingly a Firestone victory, Verbeck in a Fiat won; Waterman in a Buick, second, and Oldfield in a Fiat, third. All three used Firestone tires, and the first and second ones never changed a tire during the entire race. Also during the Montrose Feste at Tacoma, Washington, races held on July 5 and 7, three different events were scheduled. The first race was 100 miles, the second 200 miles and the third 250 miles. Firestone the three events. The average speed was more than 70 miles an hour. The manner in which Firestone tires stood up was far in advance of what could be expected from rubber and fabric, clearly demonstrated the wonderful endurance of our tires.

These tremendous victories on top of the big success at Indianapolis, May 30, where Firestone tires finished first and second in the great International 500-mile speedway race, is a splendid tribute to the Akron company and its product.

3000-MILE MOTORCYCLE TOUR.
Professor H. U. Smith of the Glim school of Chisholm, Minn., and Professor Muesel of the Stevenson school of Hibbing, are taking a 3000-mile motorcycle journey to the coast. They are delivering lectures enroute on iron mining and have prepared a number of slides of mining views showing the process of mining until the ore reaches the finished product. The riders expect to spend some time touring the Yellowstone National park on their two-wheeler.

The Wanderers' Motorcycle club of Toronto, Canada, has grown so rapidly that it has become necessary to secure larger quarters.

NEW CADILLAC IS EAGERLY AWAITED

Specifications on 1914 Cars to Be Announced Very Soon.

The first announcement of the new 1914 Cadillac, while it does not give any of the details, promises a new element of efficiency, a new quality of luxury and a new source of economy in the latest creation of this factory.

The 1913 season in California was brought to a fitting close last week by the delivery of the one thousandth 1913 Cadillac. This sets a new mark for California, a mark which Don Lee says will be surpassed with the 1914 car, according to W. L. Webber, manager of the Oakland branch house, who says:

"In the preliminary announcement of the new Cadillac the factory calls attention to the prominent part the Cadillac has played in the development of the motor car."

Eleven years ago the Cadillac Company produced the first practical and durable motor car in large numbers. How practical it was the world knows, as these eleven-year-old Cadillacs are still in service.

Five years ago the Cadillac Company, by massed production, scientific standardization and advanced manufacturing methods, demonstrated that it was possible to build a high grade car for less than $2000.

Two years ago the Cadillac Company made possible a realization of the motorist's dream by being the first to introduce an electric cranking and lighting system, which banished to oblivion the awkward crank and the inefficient illumination.

The fourth step is heralded as another important step in the progress of the modern motor car. Just what this important step has been held back for the second announcement that will give all the specifications and details.

Although the Don Lee branches have been unable to show pictures of the new cars nor have they announced any of the details many orders are being booked in advance. This is a feature of the Cadillac business each year. The Cadillac has become such a standard article that the people who know the Cadillac place their orders without even knowing what the car is to be.

LINEMAN SLEEPS IN AERIAL NET OF WIRES

PATERSON, N. J., July 19.—William Quinn, lineman for a telephone company, attended a birthday party and shortly after going back to work this morning became sleepy. He climbed a telephone pole and stretched out on the wires to take a nap.

Quinn was found asleep when he was discovered by a woman, who believing the man dead, called a policeman. When it was found the man was alive the police decided to arrest him, but later allowed him to go.

SAVES MUSHROOMS

MONTCLAIR, N. J., July 19.—With mushrooms selling at $1 a pound, Mrs. M. Hastings decided to take no chances when a brush fire threatened her beds.

She spread the alarm of a great fire and apparatus from three towns rushed to the scene, while farmhands were quenching the fire with a few pails of water.

Exclusive More Mileage advantages in Diamond Tires that cost no more

The greatest mileage at the least expense is what you most desire in a tire.

This is what we have demanded from our Chemists, our Engineers, our Tire Builders and factory experts—and here is their answer—

Diamond (No Clinch) Tires

Chemists: Vitalized Rubber—pure, lusty, young rubber put through a process that toughens and makes it road-resisting, with no loss of life or elasticity.

Engineers: Perfect 3-Point Rim Contact, that prevents all forms of rim troubles, such as cutting against the rim and breaking about the bead.

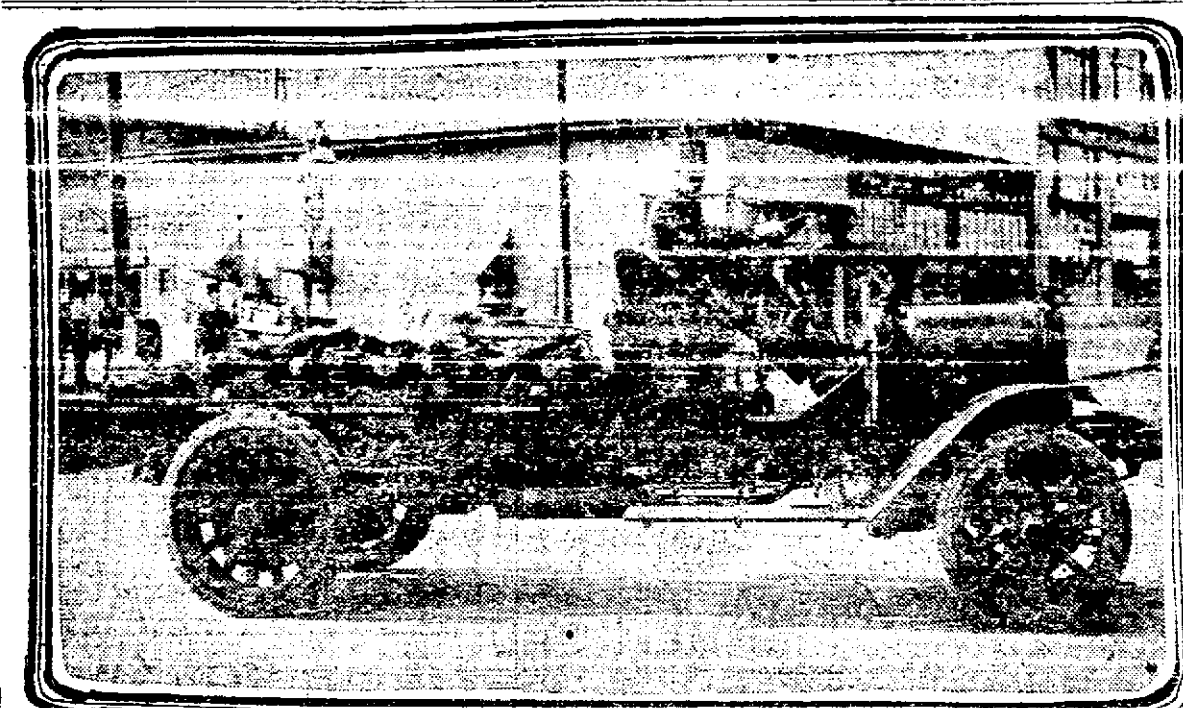

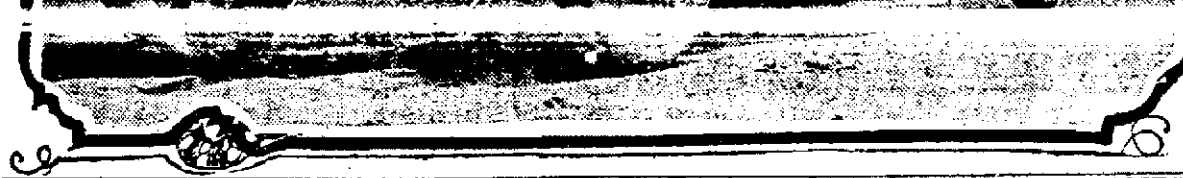

Tire Builders: A No-Clinch more air-tight tire, giving added resiliency and perfect balanced construction.

Then we protected the inner tube with a No-Pinch Safety Flap.

And, best of all, these exclusive Diamond advantages cost you no more. They insure liberal mileage and freedom from tire troubles.

So this time buy Diamond Vitalized Rubber Tires—you can get them to fit your rims from

AGED MOTHER GIVES PERMIT TO MARRY

NEENAH, Wis., July 19.—The new Wisconsin marriage law, providing that at least one of the contracting parties to every marriage must have the consent of one of the parents, caused trouble when Mrs. Elizabeth Schatzmann, 54 years old, a grandmother, sought to marry Prof. Willard of Appleton, 56 years old.

The local justice required that the new law be enforced.

Mrs. Schatzmann brought her mother, Mrs. Philippa Thabe, 81 years old, into court to consent to the marriage.

ARABIA CITY HAS AMERICAN MOTORS

The Poor Climatic Conditions and Limited Roads Hurt Auto Trade.

"Of the 45,000 people in Aden, Arabia, probably 200 are Europeans, comprising in the most part English army officers, city officials and merchants. Probably one-fourth of the Europeans have incomes large enough to permit the purchase of inexpensive motor cars," writes the foreign representative of the Peugeot-Motocars company.

"There are sixteen cars in Aden, of which six motor buses are probably useless. There is one 2½ ton French motor truck. Only two of these cars are American, but one owner proposes to introduce six Peugeot cars as public vehicles and has already ordered two. The people here formerly did not take to the low price American car, but of late have conceded its merits."

"All cars in Aden have been brought here since 1910 and many are second handed. Only two or three are sold annually. Their use is largely restricted to about twenty miles of road in Aden and this and the climatic conditions make it impossible to push the sale of cars with any degree of success. All cars sold in Aden, as far as known, have been handled by one or two agents here."

KNAPP APPOINTED DIAMOND MANAGER

Well-Known Resident of This County Assumes Reins of Branch.

W. A. KNAPP.

W. A. Knapp, one of the best known automobile tire salesmen in the trade along the San Francisco automobile road, who has been with the Diamond Tire interests for years, has been appointed manager of the Oakland branch house of the Diamond Rubber Company.

Knapp is also well known here. He has been a resident of Alameda for years and is prominently identified with the improvement associations of that city. His appointment to the Oakland management is particularly pleasing to the trade in Oakland.

Knapp has already assumed the duties of his new position and is busy expounding the virtues of the Diamond Silver-town cord tires to the automobile owners of the county.

HOG HEADED JAY OK'D BY JUDGE

NEW YORK, July 18.—Every now and then some one refers bitterly to the New York breed of shyster. They're as plentiful as the woodcock of the Bitter Root mountains.

"Judge O'Sullivan hates the sort," said Aaron Levy, democratic leader of the New York assembly. Levy, by the way, represented the only two men accused of knowledge of the Rosenthal murder who were freed. "Not long ago a young lawyer in his court had a ruin with one of them. The young lawyer lost his temper and called the pettifogger a name. O'Sullivan barked on his desk. 'What's that you said?' he roared. 'The young lawyer wouldn't say. O'Sullivan whanged again with his mallet. 'Then take the stand, sir,' he demanded. 'I see if I cannot get at the truth. Clerk swear him.'"

"The clerk swore him. The young lawyer flustered like a hair ribbon on a ferret. O'Sullivan rasped at him loudly. 'Remember, young man,' said he, 'you're under oath. Now what did you call this attorney?'

"Please sir," said the young lawyer, in a thin, apologetic voice, "I called him a hog headed bluejay."

"Stand down," said Judge O'Sullivan. "I've known that to be the case for twenty-five years—but this is the first time I could get any one to swear to it."

BATHERS SHOCK AUTOISTS

CHICAGO, July 18.—Seven employees of the Western Steel Car and Foundry company, working a bath yesterday, wandered out to Wolf Lake and plunged in after the usual preliminaries of disrobing without thinking of bathing suits. Autoists arriving at a road house near by, presumed, and the highway patrol were called. The company found that seven of its employees had been bathing.

TRIPLETS REACH AGE OF FIFTY-NINE YEARS

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., July 19.—Illinois' oldest triplets celebrated their fifty-ninth birthday anniversary. Freeman and Hilmar Rakshaw and their sister, Mrs. Harriet Hooker, all of Tazewell county, were born fifty-nine years ago and the triple birthday anniversary was celebrated with a family reunion.

By a curious coincidence the birthday anniversary of the triplets fell upon the same date. In Quiver township, where the Rakshaw triplets were born in 1859, the anniversary of their birth was celebrated last year. Every succeeding year the arrival of twins and triplets was reported, but the oldest case in December, 1879, when the stark left four little girls at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anson Doh.

The mother of the Rakshaw triplets gave birth to twins two years after the triplets were born. One of these twins, Mildred Rakshaw, grew to maturity and became the mother of fourteen children, two of whom were triplets.

TWENTY CARS ARE SOLD BY DUNKARD

Excommunicated One Gets the Drop on the Colony Deacons.

"A very unusual circumstance, which resulted in the sale of 20 Westcott motor cars, happened back in Indiana just before I came out here," says H. C. McVey, Pacific Coast manager for the Westcott Motor Car Company, whose headquarters are with the Dillon & Goodwin Company, agents for the Westcott car here.

"There is a religious colony near Richmond, Indiana, known as Dunkards. What they believe is neither here nor there, but what one of them did, and the 20 others subsequently did, constitutes the story."

"One day an elderly man of rather slovenly appearance, with whiskers sweeping his broad paunch, came into the sales-questions about the Westcott car. Later he asked for a demonstration, which was made by one of the salesmen. The old gentleman was even taught to operate the car, the art of which he quickly picked up due to the simplicity of the Westcott control. He seemed very much pleased and surprised everybody by taking the car at once and paying cash for it. In making a record of the sale, it developed that the man was a member of the Dunkard colony and prominently associated with the colony."

The car was sold and that was all we heard for several days.

Later we were told that the Dunkards are rather very much opposed to the motor car. Why, I cannot say, but at any rate we were startled to learn that our customer, the bewhiskered gentleman, had been put out of the church for his condescension to the appeal of material comfort and utility. A great deal of excitement attended this unexpected action.

"In spite of this unseemly action on the part of the church, the motor car idea found sympathy among the Dunkards who had money with which to buy cars, for not long after this the old man who had purchased the first Westcott car showed up before the sales manager and wanted to know if he could be allowed a commission on all the Westcott cars that he sold to his friends among the Dunkards. I do not believe his motive was altogether mercenary. In fact, I think the old fellow was really distressed to be put out of the church and had contrived a scheme to be re-instated. And it was a simple discovery at that. He knew that in most everything the majority ruled, and took advantage of the fact."

"From that time on the supply of finished cars at the factory began to shrink visibly. Every day or so the old man entered the salesroom with a fellow Dunkard who almost always drove a car away with him. This continued until 20 cars had been sold."

"But the amusing and interesting part of the situation, the part that proved the efficacy of the car man's scheme, came after the first 20 additional cars were sold. The purchasers of these cars were also very important members of the church, and while the church officials demurred at what they called 'a motor car epidemic' they did not resort to drastic measures. This told the tale, and at once the rest of the sect, who had been holding off from fear of church excommunication, rushed down to the factory to buy cars."

"The motor car 'epidemic' having become so universal, the church could no longer consistently bar the old man from a membership in it, and he was re-instated with much rejoicing, pomp and ceremony. Also he made quite a sum for himself, enough in fact to pay for his first car. Who says that an 'old dog' cannot be taught new tricks?"

DAYTON AGAIN A CITY BEAUTIFUL

Normal conditions now prevail at Dayton, O., according to R. E. Baus, factory manager of the Maxwell Motor Company's big plants in that city, who, in writing to Arthur Hull, the Maxwell dealer here, says:

"The visitor to Dayton today would hardly recognize it as the stricken city of ninety days ago, and but for a few prominent buildings which act as landmarks, would he recognize the former Dayton."

"Always a beautiful city, the rebuilt Dayton is a still more attractive city to live in. Nor do the people there have any fear of a recurrence of the flood. The extraordinary meteorological conditions that produced the flood, will not, according to the best authorities, be likely to occur again in the next thousand years."

"The labor situation that confronted us a few weeks after the catastrophe has improved, and we now have no difficulty in getting all the help we need, and of the class we need for the automobile building. Those skilled mechanics and body builders who fled in a panic soon thought better of it and returned to their homes. These homes were soon put into order and with the streets cleared of debris there is no sign of the water left."

"We are shipping twenty-five cars a day now, of the Maxwell '45-4,' which is made in Dayton, and with normal conditions restored in the city and in our plants the fifty-car days are in sight."

DENVER DISLIKES JAPANESE BATHERS

DENVER, July 19.—A delegation of Japanese today notified the city authorities that they were about to send an expedition of their government at Washington in an effort to obtain the rescinding of an order issued today by Otto Thuma, commissioner of property, barring Japanese from bathing beaches. In the city, the Japanese desire that the order is in violation of their treaty rights. Thuma's order, which also bars negroes from the beaches, resulted, he declares, from a large number of protests from white swimmers. Few negroes have attempted to avail themselves of bathing privileges. The Japanese delegation have been among the patrons of the municipal beaches at Washington and Berkeley parks.

TRAINMEN WIN FIRST POINT IN FIGHT

Senate Confirms Appointment of Two Mediators Under the Newlands Act.

to Be Settled by Committee.

NEW YORK, July 19.—The 82,000 conductors and trainmen on the eastern railroads won the first skirmish in their fight for a 20 percent increase in wages today when the Senate confirmed the mediation order of the Newlands law.

Early in the day the union leaders learned that the conference committee representing the railway managers was exerting every influence to oppose the confirmation of Chambers. This caused intense feeling and for several hours it was believed an order would be issued before night directing the men to walk out.

TEMPORARY TRUCE.

Out of this situation developed a temporary truce, brought about by a telegram telling of the confirmation of arranged that a meeting of the mediators be held tomorrow at the Manhattan hotel, at which the first negotiations looking to arbitration would be taken up. This does not mean that the threatened strike has been averted. A peaceful settlement of the controversy depends entirely upon whether the mediators can bring the management and the employees together into an agreement as to what questions shall be arbitrated at this time.

ONLY WAGE QUESTION.

The union leaders, Messrs. Garrettson and Lee, maintain that they are only to arbitrate the wage question at this time. In this stand that has the full support of the men, who have already voted to strike if their demands are finally ignored.

On the other hand the railroad officials have specific separate grievances against the management. These are to be taken up at this time.

Seth Low, president of the National Civic Federation, after a conference with the managers' committee failed in an effort to change their attitude.

It could not be learned tonight whether the workmen's leaders of men, Samuel Conner, Jr., and the representatives of the railroad or the employees. It is likely that the proceedings will last several days.

WILL HEAD GRAND ENCAMPMENT IS WORTHIER KNIGHT TEMPLAR

WILLIAM B. MELISH.

Grand Master Melish Beloved Among the Poor of Ohio.

CINCINNATI, July 19.—When the thousands of Knights Templar from all over the United States held their Grand Encampment in Dayton August 12 at their head will be William B. Melish, Grand Master. Melish is one of the best known men in Ohio, having been prominently connected with the Masonic order for many years. He has held innumerable high offices in the various orders of the fraternity, his election to the office of Grand Master being a mark of esteem and confidence only shown to the most worthy Knight.

Besides being prominent in Masonic circles, Melish is well known throughout Ohio as a man of public affairs. He has served as water works commissioner in Cincinnati for many years, and was once on the Governor's staff as an honorary colonel. Business interests in Ohio are closely connected with the name of Melish so that any great business project is first ventured.

Born at Wilmington, Ohio, the son of a well-to-do farmer, he soon showed an aptitude for business that finally ended in his coming to Cincinnati and engaging in the manufacture of brush and wire articles. Charitably inclined, Melish is one of the most beloved men in Ohio among the poor, and during the floods not long ago placed his entire fortune at the disposal of the State.

Short Sermons for Busy Readers

HAPPINESS A SCIENCE AND AN ART
Happiness is not so much a matter of chance as the entomology of the word indicates. It is a science and an art, something to be learned and practiced. Knowledge certainly gives capacity for happiness; practice gives possession.

Knowledge of the natural world increases our capacity for enjoyment of close communion with nature. Combine in one personality the naturalist, geologist, mineralogist, artist and poet by each additional acquirement you have magnified the nature lover's capacity for enjoyment until he finds "tongues in trees, books in running brooks, sermons in stones and good in everything." For the man who has eyes to see.

Rev. W. E. Townner

"Earth's crammed with heaven

KNOWLEDGE OF LITERATURE.
So, also, knowledge of literature, history and art. What pageants! What assemblies! What comradeships are theirs who fellowship with the master minds, the master spirits of the ages! They view the procession of history in the onward march of time. Such sunny company—faces bathed in the radiance of the coming dawn, voices vibrant with the chant of victory, sure, though delayed long; hearts buoyant with hope; prophets that burn with passion for justice; poets and sweet singers—give me these for the cheer of dark, lonesome days. Let me share rapture with the seer's action with the hero's insight with the poet and far-sight with the prophet; let me pick the theme in the symphony of creation, redemption, restoration.

But to know men is better. Not to master the chronicle of their life events, but to get under their burdens, feel the surge of their passions, catch the radiance of their hope; to find the red under gold when the lode of manhood sparkles in the light of God. Earth has no other joy so costly, so rare, so deep and enduring as the joy of the love of men.

Let us not pray for power over men; that were a beggar's gift. A thief might use it to defraud his fellows. This be our prayer: "O, Christ, increase my knowledge and my love for men."

There is yet a best above the better; to know God; to have the fixed certainty amid all the shifting contradictions that there is over, and in and through all, before and beyond, both the smiling and the weeping, the thrill of rapture and the throb of pain, "Our Father who art in heaven." Heart's ease is here. "Let not your heart be troubled; believe in God and believe in Me."

HAPPINESS IS NOT PLEASURE.
No, happiness is not pleasure. We do not get happiness out of pleasure, but pleasure out of happiness. Happiness is a by-product of love at work in the field of service. "Happy are you if you do them." Happiness is the power with which the parcel of life is wrapped up. It is an incident and not an end for life. Life is for action, and happiness is the spark from the anvil of hard and earnest effort to realize the best we know in life. Out of your mastery of life's lessons in the world of art and nature, man and God bring wisdom and skill to the task of living. Practice the presence if you would feel it. The two cannot be separated. Knowledge is action and action verifies knowledge. To know is to open the heart to the life that presses all about us. God imparts, the soul receives. The contact comes from the cloister and the market place, from mountainside communion at midnight and the ministry to the multitudes at midday. Everywhere the act of knowing is an act of surrender to an intuitive trust, an act of obedience to divine impulse. "He that willeth to do shall know."

LIFE'S LESSON.
Would you be happy? Learn life's great lesson of trust and obedience in the school of Christ. Prove out your knowledge in the field of human experience by transmuting it into ministry of love.

When I sought happiness she fled
Before me and I found
That I might not possess her till
I crowned stern duty
Monarch of my life. Then at my Touch her iron scepter
Turned to gold, her somber throne room
Shone with pure light, and peace
With joy came in to bless my lot.

Rev. William Keeney Townner is pastor of the First Baptist church of this city.

If You Knew As Much About My Player As I Did You'd Buy It

If you knew positively that the metal tubes in the Autopiano player-piano were non-rusting, non-rotting and permanent.

If you knew positively that the motor means continuous and uniform power, guaranteeing smooth running at all times.

If you knew positively that the automatic tracking device insures perfect tracking of all rolls at all times.

If you knew positively that all semblance of mechanical reproduction had been eliminated, and that you could play your favorite selections with as much feeling and expression as a master WITHOUT following a lot of absurd, impossible, impracticable, expression levers that so monopolize your attention that you cannot enjoy the music.

If you knew positively that our exchange library included every piece of music known to the world, and that it was the only one of its kind obtainable on the coast.

If you knew positively that you would get the best player-piano obtainable at a price far below the one asked for inferior players elsewhere.

If you knew positively that for $457 you would get a better player-piano than you could buy elsewhere for $700.

If you knew positively that payments of $2 per week would pay for it and you wouldn't have to pay anything down if not convenient.

If you knew positively that we had the style—finish and case design with stool and bench to match without extra cost.

If you knew these things and knew these inducements wouldn't be open long, wouldn't you go down to Eilers tonight, or tomorrow and get one of these players?

These things are all true and you can KNOW them by investigating.

Think of quality—think of price—then of both—then of Eilers—Eilers Music House—1448 San Pablo Avenue—next to the new big Kahn building, in the heart of Oakland.

NURSE ADOPTS BOY WHO WAS ABANDONED

NEW YORK, July 19.—After a search of three years for a supposedly wealthy man who left his infant son with her to board at the rate of $30 a month, Miss Louise Gordon of 1495 Williamsbridge road adopted the child, Edgar Charles Cotton, now four years old. The child was signed by Surgeon General Cohan.

Miss Gordon said that Cotton was sent to her by a doctor. She was then on the staff of the Babies Hospital, Lexington avenue. Cotton told her that he lived at the Shirley hotel, Denver, and that his wife had recently given birth to a son in a New York sanitarium. He wished Miss Gordon to take it to board, and she agreed. Cotton paid the child's expenses and then wrote from Red Cliff, Colorado, that he would pay no more. She has not heard from him since then.

Miss Gordon now maintains a home where children are taken to board.

REPULSED BY HER RELATIVES, WIDOW MOURNS

Mrs. Mary De Valle Sends Flowers and Attends Husband's Funeral.

Woman Who Took Life of Mate Grieves as He is Taken to Grave.

Repulsed by relatives at the tier of the husband whom she shot, Mrs. Mary De Valle, fearful and repentant, yesterday attended the funeral of the man who, she declares, murdered her for fifteen years, before she ended his persecution with a bullet. Her only haven of refuge was her mother, who came to comfort her.

dered man scowled and muttered and other relatives looked askance and openly avoided the woman who attended the funeral. Sheriff Frank Barnett and Matron White took the self-made widow to the little ranch home near Mowry's Landing, where the funeral was held. Sobbing hysterically, Mrs. De Valle threw herself into the arms of her mother, Mrs. Joseph Corrie, who whispered words of comfort, while Antonio De Valle, brother of the dead the face of his brother in the coffin, muttered in Portuguese: "Who did that to you? Who did that to you?"

CHILDREN CARED FOR.

Mrs. De Valle was surrounded by her three children, Manuel, aged 14, Marie, aged 10, and Eduardo, aged 8. They will be cared for by their grandmother until the mother is able to provide for them.

Leaving the ranch, the funeral procession went to the Catholic church at Centerville, where mass was said by Rev. Father Gomez, Portuguese priest of the diocese. The church was crowded, but none of the women or men present offered a word to the widow.

While the grave was being covered Mrs. De Valle broke down completely and wept.

"Oh, my God! That's an awful thing I did!"

Beyond those words the woman prisoner said nothing about the murder. On her way back to Oakland she conversed with Mrs. White about her personal affairs. She appeared to be under the impression that the affair is over with and asked if she would be able to go home after the funeral, which will be held in Irvington next Thursday.

WIDOW SENDS FLOWERS.

From her cell in the county jail Mrs. De Valle ordered quantities of flowers to be sent to the funeral. A large cross, two pillows and sprays of expensive designs were there from Mrs. De Valle as tokens of her memory of the man whom she declares abused her during the fifteen years of their married life.

Deputy Sheriff S. H. Vandervoort, who resides at Irvington and who was formerly constable in that section of the county, has known Mrs. De Valle since she went to school in the schoolhouse at Mowry's Landing.

"Mrs. De Valle was married at the age of 16 years," said Deputy Vandervoort today. "While I was constable there the woman was not an uncommon thing for the woman with her children and her husband's skirts, to appear at my house in the middle of the night and ask me to intervene with her husband for her."

"Many nights she was forced to sleep out doors in haystacks or wherever she could find a place. She took the children with her and many years underwent great hardships."

CONFESSED MURDER.

After her arrest last Thursday Mrs. De Valle confessed to Deputy Vandervoort that she had killed her husband and told him where he could find the revolver. Later she made a detailed statement to District Attorney Hynes.

De Valle was killed early Tuesday morning as he lay in bed under the influence of liquor. The night before the crime he had forced his wife out of the house. She took refuge in a haystack across the road, where she slept with blankets taken from the house by a woman neighbor, who was there at the time. After the victim was gone and her husband had retired, Mrs. De Valle stole into the house intending to sleep. She saw her husband lying asleep, went out of the house and obtained the revolver which had been hidden and returning fired a single shot, directing her aim by the light of the moon which fell through a bedroom window.

Joseph Souza, who was arrested at the same time as Mrs. De Valle, was at first thought to have had guilty knowledge of the crime, but the woman exonerated him Souza and Mrs. De Valle had been friendly according to the woman's confession. This, however, was after she had fled suit for divorce against her husband last May and before her return to him preceding the fatal event.

YOUTH ACCUSED OF ATTEMPTED BLACKMAIL.

SALT LAKE CITY, July 19.—W. L. Cummings, 23 years old, was arrested here on the charge that he had attempted to extort $500 from Miss Dorota Zambrger, a wealthy society girl.

Cummings was taken into custody by detectives while telephoning to Miss Zambrger, who had previously been threatened by an anonymous letter-writer that unless she gave $1000 nitro-glycerine would be exploded in her room. Miss Zambrger had arrived from New York the day she received the letter.

Attempts to Drive Off Dredgermen; Is Arrested.

SACRAMENTO, July 19.—Antonio Damion, who owns a farm at Freepoint and who believes in taking the law into his own hands when things don't go to suit him, was arrested by Sheriff Dave Ahern when he refused to drive people off his property with a shot gun.

The county has been dealing over the Damion ranch, and while the struggling level at that point it has been necessary to throw dirt on the property owned by Damion. When the man charged with the duty of dirt thrown up was at his work Damion appeared on the scene and ordered him to stop. The workman told him it would be necessary for him to go to Inspector J. D. Quinn, who is in charge of the dredger, before he could get a permit to work.

Damion returned to the house and appeared again with a shotgun and told the workmen that he would shoot them who was boss. Instead of answering the question with the loaded ranch owner, the dredgermen notified the sheriff's office. Work, however, stopped for the time being.

When he was told that it is against the law for him to attempt to drive the workmen from his place with a shotgun, Damion could not see it and insisted that he would keep it on. The sheriff endeavored to explain to him that it was against the law to carry a pistol, but Damion refused to give up the gun. He was taken to the county jail and a complaint is being filed against him by the men operating the dredger who will probably be discharged.

MOSLEM GIVES HIS VIEWS ON WOMAN QUESTION

Sheik-ul-Islam Shatters Tradition in Talking of Religion.

Declares Allah Knew Feminine Charms Would Bring Infelicity.

By VAHAN CARDASHIAN

(A citizen of Turkey educated at Columbia University, who has recently returned to Constantinople.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 19.—The Moslem is permitted to marry more than one woman under the strictest rules and monogamy. The Christian is forbidden to marry more than one woman. The result is widespread polygamy and immorality.

"If a man and woman have made a mistake in marrying, why perpetuate the mistake? Each of them could make another happy."

Such are the utterances of the Sheik-ul-Islam, the venerated and Christian of the 200,000,000 of Moslems throughout the world, in an interview granted to a commissioner sent to his highness by THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Never before in the thirteen centuries that have rolled by since Mohammed, prophet of Allah, existed, has a Sheik-ul-Islam granted such an interview.

Always, as today, the grand arbiter of the destiny of Islam, with his high office and tremendous power, dwells almost like a demigod in the Bahi-Ersh, the Mohammedan Vatican, here, remote from the gaze and contact of the ordinary mortal. Scores of doctors of the law and of interpreters of the Koran wall him.

BREAKS TRADITION.

Most remarkable of all, the Sheik-ul-Islam spoke to one who is not a Moslem, of woman, of marriage, of divorce, of the Koran. Never was such a thing known, to breach such subject to the head of Islam has been regarded as the height of audacity, as sacrilege.

"Your highness," said I, after being admitted to the presence, "We are anxious to be enlightened as to Islam's present attitude toward polygamy, toward the veil and shawl which so many Turkish women are discarding, and above all, toward the so-called 'feminist,' whose fundamental purpose is to bring about equality of the sexes; equality of opportunity for woman and man."

"Islam is for more solid for the welfare of the woman than any other religion," replied the prophet of Allah. "Islam is earnestly anxious to keep her away from the depressing and degrading influence and stigmas of the street. Free from associating with men, to confine her within the precincts of the home as the Lord ordained."

KEEP WOMEN IN HOME.

"Physically she is unfit to perform the labors of the man. She cannot discharge her most important function in life, which is the reproduction of the race, outside the home. Islam follows the line of least resistance. It obeys God. It is a logical religion."

"Why, your highness, does Islam decree that woman shall hide herself from the view of man?"

"Because," said the prophet of Allah, "Islam knows that her charms would awaken impure thoughts in the mind of the man, which would naturally bring in their train, as in Europe, family dissensions, infidelity and general immorality."

"Islam's nature has not changed in the last 1200 years. It is the same as it was in the time of Mohammed. So that which was necessary at the time Islam was promulgated is essential today. The woman's veil and shawl constitute two of the fundamental principles of Islam."

CONCEAL FACE, COMMAND.

"Allah directed the woman in explicit terms to conceal her face, and her ornaments from the view of man. Allah knows all knowing and all wise. Allah does not change his mind. He knew 1200 years ago the character of the nature of the man to come 1200 years hence."

"If change were to be made in his law, he would be forced to do so. He did not. So we must adhere to the veil and the shawl as long as Islam remains a living religion. May Allah prosper it."

"It will last as long as the world exists. To discard the veil and the shawl is to discard the great attributes of the infallibility of Allah. As I stated, Islam is based upon logic and therefore it cannot contradict itself by abandoning a guiding principle such as the infallibility of deity."

"Islam approves of polygamy?" I ventured.

"What I have just said of the veil and shawl, applies with equal force to polygamy. This is polygamy as devised by Allah thirteen centuries ago and it cannot be changed by the transient whim or desire of direct or indirect successors."

WIGHT HAVE FOUR WIVES.

"When God in His infinite wisdom sent His apostle to this world, he so ordained that Arabia should become the cradle of the true faith. At this time in Arabia there were three women to one man. The men were forced to take as many wives as they could get. As such polygamy becomes a physiological necessity. Our Lord directed that a faithful man have more than one wife, as many as four wives at a time."

"But He said that a Muslim must divide his time and attention equally among his several wives. If he goes out he must take them all. He must buy for them exactly the same wearing apparel. Even in the distribution of his affections he must not be partial to one of them."

"These are severe rules to follow. What do they all mean? They mean that a Moslem who cannot fulfill all the conditions laid down by the Lord, should not marry at all. Economically, must marry only one woman."

The difference I observe between the polygamy of Islam and that of the Christian world is decidedly refreshing and encouraging to me. The Moslem is permitted to marry more than one woman under the strictest rules and regulations; the result is a general monogamy."

NO INTENTION TO FORCE POSTMASTER OUT

RICHMOND, July 19.—There seems to be a misunderstanding relative to the petitions being circulated asking the president to remove Mr. S. F. Jenkins from the position of postmaster at Richmond. Mr. Jenkins last evening stated that he has no intention of leaving his position at this time. He is a candidate for the position, when it does become vacant and as I have the endorsement of the county central committee of the democratic party, and also that of many leaders in this state, I do not propose to let any grass grow under my feet.

Postmaster S. F. Jenkins issued a statement to the press yesterday, in which he said he had only been appointed last July for four years and would certainly fight to keep the position. According to the explanation on the part of Patterson and the general opinion prevailing here today, there is no intention or desire whatever on the part of anyone in Richmond to remove Mr. Jenkins from his position.

BUILDINGS ARE ORNAMENTS TO CITY

OAKLAND NOT GIVEN DUE CREDIT

Chicago Construction News Gives City "Worst of It" In Report.

Oakland is not given full credit for its share of the construction boom in Chicago. In its issue of July 12, Oakland is credited with a total construction of $164,480, instead of the official amount contained in the records of the city of permits and licenses—$371,517. This city is credited with a decrease of 10 per cent in comparison with the record of June, 1922, which is given as $414,781. This is also an error, as the amount for that month was $768,420.

The M. C. A. building at Twenty-first street and Telegraph avenue is nearing completion and adds greatly to the appearance of the structure. It is "farthest north" among the other buildings of the city. Good headwork is also being made on the First Methodist church at Twenty-fourth street and Broadway. A magnificent dome will be a feature of the edifice.

Bank clearings as reported to the California Development Board by the several leading house cities for the week ending July 17, showing the increase and decrease from the amount of clearings for the corresponding week of 1921, are as follows:

San Francisco	$53,713,960, decrease $425,615.
Los Angeles	$23,769,827, decrease $1,000,000.
Oakland	$3,885,581, increase $200,135.
Sacramento	$3,302,444, increase $579,721.
San Diego	$2,211,659, increase $272,358.
Fresno	$1,652,374, increase $339,000.
Stockton	$344,133, decrease $23,581.
San Jose	$344,133, decrease $30,798.
Redwood City	$222,539, increase $11,513.
Bakersfield	$375,700, decrease $15,526.

Deeds recorded during the last week ended July 14, as compared with the week previous. Lending transactions, however, were not as large as the week before. Last week the mortgages recorded amounted to $98,414, as against the total for the preceding five and Enlarged Oakland Y. M. C. A. building, with two added stories, at Twenty-first street and Telegraph avenue, (top), and First Methodist Church, under construction at Twenty-fourth street and Broadway.

WILL IMPROVE ALAMEDA STREETS

Concrete and Asphalt Are to Be Used on Webster Street.

ALAMEDA, July 19.—The west side of Webster street, which was improved a which proved not durable enough to stand the heavy traffic, is to be improved with concrete and asphalt. The property owners, including the Oakland Water Front company or, rather, the Pacific Improvement company, and the Southern Pacific, are the two owners chiefly interested. The east side of the roadway was recently paved and is in fine condition. The west side worked full of uneven places and rough spots, spoiling the pleasure of motorists and adding to the strain on teams and wagons. Following the putting of the roadway in complete repair the similar improving of Park and High streets will be undertaken by the city council. Property owners on High street will have to stand a considerable share of the expense as several hundred feet of High street has never been improved.

This fact will make the financial burden on the city treasury light. It is proposed to put High, Park and Webster streets, the three main arteries between Oakland and Alameda, in first class condition as an advertisement of the excellence of the streets of this city.

A project to establish municipal baths, or at least municipal bathing houses in Washington and Lincoln playgrounds is being widely discussed. One project is to build dressing rooms in the playgrounds, charging a nominal sum for dressing room privileges. The other plan is a more ambitious one and looks to the establishment of a hot salt water bathing pavilion at the south end of Park street, using the waste hot salt water from the municipal light plant to fill a large tank with hot salt water. A small charge, sufficient to maintain the establishment without loss to the city, would be made for use of the swimming tanks.

MAY ENLARGE BIG PULLMAN WORKS

RICHMOND, July 19.—The Pullman Palace Car company, which has always been active in promoting the welfare and development of this city again by sending here its chief engineer, Charles Knapp, to report on the sanitary district which embraces the Pullman works and add the city officials in every way to the most satisfactory and thoroughly efficient. Knapp has gone over all the plans to convince himself that the sanitation of this growing part of Richmond is being carried out on the most modern lines.

The Pullman company is desirous that its best employees establish permanent homes in Richmond and near the works and is using many inducements toward that end. Home building by these employees is building up the section about the works rapidly. The establishment of the Pullman works is making conditions for the establishing of home.

ENLARGEMENT RUMORED.
Manager F. E. Beck has been summoned to Chicago by the Pullman officials. The usual reports about enlargement of the works has followed his trip and these have been given more weight by the visit here of Charles Knapp, for it is said that besides inspecting the sewer plans he took data concerning the works that bears on the establishing of additional equipment, if not enlargement. The story that the company will install equipment for the construction of a certain number of steel cars has gained considerable credence. The only constructing plants are those at Pullman, Ill., and Buffalo, N. Y. The company has found conditions so favorable out here that it is said to be ready to make extensive additions to its plant.

The scenic hill section of Richmond from Grand Canyon park to the county line and from San Pablo to the Skyline boulevard, gives promise of becoming one of the most beautiful residence sections of the east bay region. The work being carried on and that contemplated will leave nothing to be desired in the way of improvements, including paved boulevards, terracing, arboreal and floral adornment and electric car transportation. The marine view from this hill section is becoming noted as one of the most magnificent in the world. There is an unobstructed view of bay and ocean and cities, including San Francisco, from the county line to the hills. It will not be long, including San Francisco, from being built will be seen with automobiles and the drives along these hills will be among the most popular and fashionable about the bay.

TO BE BUSINESS ARTERY.
San Pablo avenue will be the central artery into which this new development will pour business activity. This avenue, already becoming a prominent business street from the county line southward to Store Junction, will become comparatively as great a business thoroughfare in Richmond as it is in Oakland, property owners say. Its volumes of traffic will be contributed to all sections of Richmond. MacDonald avenue and Cutting boulevard will also receive business development in this section.

Arrangements for the widening of Twenty-third street are going ahead with a new and lack of cubbing that demonstrate the desire for improvement in Richmond. The turning of Twenty-third street into an 80-foot boulevard will result in making it the big cross-town street of the city, it is predicted. It will run clear from San Pablo to the harbor, connecting with the State highway and San Pablo avenue in the northern part of the city.

All of the arrangements for the grading of Cutting boulevard by dredging operations are being completed and the big dredger will soon be moved in to begin operations. The Southern Pacific

PLAYGROUNDS ARE SET ASIDE IN ROCKRIDGE

"In the development of Rockridge we took note of the playground spirit that has recently been so prominent in Oakland every day and use them for play-leave a number of open spaces which can never be built upon and which will be the common playgrounds for the children of Rockridge," said Fred E. Reed of the Layman Real Estate Company, this week. "Several of these little parks have already been taken over by the city of Oakland and others are cared for by the company owning the property. There is probably not another residence district in California where so many open spaces have been given over to parks but this feature has simply been in line with the Rockridge policy of creating a high-class residence district that would be ideal in every way. When one goes through closely-built sections and sees the lack of breathing spaces, the value of the Rockridge idea is apparent and additional proof, if more is necessary, is found in the crowds of little folk that congregate in these land's civic progress, and accordingly we grounds."

"Oakland's playground system is conceded to be one of the best in the country and we are trying to make Rockridge fit in with the general scheme that the city itself has so successfully developed."

STORK ON CAR.

CHICAGO, July 19.—A baby boy was born on an east-bound Twelfth street car at South Webster avenue. Mrs. Pearl Whitson, 23 years old, 1124 South Mozart street, the mother, and her son were taken to St. Luke's hospital in the ambulance of the South Clark street police station. There were few passengers in the car, and these with the crew cared for the woman until the police arrived.

ANOTHER SKYSCRAPER NOW PLANNED

WILL BUILD ON DOWNTOWN CORNER

City Council Takes Action Toward Removal of High School.

State men and citizens generally during the last week was the $2,000,000 lease of the University of California property at the southwest corner of Fourteenth and Washington streets, as a preliminary to building a skyscraper, and action by the City Council looking toward the removal of the Oakland high school from the old site at Eleventh and Twelfth, Jefferson and Grove streets. The council appointed a committee of its members, headed by of Education in selecting and acquiring a new site and to prepare for the erection of a new building outside of the business district, where the old structure is becoming an obstacle to mercantile growth.

The future of the university holdings at Fourteenth and Washington streets is a matter of general interest and importance, and the lease and improvement plans mean as much for the development of the city hall district as the removal of the high school will mean to the section further west.

FIRST NEWS OF DEAL.

THE TRUST announced several weeks ago that the university property deal was in progress, printing at the same time the news of the 99-year lease of the Buschell property at the southwest corner of Sixteenth street and Telegraph avenue by the Oakland Holding Company, an organization similar to the syndicate which has taken over the Fourteenth and Washington corner. Both are composed of Oakland capitalists. It was stated at that time that a tall building would be erected on the university land. The site is 100x100, and the structure to be erected as soon as the leases expire about two years hence, will be from twelve to fifteen stories in height, and will be designed as a modern office building with the three or four lower floors constructed for smaller retail establishments at moderate rentals. The corner has been leased for a period of fifty-two years and the total rental runs above the two-million mark. The corner is now occupied by a two-story building.

INFLUENCE NOT SCHOLASTIC.

The location of the present high school is such that the pupils are forced to travel through the business district, passing theaters, saloons, cheap lodging houses and other places which tend to distract the students from their work and to exert an objectionable influence over them. The matter of abandoning the old Twelfth and Grove street site as a high school has been under consideration by the City Council and the Board of Education for some years, and in selecting two sites at the time of the recent school bond election for the Manual Training and Commercial High School, the possibility of utilizing one of these for the high school proper was considered.

TO HOLD CONFERENCE.

The city council committee appointed will take up the matter at a conference with the Board of Education in the near future. Ways and means will then be gone into by the commissioners and the school directors to provide money for the change and to select a new site.

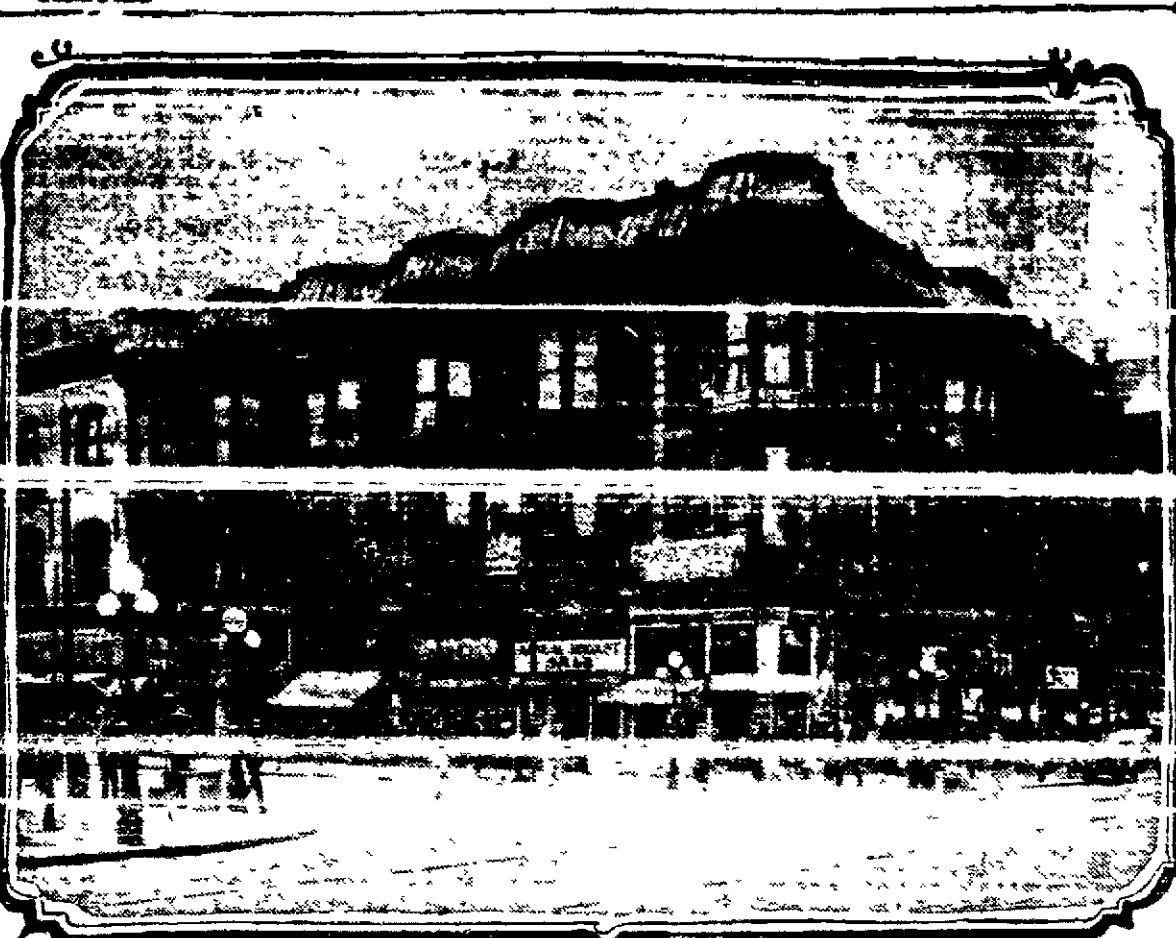

The resolution was introduced in the council by Commissioner John Forrest. Forrest is ex-officio member of the Board of Education. Forrest declared that every interest in the city was in favor of the removal of the old high school as a means of bettering the conditions for the children, and pointed to the fact that various organizations, as well as the teachers and members of the school board, had urged its abandonment. The site is situated at about $500,000, the assessed value of the property, according to City Auditor and George F. Brown, being $250,000. It is the custom to assess property about 60 per cent of the market value. The building is assessed at $100,000.

SITE COST $500.

When the site was purchased by the city of Oakland it was outside the business district and comprised a residential district and grass fields. That was in 1853, and the block of land was purchased for the extravagant sum of $500. The present high school was erected out of moneys provided by the bonds of 1851.

The district is an unsuitable one for a

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA BUILDING, AT SOUTHWEST CORNER OF FOURTEENTH AND WASHINGTON STREET, WHICH IS TO BE RAISED AT END OF TWO YEARS TO MAKE ROOM FOR SKYSCRAPER.

REPORTS SHOW BIG LAND SALES

More Than Half Million Paid for Sacramento Farm Sites.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—An affidavit report filed this week by the land sales department of the West Sacramento company shows that approximately 12,000 acres in small farms located more than $500,000 have been sold during the last few months to the new game farms at West Sacramento.

This record establishes a new precedent in the selling of high class agricultural lands in California and indicates an increased demand for small farms of the best type.

The selling campaign has attracted unusual attention by its quiet dignity, and the lack of sensationalism shows also that the public is becoming interested more and more in the idea of restricted and modernly developed home sections.

The recent announcement that the company intended an added expenditure of two million dollars in the immediate development of a master city just opposite the business section of Sacramento and adjoining the agricultural lands of the district has brought out a number of eager buyers the last week.

SPANKS CHILDREN; NOW ALL ARE ILL

EVANSVILLE, Ind., July 19.—Waldo Green, suffering from typhoid fever, spanked his three children the other day and they now have the disease. It is supposed they contracted it from him.

School of this character declared Mayor Frank K. Mott. "This has been realized for a long time. The business district has gradually grown up around the school, and the presence of stores, theaters, lodging houses and saloons around the high school has been a force detrimental in the extreme in the lives of the boys and girls attending the institution."

OLD MAILLARD RANCH HAS BEEN SUBDIVIDED

PARTIAL LANDSCAPE OF WOODACRE, MARIN COUNTY, WHICH IS BEING SUBDIVIDED INTO COUNTRY HOMESITES.

That rapid transportation plays an important part in development of communities contiguous to a metropolis is illustrated in the case of every San Francisco suburban community where first-class transportation facilities exist. However, much the benefits of the company may lure the city dweller, without ample transportation, it is impossible for the average man to take a suburban home unless he is able to get to and from his work in a short space of time. One of the attractive features in purchasing suburban property is the fact that prices are generally low and sure to increase with the attendant development brought about by people who buy and build.

BRAVE PRIEST SAVES CHURCH FROM BLAZE

CINCINNATI, July 19.—The Rev. Father Louis Tieman came near losing his life in a gallant fight to save St. Rose's church from a fire which destroyed the sisters' house, near the church. Father Tieman discovered the fire, and climbing 150 feet to the steeple of the church, sounded the alarm upon the huge bell. As the deep tones boomed forth upon the still night air, thousands of members of the congregation ran to the church, and, forming a bucket brigade, kept the fire from spreading. A great deal of great aid in pumping out the flames.

CARTRIDGE EXPLODES AND KILLS 10 MINIBOY

NEW YORK, July 19.—When a seven-year-old Virginia boy, of No. 214 Belmont avenue, The Bronx, stepped off a street car at Third avenue and One Hundred and Seventy-fourth street, the car started forward and there was an explosion like a rifle shot. The girl screamed and grappled her left arm, from which blood began to flow. Dr. Downer, of Fordham Hospital, dressed the girl's wound, which was slight.

BERKELEY DISPLAYS BUILDING ACTIVITY

Development of Allston Way Into Important Street Is Progressing

BERKELEY, July 19.—From one end of the city to the other evidence is to be found of the building and development boom which has struck the city at an unexpected time, the usually quiet summer season. New buildings have been announced in considerable number in the past week, while others in course of construction are rapidly approaching completion.

The development of Allston way into a new thoroughfare, the new depot of the Southern Pacific company at Third street and University avenue. The Berkeley Lumber company has just completed an extensive addition to its wharf, which was christened this week when the Grace Hotel unloaded 200,000 feet of lumber there. At the municipal wharf there has been a brisk business for several weeks past.

WOULD BRING COLONISTS HERE

Solano Farms Suggested by European Traveler as Good Venture.

Dr. Otto F. Danziger, formerly in the United States consular service in Spain, who spent a dozen years there and in traveling over all of Europe, is enthusiastic over the possibilities of an European agricultural colony on Solano Irrigation Farms. Dr. Danziger recently returned to San Francisco and last week he spent a day inspecting the Solano project. He said:

Anything to equal the Solano irrigated farms project aside from the fact that they have been an immense success in the past, is a thing of the future. With a water supply so certain as to obviate the necessity of their 400,000,000 gallon reservoir, the soil itself is a black, beautiful wheat soil that will produce every fruit from the apricot to the most luxuriant vine.

HAS FINISHED TOUR STUDIED SITUATION

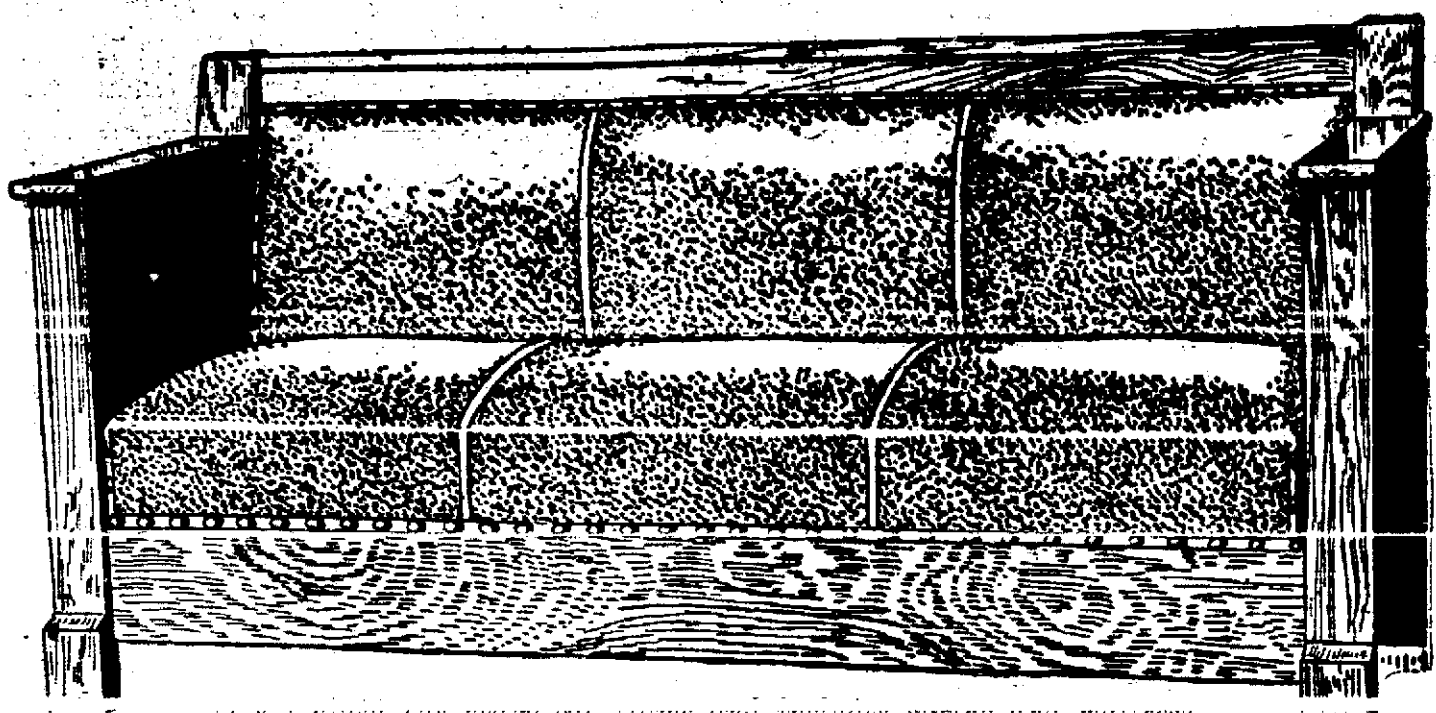

SOROKU EBARA.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Soroku Ebara, special Japanese emissary to the United States is at present occupying a magnificent suite at the Waldorf-Astoria, and intends to stay in New York for at least three weeks. His government sent him over here to study the Japanese situation throughout the country, and Ebara has just finished an extensive tour of California, where he has been examining the conditions in that State, which nearly led to an open quarrel between the Mikado's land and our own.

After a thorough study of the West, he expresses the opinion that there will be no war between Japan and the United States, and that he believed the agitation against his countrymen had resulted from the fear that the Japanese would displace white farmers in California. He added that he found little or no competition between the ranchers of the two nationalities, and scouted the idea that the Japanese would eventually control the agricultural output of California or any other American community. He believes that if left alone the Japanese will in time be assimilated into the population of the United States like the people of other races.

Ebara has been a member of the lower house of the Japanese Parliament since the government was put on a constitutional basis, and is one of the richest and most progressive men in the land of the Rising Sun. He is 56 years old, yet every faculty is alert, and he is even today recognized as one of the most aggressive and modern politicians in the kingdom. Many of the reconstructive methods adopted by the country have owed their birth directly to the mind of the wonderful old man.

ATLANTA, July 19.—J. A. Lahatte, 17, performed a feat of valor this afternoon that has made of him the hero of his neighborhood. He rushed up the street in pursuit of a dog that was snapping at children in its path, and when the dog ran up stairs of a residence close behind him, he jumped on its back, and at the animal's heels. As the dog, showing every sign of being jumped for the children, leaped the brute by the jaws and held it up.

HOSPITAL SERVICE SHOWS WORK DONE

Annual Report Gives Unprecedented Number of Cases Handled in Year.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—An index to the increase in population of San Francisco, Oakland and the other cities about the bay is found in a report just filed by Chief Surgeon Alanson Weeks of the Emergency Hospital service, showing that during the fiscal year just closed, the five hospitals took care of 28,492 cases. This unprecedented number gives an indication of the growth of the city and when it is known that the ambulances made 6,558 runs an indication of the work done may be had. A large number of these calls are from ships along the water front and accidents on the bay always result in work for the Harbor Hospitals. During the year two automobile ambulances have been added to the equipment, new apparatus has been furnished, and arrangements have been made for handling the cases in faster time than ever before. Five minutes from the time a call was received, is the limit before which an automobile ambulance will have responded and ten minutes in districts where horses are still used. During the year the Central Emergency Hospital treated 8,695 surgical and 3,204 medical cases. The Harbor 6,887 surgical and 1,262 medical. The Mission 3,221 surgical and 293 medical. The Western 1,848 surgical and 107 medical. The Park 1,689 surgical and 162 medical. The report was compiled by Stewart Charles Bucher, who has been in the service a score of years and together with Dr. Weeks has made it one of the most effective and efficient in the country.

CRITICISM ANGERS GERMAN SAVANTS

Exchange Professor From Chicago, Publishes Article.

BERLIN, July 19.—Another acid comment has been published in German university circles as a result of the appointment of one of the new American "exchange professors." The subject of discussion is Paul Shorey of the University of Chicago, the newly selected "Roosevelt professor." The ground for the complaint in his case is an article recently published in New York in which he severely criticized the work of some German philologists. When it became known that the author had been honored with the position of exchange professor at the leading university of the empire, much indignation was expressed. Only the prompt and tactful action of the Prussian educational authorities prevented a protest which would have thrown the matter into the arena of public controversy. The irate professors have now agreed to swallow their wrath and Mr. Shorey will be received with the usual courtesies as though the offending article had never appeared.

TABOO RAG-TIME AT ENGLISH COURT

King George Nearly Suppresses Famous Overture in His Zeal.

LONDON, July 18.—There is a distinct fall in the popularity of rag time, largely due to royal influence. King George is quite conversant with Queen Mary affects a non-violent interest in Bach and Beethoven music, and has frowned heavily on rag time. Yet rag time has been in at court and military functions. King George was so worked up about it that at a recent function he had the band play in advance every night. Rag time is the program in the gardens of Sandringham Palace, including "Hill, Hill, Hill" and "Tall-bow's" famous version of "Jazz."

Another of her gowns is of white silk with which she wears a short, knitted tiger yellow coat, striped with black. One of Miss Forbes's dresses is a true morning coat of black and white, with a black and white patterned skirt.
